Two young children walk past police position on way out of house where they had been held hostage for three hours in Kansas City on Thursday. They were held by bank robber who ran into house while being chased by police. Robber surrendered shortly after releasing children.

IWA: A narrow 'No'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 29,000 coast members of the International Woodworkers of America have rejected a proposed settlement in the B.C. forest industry dispute by a vote of 51.2 per cent, the union announced Thursday.

Jack Munro, regional vice-president of the IWA, said the negotiating committee will be called in next week to decide on the union's next move. The committee had recommended the report be accepted.

Munro said he was disappointed in the rejection vote, but the union now must find a way to improve the report by special mediator Henry Hutcheon, chief justice of the B.C. Supreme Court.

The forest industry reacted to the IWA vote by confirming that it doesn't intend to budge beyond the recommendations in the report.

The Hutcheon report provided for increases of $1.55 an hour on the base rate of $5.10 an hour in a two-year contract. A cost-of-living clause that provided 24 cents an hour under the old agreement would be included.

The IWA sought an increase of $1 an hour in a one-year contract while pulp workers originally wanted $1.50 an hour over one year.

The Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada and the Canadian Paperworkers Union earlier rejected the mediator's recommendations by identical votes of 84 per cent.

Woodworkers in the southern interior were the only group to accept the Hutcheon report. A spokesman there said the rejection vote on the coast would not affect them.

Pulp workers are already on strike but have voted not to picket operations that employ IWA members until Wednesday so the woodworkers would get holiday pay from the statutory Labor Day holiday.

'Safety' strike to halt air service on Sunday

OTTAWA (CP) — Air traffic controllers said Thursday they will strike at 12:30 a.m. B.C. time Sunday to protest a government plan to give their assistants more work duties.

The walkout would virtually halt all commercial air travel in the country.

B.C. regional director Jim Whyte said the 240 controllers in B.C. would provide for emergency services such as mercy flights, "but that's all."

"We won't be striking for anything but air safety," he said. "We aren't after more money or shorter hours, we're just trying to head off a possible disaster."

The date of the planned walkout caught government officials by surprise although the controllers had warned of a possible strike if the 10-month dispute was not resolved.

Jim Livingston, president of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, said the employees would stay off the job until the dispute is resolved satisfactorily.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand told a news conference soon after the 2,200-member union had announced its plans that he wished the controllers would hold off a walkout until next week when the cabinet will be available in Ottawa to discuss the problem.

Marchand also promised legal steps to try to force the employees back to work should there be a strike.

A walkout by the controllers would be illegal. The union has a contract which remains in effect until Dec. 31, 1975.

The controllers argue the government plan to assign more duties to the assistants, who belong to the Public Service Alliance of Canada, would result in a safety hazard for the public.

The assistants were unqualified and insufficiently trained to handle three specific control functions, they say. The duties are collection of time and altitude information, pre-taxi clearance and flight data plotting.

The threatened strike is the second potential walkout facing the transport department and is the more immediate one. The Canadian Airline Pilots' Association has called for a 24-hour strike on Oct. 17 unless the government stops tests on bilingual air traffic control in Quebec.

Bus depot closed by pickets

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Canadian Paperworkers Union pickets Thursday closed the Vancouver Island Coach Lines bus depot here.

A CPU spokesman said the action was taken because the union believed the bus line could be involved in strike-breaking activity by carrying express and materials for MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.

King flays bargaining ploys

Labor Minister William King said Thursday that too many labor-management negotiations in B.C. were requiring the intervention of a third party in the form of an industrial inquiry commission.

He made the statement during the taping of CTV's Capital Comment for viewing Sunday night.

Earlier this year King expressed concern over the effectiveness of the collective bargaining system and stated that if it continued to break down other methods of solving major disputes may have to be found.

Thursday he wasn't saying what those other methods might be.

"The point I'm trying to make with respect to the collective bargaining system not working very well is the growing tendency of labor and management to rely on third parties to bring about settlements," he said. "It's becoming a rarity for the parties to sit down and negotiate their own agreements."

The minister said he was convinced that in some disputes both sides arrived at the bargaining table knowing they would in the end rely on the government to provide a decision for them.

"And that is the failure of the collective bargaining system," he said. "That is when we have to consider alternatives, that is what we are concerned about. We have provided full and free measures and they will either be successful or the public will demand other alternatives."

Asked if he had considered establishing labor courts such as those in some European countries, King said he preferred "not to hold out anything particular at this time . . . but we haven't considered

Chains, clubs used in melee

TERRACE (CP) — No one was seriously hurt Wednesday when about 100 people—local residents and workers from a travelling carnival — battled one another with clubs, chains and rocks. Police said the fight lasted about 10 minutes, and no charged have been laid.

CDC enticing investors with boost in dividends

TORONTO (CP) — The Canada Development Corp., shaken by changing market conditions and by criticism of its proposed shares offering, has altered the terms to make the stock more attractive to investors.

● City brokers say issue all gone, Page 9

Key changes, disclosed Thursday to a meeting of underwriters, are an increase in the dividend to 8 from 7 per cent, and a reduction in the money-back guarantee period to five from 10 years.

Shortly after the changes became known, brokers reported a rush for the stock that previously had been getting a mixed response.

CDC directors, headed by president H. A. Hampson, met with the underwriters following an emergency meeting Wednesday to discuss the prospects for the offering designed to raise $100 million to $125 million for the federal-owned investment firm.

It was reported that the underwriters were prepared to sell at least $100 million of $100 convertible preferred shares which under the revised terms, will pay investors $8 interest instead of $7 and with five instead of 10 years to get their money back.

Before meeting with the underwriters, Hampson said the market was less buoyant with higher interest rates than it was when the CDC first made its offer July.

THE POLLEN YEARS

Fast on draw, mayor shines in verbal wars

Second of a series

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Mayor Peter Pollen's finest moments have come when he tore adversaries to shreds.

But his eagerness to dish out blows is equalled only by his inability to accept criticism.

One of the more memorable moments involved a column which I wrote in January 1971, about a year after he first became an alderman.

The column accused him of destroying the morale of much of the staff at city hall by his constant attacks on the administration.

The column quoted more than a dozen senior city hall officials (with names deleted) expressing feeling of bitterness, discouragement and disappointment.

They all objected to being called "bureaucrats bent on pushing through one mad scheme after another" and similar accusations that had been voiced by Pollen in the past.

Pollen phoned me at home that evening, laying a few choice words on me and threatening he would never speak to me again.

For more than three months, he kept his promise until one day, just before a council meeting, he approached me cheerfully, asking whether I'd like a Lifesaver.

I accepted the olive branch and got along well with him until next time.

His most relished feud has been with Victoria radio station C-FAX or, as Pollen pronounces it C.F.A.X. He will not grace the station with referring to it by its more familiar name.

It all began at a cocktail party at which he and a sta-

Dishing it out: Peter's principles

Following is a collection of Pollenisms on a variety of subjects. All of them were uttered impromptu and without a second's hesitation.

On corporations: "We must establish guidelines for corporations or a new kind of feudalism will take over our cities. It's already manifested by the architecture of enormity, coupled with our obsession for security. The only way you can get into many of these huge complexes is through a Pinkerton guard."

On banks: "They're led by people who started at 16 and are now chairmen of the board. They have no planned approach to society and they have an immense financial capacity. Their response to urban challenges is a big zero. They just go on building huge buildings to outdo each other. It's ludicrous for corporate pride to be reflected in this manner."

On Europeans: "They are very nice people, but they're inordinately smug, undemocratic and self-satisfied."

On the morale of a police force which claims to be underpaid: "It's regrettable that esprit de corps and morale in any force are equated with money. If this were true, the New York police force should have a high morale and dope pedlars making $30,000 and $40,000 a year should have a high morale."

On himself: "I would say with the utmost modesty that I'm probably the best mayor the city has had since the war."

Pollen has often hung labels on various segments of society and some of these labels are worth mentioning.

Unions: "Organizations bent on destroying society."

Developers: "Rapacious enterprenurs."

The tobacco industry lobbying against advertising bans: "An immense lobby aided and abetted by the Senate of Canada which has thwarted and destroyed any proposed federal legislation regarding tobacco advertising."

Plane destroyed by runway bomb

TUCUMAN (AP) — Explosives placed under an airport runway by guerrilla terrorists blasted a transport plane loaded with 114 border guards Thursday, Argentine military officers said.

They said at least four persons were killed and 30 were wounded.

In addition to the border guards, the U.S.-made C-130 also had a crew of five or six men.

An official communique said the Argentine air force turbojet plane was taxiing for takeoff at Benjamin Matienzo airport in Tucuman, 750 miles northeast of Buenos Aires, when the explosion occurred and the plane erupted in flames.

A photographer said sections of one of the aircraft's four engines was blown 400 yards away and several sheep at a nearby farm were killed by falling chunks of the concrete runway.

Pelletier new Paris envoy

OTTAWA (CP) — Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier, close confidant of Prime Minister Trudeau, is resigning to become Canadian ambassador in Paris, it was learned Thursday.

Friends of the family confirmed rumors that the announcement was due shortly, probably today, by the prime minister who entered politics with Pelletier 10 years ago.

It was learned that the Pelletier home in Montreal has been rented.

In Montreal Wednesday, Quebec Communications Minister Dennis Hardy was reported to have told a radio interviewer he did not know who his new federal counterpart would be after Pelletier becomes ambassador to France Oct. 1.

Then Thursday, sources said Speaker James Jerome had received notification of a resignation by an MP, effective today. A spokesman in Trudeau's office said the prime minister would be making a statement today, on his return from an Arctic vacation.

On top of all this, it was learned that Leo Cadieux, the present ambassador in Paris, was tendered a farewell dinner there Tuesday.

There had been on official announcement of a change in ambassadors, but an external affairs department official said Thursday that one could be expected shortly.

There have been recurring rumors for months that Pelletier, 56, would become the next ambassador to Paris. After 10 years in Parliament, seven of them in cabinet, he was said to be anxious to try a more relaxed existence. He has lately been embroiled in that sometimes incredible federal-Quebec dispute over cablevision rights.

Student forced to study for knife-wielding chum

TOKYO (AP) — A college student escaped from an apartment Thursday after being held at knifepoint for four months by a room-mate who wanted him to take college entrance exams in his place, police said.

They said Yoshio Sakakibara, 23, was cut in the hand by his 18-year-old room-mate, but fled when the room-mate fell asleep.

The room-mate, who was not identified because of his age, forced Sakakibara to study 12 hours a day, and warned him if he escaped he would get gangsters to kill him.

Sakakibara also said that if he dozed during the 12-hour study periods, the room-mate would touch a lighted cigarette to his body and hit him on the head.

Air-sea rescuers spot missing ship

VANCOUVER (CP) — Air-sea rescue officials said Thursday that a Canadian research vessel reported overdue on a voyage between Kodiak, Alaska, and Prince Rupert has been found.

They said the ship was located Thursday afternoon about 180 miles west of Cape Flattery, Wash., and was en route to Vancouver.

Rescue officials said the MV Parry, an 89-foot vessel under contract with British Petroleum, had mechanical and electrical problems, and had bypassed Prince Rupert.

The Vancouver-based ship has a five-member crew, all from Vancouver.

Second blast hits building

LONDON (UPI) — A bomb exploded in the heart of London's west end Thursday night. Police said at least three persons were injured.

The blast occurred in P. Brown, a men's wear store on Oxford Street. The building was also bombed in September.

THE VICAR, I'm afraid, is up to his butt in alligators.

The Rev. Alan Harrison is the vicar of St. Francis, Bournemouth in England and he recently ruffled a whole lot of feathers by publishing a parody of the 23rd Psalm in the parish magazine. It was an anti-union parody and trade unions reacted with predictable bile and if you will peruse the vicar's efforts, you will understand why.

One top union official called it "utter rubbish, hypocritical and stupid".

The vicar said he published the article because he felt it showed how trade unions could be abused.

Herewith, the offending parody.

THE UNION is my shepherd, I shall not work.

It maketh me to lie down on the job, it leadeth me beside the still factories.

It restoreth my insurance benefit.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of unemployment, I will fear no recrimination, for the union is with me; its restrictive practices and shop stewards, they comfort me.

It prepareth a works committee for me in the presence of my employers. It anointeth my hand with pay raises and my bank balance runneth over.

Surely work bonuses and union control shall follow me all the days of my life and I shall dwell in a council house forever.

A Mr. Ron Chapman, an organizer for the Transport and General Workers' Union, was the most vociferous attacker of Vicar Harrison's parody.

"IT JUST SHOWS how little the church understands trade union matters," he said. "It is extremely foolish to generalize like this.

"I'm very dismayed at the stupidity. It was even more stupid than I imagined the church could be."

Another union official, a Harry Whatmough, added his objections.

"IT IS DIFFICULT to assess the mentality of someone who would do such a thing.

"In any case, who has a tighter control over its members than the church? They preach that you can't gain entrance to Heaven without being a member and if that isn't a closed shop, then what is? This is only a biased view, the mutterings of a disgruntled person who knows nothing about his subject."

Anyway, the battle lines have been drawn and although no pickets have been evidenced at the vicar's church, the guessing is the weekly take home from the offering plate has dropped considerably since the publication of the offending article . . .

A SHORT communique from a Mr. Archie Duffie in St. Lambert, Quebec. I recently wrote a piece based on a previous letter from Mr. Duffie, re the French-only signs on many of the major highways in that province.

"I noticed last weekend that not all the signs on the Eastern Township autoroute are in French only. Some are in impeccable English.

"They would be the ones that inform the driver he is approaching a toll booth, of which there are five at a quarter apiece on an 80-mile stretch of throughway.

"All the other roadside markers are in the language of the Quebec majority, but they're not taking any chances on the signs that tell us to get our vingt-cinq-sous ready." . . .

ANOTHER recent article dealt with the possibility of a new cure for baldness, which, naturally, sent my spirts soaring. The only hitch appears to be that this new process is still in the testing stage and might not hit the marketplace for many months.

However, I have been told to take the contents of a bottle of gin, pour into a bowl and mix in a chopped up raw onion. Let sit for an hour and then apply the potion — vigorously — to the bald spots. Continue daily until new hair breaks through. The smell, I'm afraid, might do a lot of people in . . .

WE HAVE all the talk about the commonsense of using safety belts in our automobiles and I guess there can be little doubt remaining about the practicality of it all. It does save lives. But a reader calls in to wonder about the safety factor in some of the camper trucks, that ply our highways. Points out there is too often a lack of safety in that little bunk up behind the driver and that youngsters, lying in those bunks could be badly injured in an accident, whereas the driver, with proper seat belt harness, might be okay. I'm sure it is a valid point, but I think the only way to attack it at this time is to educate the driver to the danger and let him make sure nobody is in that bunk while the car is out there on the highway.

CDC dangles dividend hike for the last 10 days by criticism of the proposed offering.

A major critic has been Eric Kierans, former president of the Montreal Stock Exchange, who called the CDC prospectus for the share issue incomprehensible. There had also been reports the proposal was getting a poor response among Quebec investors.

Kierans said the CDC has misled the public by claiming the dividend for shareholders was adequately covered.

The CDC countered by saying that while the dividend could not be guaranteed, the corporation had $300 million in government capital which would be lost first.

Reaction to the changes among Canadian brokers generally was favorable. One, Jim McConnell, salesman for Pitfield, MacKay, Ross and Co. Ltd. of Vancouver, predicted the issue would be oversubscribed by today.

E. C. Drake, vice president of C. M. Oliver, of Vancouver, observed: "Offers that were tentative the other day are now decidedly firm."

Schoolboy dies

PAKISTAN (UPI) — A primary school student in Karachi got a beating from his teacher when he failed to remember the previous day's lesson, a common practice in Pakistani schools. Lal Bakhsh, 11, died shortly after his teacher hit him in the chest. Police arrested the teacher.

RISING COSTS FORCE GAS RATE INCREASES

Due to substantial increases in the price of butane and other rising costs, rates for Greater Victoria gas customers will be increased by 50 per cent, effective with the first full billing period after August 31.

New firm rate for homes and businesses in Greater Victoria	Present rate same category
First 2 therms or less per 2 month period $3.00	$2.00
Next 18 therms per period @ 42 cents	28 cents
Next 20 therms per period @ 36 cents	24 cents
Next 60 therms per period @ 30 cents	20 cents
All additional per period @ 21 cents	14 cents

Why?

Sharp increases in the price of butane have required higher rates for B.C. Hydro's gas customers. Butane is a basic component of the liquid petroleum gas-air used in Greater Victoria. Since 1971, the price of butane has risen from 7.5 cents per gallon to 23.6 cents per gallon, or to three times the 1971 price.

In addition, the Victoria gas system faces inflationary pressures due to increased costs of labour, materials and interest. Despite the higher rates, Hydro's Victoria gas system will continue to operate at a loss. The last gas rate change in Greater Victoria, a reduction, occurred in 1967.

COMPARATIVE HEATING COSTS FOR HOMES IN THE VICTORIA AREA

Floor Area (Sq. Ft.)	Annual Bill (Heating Only)			Annual Bill (Heating & Water Heating)
	Gas	Oil	Electric	Gas	Oil	Electric
800	$250	$189	$185	$320	$269	$279
1200	$325	$283	$277	$390	$363	$386
1600	$395	$378	$327	$460	$458	$441
2000	$465	$473	$413	$535	$552	$532
2400	$535	$566	$485	$605	$647	$617

The above comparisons are examples only. Use by individual customers varies with area, type of residence, number in family, living habits. Comparative cost figures for electric heating are based on R20/R12 ceiling and wall insulation standards. Oil and gas heating costs are based on lower R7/R7 insulation standards.

Costs shown include sales tax.

How will individual customers be affected?

There are 500 residential gas heating customers and about 4,000 residential non-heating gas customers in Greater Victoria. For most customers the average monthly increases for the former will range approximately from $4 to $12 and for the latter, approximately from $1 to $5.

The new Victoria gas rates announced by Hydro follow a trend of rising energy costs that is prevalent throughout North America.

Costs of gas, oil, electricity and other fuels all have been rising in recent years across the continent. Saskatchewan Power Corporation, for example, has just announced an increase in natural gas rates for residential customers averaging 47%. This follows a 12 per cent increase introduced last fall. Natural gas rates also have increased during the past year in Montreal, Toronto, Seattle, Portland and many other cities.

British coal miners back pay restraints

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain's powerful coal miners' union voted Thursday in favor of Prime Minister Harold Wilson's policy of pay restraints to reduce inflation.

Despite calls from several of their leaders to push for higher wages, 60 per cent of members voted to support the limit of $12.90 a week on wage increases.

Egypt ready for pact

JERUSALEM (AP) — United States State Secretary Henry Kissinger flew back to Jerusalem on Thursday with the assurance that Egypt is prepared to sign an interim nonaggression pact with Israel.

The secretary made a complete Egypt-Israel shuttle in one day so he could have full talks with Israeli leaders before the beginning of the Jewish sabbath at sundown today.

Before Kissinger left Alexandria, Egyptian President Answar Sadat told him, "On our part there is no hesitation at all." He added there is "a good possibility" that the accord might be initialled Sunday or Monday.

When asked if he saw any last-minute problems for Egypt that might block an agreement, Sadat replied: "No, I don't see anything at all."

Sadat's spokesman, Tahseen Bashir, told reporters later that "good pogress was achieved, more tangible than yesterday, but there still are one or two problems that await resolution."

He added that Kissinger would return to Alexandria tonight or Saturday morning for the fifth visit in his current shuttle diplomacy.

Sadat's optimism was matched in Israel, where reporters were told the pact might be effectively wrapped up by the time Kissinger returned to Jerusalem.

Before Kissinger left Israel for Egypt on Thursday, Israeli planes raided suspected Arab guerrilla targets in southern Lebanon.

Union chief to help end coal strike

CHARLESTON, W.Va., (UPI) — Jailed union leader Sim Howze was set free Thursday, promising a federal judge he would "do all I can" to obey the court's order to end a wildcat strike in Appalachia that has idled about half the nation's soft coal miners.

Howze was handed a 60-day jail term, but served only six days after his United Mine Workers local ignored a back-to-work order last week in Logan county, where the strike flared Aug. 11. His jailing further aggravated the strike which began over the firing of a miner.

The more you know about whisky, The better for OFC 8-Year Old.

In between 2 and 12 years, at one point in aging, like everything else in life, Canadian whisky reaches "The Prime of Life": golden, mellow, smooth and full bodied.

In our opinion, 8 years old is "Prime."

That's why OFC 8-Year Old is 8 years old. And only 8 years old.

You can drink younger whisky or older whisky but you can't drink finer whisky than OFC 8-Year Old.

Its taste is so smooth it takes no getting used to.

Top U.K. police against execution

TORONTO (CP) — A high-ranking British policeman took a firm stand against capital punishment Thursday in a speech to the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police, which wants the death penalty fully restored in this country.

Sir Robert Mark, commissioner of police at Scotland Yard, told the association's annual conference.

"It is too high a price to pay for the demonstrable ineffectiveness of the judicial system . . . I am therefore opposed to the death penalty and so are most of my senior and most experienced colleagues."

Commissioner in London since 1972 and a veteran of 38 years in police work, he said removal of this "irrevocable punishment" from the statues would pave the way for progressive law reform.

The death penalty was abolished in Britain in late 1965. Although hanging still is the penalty prescribed for killers of on-duty police and prison guards in Canada, the cabinet has commuted all death sentences since 1962.

Eight men still are under sentence of death in this country, but Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said this week that he did not think anyone will ever be hanged in Canada again.

In a low-key draft resolution prepared for this year's conference, the association said it is reasserting its "support of capital punishment in all cases upon conviction for the crime of murder."

Sir Robert, in his speech, said the total number of homicides annually in England and Wales is about 600, less than the number that occur in Detroit each year.

"Most of these homicides are domestic or unpremeditated or occur in circumstances in which the death penalty certainly would not apply."

He said later in an interview that he believed in capital punishment for the first 28 years of his career.

"Mind you, it wasn't for any religious or moral reasons I changed by mind. It was only because of the inconsistencies that I saw."

Suspicion of corruption

THE SUSPICION THAT CANADIANS in high places accepted bribes from the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. will remain as long as the federal authority dodges the responsibility of full investigation.

On Aug. 26 the Security and Exchange Commission of the United States and the Senate banking committee announced a decision to pursue a full inquiry. It would be directed towards alleged "kickback" practices by the Lockheed Corporation in promoting sales outside the United States; bribery, to put it bluntly, of "foreign officials and political parties."

Air Canada's airy statement that its officials "do not accept payments from aircraft builders" is no satisfactory answer to the charge of widespread improbity.

The frank admission of Lockheed that it has paid out $22 million in bribes to officials and politicians over the past four or five years to win huge sales contracts must disturb Canadians aware that this country has spent millions on TriStar jet aircraft for the publicly-owned fleet and that there are options for the purchase of substantial additions of these carriers.

Moreover, there is the program of replacement of the defence department's long-range patrol aircraft, which might involve an expenditure of as much as $1 billion and for which Lockheed is a bidder.

When Senator William Proxmire, chairman of the U.S. Senate banking committee, asked D. J. Haughton, Lockheed's chairman of the board, "What were the amounts of payments with respect to the sale of the L-1011 (TriStar) made to Air Canada?" the answer should have shaken the composure of the federal authority.

There was no angry denial of such payments, not even an attempt at cautious evasion. Mr. Haughton said bluntly: "I prefer not to answer."

The implication is obvious.

Senator Proxmire's subsequent question and Mr. Haughton's answer were even more disturbing.

"Would you name the recipients of such payments or the government officials or political organizations that received payments in regard to the sale of the L-1011 to Air Canada?"

"I prefer not to answer that," Mr. Haughton responded.

John Diefenbaker, former Conservative leader and prime minister, has called for an immediate investigation by the RCMP.

The government — at the time of writing — has stolidly ignored him.

Warren Allmand, the solicitor general, says there will be no inquiry unless it is requested by Jean Marchand, minister of transport.

It might be thought that Mr. Marchand would be anxious to clear the air, that Defence Minister James Richardson would be eager to take steps to reassure Canadians there would be no jiggery-pokery over his department's future contracts, or even that Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau might be moved to demand, from his holiday retreat, that an immediate investigation should be carried out.

Unless the government acts in this instance, and quickly, it will inevitably give rise to the suspicion that there is something to hide, that there is something scandalous about the Lockheed transactions with this country that it would be politically injudicious to disclose.

"You're in big trouble now, Mad-Dog—violation of your day-leave is going to lose you a lot of privileges!"

Shock's the word

AT THIS TIME last year holiday weekenders were being advised to stay out of the woods because of hot weather fire hazards. The message for this Labor Day celebration is to "stay out of the woods" in driving.

Come rain or hail, and the possibilities are by no means remote with the way the weather has been behaving of late, the roads still will be busier than usual with holiday travel and more hazardous than ever.

There will be continuing disregard of the speed laws, nevertheless, with resulting death, destruction and misery. The "it-can't-happen-to-me" attitude prevails.

In one attempt to overcome it, a group of citizens of Prince George embarked on a "shock campaign" known as Carnage after a particularly bad accident weekend early in July when seven young people died in road accidents in and around the interior city.

And it appears to be having an effect.

In the month following there was only one road fatality, and accidents over-all were down 50 per cent from the corresponding period last year.

Carnage includes representatives from the local hospital, the morgue, police and ambulance crews and the media, and its methods are blunt.

"A no-holds-barred shock campaign was the only thing we could think of doing," says Dr. Tully Chambers, a surgeon member of the Carnage team.

It includes a continuing series of articles in the daily Prince George Citizen newspaper by group members who often deal with auto accidents in their jobs. They describe the horrifying realities — the blood, burns and agony, and the grief of family and friends of victims.

There has been a series of local television shows featuring graphic films, too, and straight-from-the-shoulder verbal descriptions of the maiming that comes from "it can't-happen-to-me" driving.

RCMP Sgt. Sandy Fraser points to the slowing down of the area's accident rate and says shock's the word. People feel invulnerable in cars and "We show them that at 60 miles an hour many cars give about as much protection as an eggshell."

Carnage hopes to develop new approaches before residents become immune to the shock treatment. A program is planned for presentation to school children approaching driving age.

While Parliament's away

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

It happens every year, the dead-stop August silence on Parliament Hill.

If it wasn't for the tourists and the pigeons, the great sandstone and marble Centre Block would make a splendid mausoleum.

Makes you wonder every year if Parliament, after all, is dispensable ... or indispensable.

Things happen and then nothing happens as a result.

And then he vanished into the Gatineau Hills, the Laurentiens and the wilderness of the canoe country.

The rest of the cabinet dropped from sight and sound into holiday haunts, with only Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey and Science Minister Bud Drury breaking the cover of privacy ... and even they avoided the phone.

And if anybody bothered to look, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield wasn't in sight. Not that it made that much difference.

But still things happened ... and then nothing happened.

Like former Master of the Royal Canadian Mint, Gordon Hunter, as good as saying — even making it pretty clear in writing — that Supply and Services Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer had nagged him into the desperation of premature retirement.

Gordon Hunter just happened to be one of the federal bureaucracy's best brains — he had to be, since in his day he had been financial adviser to the late, great C. D. Howe, former Prime Minister Mackenzie King's "minister of everything."

Gordon Hunter took for 36 years whatever a succession of cabinet bosses through Prime Ministers King, St. Laurent, Diefenbaker, Pearson, and for a time, Trudeau, could dish out.

But he couldn't take Jean-Pierre Goyer.

For Goyer, although he had to know less about the Mint than Hunter, insisted on staffing and equipping it.

He pushed bilingualism in the new Winnipeg Mint to the point where he pushed out the Master.

And Goyer got away with it.

Just like he got away with saying, when he was solicitor general, that rehabilitation of the criminal was more important than protection of society.

Then Jean-Pierre Goyer, for encores, proclaimed that the government's cheque clearing centre — it processes 130 million federal cheques annually — would be uprooted from Ottawa and transplanted in Matane, on the remote Gaspe.

The Ottawa operation is bilingual.

In Matane it will be unilingual French.

A staff of 230 is involved.

Jean-Pierre says the 230 can move to Matane or new government jobs will be found for them in Ottawa — with, of course, a tick entered against them in their personnel file indicating "resistance to transfer" with all that means to future promotion.

And then, all in a matter of a few days came that controversial Senate appointment for Prime Minister Trudeau's storm-centered chief of staff, Jack Austin.

Any other time but August with Parliament not merely on holiday, but in a very real sense completely copped out, there would have been a royal Canadian uproar.

There have been charges — in Parliament and out — that Jack Austin, a West Coast mining promoter and former federal deputy energy minister, had used the prime minister's office, phones and letterhead in fighting a personal tax dispute.

He denied any conflict of interest, claiming with candor that the government couldn't recruit "virgins with experience" for business-related top bureaucratic jobs.

In a word, Jack Austin, saying he was no "virgin," clearly couldn't remain as Trudeau's chief of staff.

So the prime minister put him beyond reach, safe in the Senate, insulated from political reproach, cozy on a fat public-paid salary for 32 easy years and then the final reward of a fine pension.

But nobody said boo — for there wasn't anyone around to say anything.

The Montreal mayor's Olympic poker game

By LINDA HASLER
the London Observer

Your host for the 1976 summer Olympics will be Mayor Jean Drapeau, the man who confounded the skeptics nearly a decade ago staging the memorable Expo 67 world's fair.

Drapeau, who first became mayor of Canada's biggest city 21 years ago, has all the drive and public relations skill to bring the sporting world to his doorstep. He never takes no for an answer. He likes to be a winner at all costs. Indeed, at a time when other mayors in North America are lowering their sights to stave off bankruptcy, he stands out as the last of the Olympian spenders.

It is this latter trait that has put governments and taxpayers on the red alert with less than a year to go in the Olympic countdown. COJO, the Olympic organizing body technically responsible for paying the bills, finds that it simply cannot keep up with the spending rate set by Drapeau. But the committee, possibly due to Drapeau's formidable pressure on it, is not yet desperate enough to sell itself short.

This is why it has just rejected the European Broadcasting Union's $9,300,000 offer for overseas television rights as being only half what it needs. COJO says this offer is "considered no better than the first offer of $5,200,000 for Europe."

The committee has chosen to ignore the urgent pleading of Britain's Sir Charles Curran, acting on behalf of the consortium which represents West and East Europe, Asia, Latin America and the Arab states. Sir Charles insists that the end of September is the deadline by which broadcasters must begin to develop their plans, but COJO is not impressed by his logic.

"All the equipment has already been ordered and whether they sign or not, it will all be able to be in place," the committee claims.

So it is waiting for the EBU to play the next card, confident that the price for TV will be better than what has been offered.

This great controversy over television rights is just one vignette in the continuing saga of Olympic finances, which Drapeau calls a game of poker.

Drapeau, who works best underground, surfaced in 1973 to balance perfectly the budget costs and anticipated revenue at $310 million. But a Quebec parliamentary committee appointed to ferret out the true figures learned last January what it feared most: the Olympics would cost much more than they earned. The committee's last report in mid-July projected a cost of $730 million — up 235 per cent since 1973. Of this, $643 million is for construction or improvement, $87 million for operations.

It is now clear that the deficit could run as high as $312 million.

Drapeau remains "convinced that self-financing is going to work" but already the city is huffing and puffing to meet the weekly construction payroll. In the last two weeks of July the provincial construction decree declaring this time a holiday for hardhats was waived to recover time lost by strikes. This meant paying the workers for double time, and cost an extra $5 million.

A fortnight ago Drapeau asked the city council to authorize the borrowing of another $116 million in short-term loans, hiking the total of requests to $612 million in two years. All this has required changes in the city's charter, nearly doubling the borrowing ceiling. The mayor's critics ask how the big new 90-day loans plus interest can be repaid when Montreal is spending $20 million to $25 million a month on the Olympics alone?

Of the major programs expected to earn revenue only the Olympic lotteries are ahead of expectations. The coin and stamp programs are falling quite shy. With only nine draws scheduled, each averaging a net of $11 million, the provincial government of Quebec will surely have to extend the lottery well past the games as Munich did after the last Olympics.

Some of the huge cost increase is attributable to inflation but much can be traced to the policies of the mayor in negotiating contracts through his office; all competitive pricing through public tender has been by-passed. And many cost-plus contracts have been signed to ensure that the work gets done on time.

Some contracts have shot up by over 400 per cent: a welding contract went from $688,000 to $2,900,000 because of a "poor estimate" made last February.

Of prime concern is the stadium complex designed by Drapeau's choice architect, Roger Taillibert. His initial estimate of $60 million has climbed to $375 million — up 630 per cent. This alone accounts for three-quarters of the building expenses. And the architect's fee is hovering around $18 million.

Even if the reluctant federal and provincial governments do rescue the city before its financial demise, the job will still have to be done by the taxpayer — unless somebody comes up with a novel scheme worth several hundred million dollars.

There is only one man in Canada whose schemes are that novel: Drapeau, who has privately suggested a gambling casino on the top of the 16-storey tower overlooking the stadium.

Washington Calling

The sinister web of crime

By MARQUIS CHILDS

The roots of crime in America go deep, as two incidents make painfully evident.

Over past decades the Teamsters Union has substantially raised the level of the men who drive the gargantuan trucks across the country. Both in pay and in working conditions they have made great gains as the trucks took over and the railroads were pushed into secondary status.

But this was done at a heavy cost in crime and violence, with the disappearance of James Hoffa as the latest and most glaring episode. With little supervision, and that apparently easy to frustrate, the power grabbers in the union hierarchy fought for big stakes.

The teamsters' pension fund is said to total close to $2 billion. Hoffa, fighting to be top-dog again after his prison sentence and the curb imposed by his probation, took $1 million out of the fund, according to one story since his disappearance.

Who controls that fund, and how, is one of the mysteries still unsolved, with large loans to hotels in Las Vegas — where the hand of the Mafia, linked to huge gambling revenues, is not hard to detect.

The second incident is the kidnapping of Samuel Bronfman 2nd, son of Edgar Bronfman who controls a whisky empire, for a record ransom.

We set records in these things.

The reported demand was $4.6 million for the release of the grandson and namesake of the founder of the family fortune.

The first Samuel Bronfman went to Canada in 1889 to escape czarist anti-semitism. He built up a flourishing business as hotel owner, horse trader and liquor distributor.

But it was his son Sam who began the accumulation of massive wealth in the distilling business. Next door to Canada, the United States was caught in the folly of prohibition. This meant bonanza prices for whisky smuggled across the border.

Bronfman's Distillers Corporation-Seagrams got several million gallons through the barriers in 1928 and '29. When the Canadian government put a stop to such illegal exports, the stuff was sent to the United States by way of the French island of St. Pierre, off the coast of Nova Scotia.

In this country, it is hardly necessary to add, the whisky was taken over by bootleggers big and small who were catering to the appetites of all of us flouting the prohibition law. That was the origin of the gangsterism that spread far beyond liquor to penetrate respectable business.

The leader was Al Capone who could be convicted only because he had failed to pay an income tax on his fabulous gains. The United States sued the Bronfman distillers for $60 million in taxes and duties they were charged with avoiding in the prohibition years. This was eventually knocked down to $3 million and Samuel Bronfman paid half of that.

Samuel had begun to consolidate his dominating position in the liquor business in this country. With the acquisition of other distilling companies and big names in whisky, this has grown to such a size that the company, Seagram, Ltd., in the last reported fiscal year had net sales of $1.840 billion. Edgar M. Bronfman, head of the company, is said to be one of the wealthiest men in the world.

The whisky business is entirely respectable, although it is perhaps not out of line to note that alcohol is a drug and a dangerous drug. There are an estimated 10,000,000 alcoholics in the United States and it may not be unfair to ask how much high-pressure advertising has contributed to this tragic statistic.

The Bronfmans live the life of the very rich. In our age of crime and violence, they barricade themselves in their estates in Westchester County and lofty, heavily secured apartments on New York's East Side. The kidnapping of 21-year old Samuel was an accident that could have been prevented only if he had lived a restricted life constantly under guard.

His friends at Williams College describe him as pleasant, mild-mannered, good at sports and in other school activities. A chance victim, one could only hope that he would be restored unharmed to his family as he was.

A Jimmy Hoffa, a hard-fighting union power broker who came up the hard way, could hardly differ more from Samuel Bronfman, the sheltered son of enormous wealth. But the coincidence of their disappearance underscores the sinister web of crime beneath the surface of American life.

The Quebec Bridge on the St. Lawrence River, six miles above Quebec City, collapsed 68 years ago today — in 1907 — carrying 75 workmen to their deaths. The bridge was started in 1900 as the world's largest cantilever bridge. After the tragedy, construction started again and both cantilever spans were completed when the centre span, as it was being hoisted into position Sept. 11, 1916, fell into the river taking the lives of 13 workmen.

Bitter rivalry in Asia

Chinese, Russians tense

By DENIS WARNER from Canberra

A sign of the times is the new round of jokes in Russia about the Chinese.

The latest and best is an updated version of the good news-bad news story that circulated about the time Russia was moving into space — and into singular ill humor with its former ally in Peking.

One of Brezhnev's aides went in to see him early one morning and reported that he had both good news and bad news. Brezhnev thought he would like to hear the bad news first.

"The Chinese have landed on the moon," said the aide.

Brezhnev clasped his head in his hands and asked what could possibly be good after that.

"All of them," said the aide.

The current story goes like this: Brezhnev is working late in the Kremlin when the chief security guard comes breathlessly into his office to tell him that people are setting up tents in the Red Square. Brezhnev, busily occupied with the affairs of state, tells the officer not to bother him with such details.

Night after night, the officer returns and each time Brezhnev brushes him away. "But Comrade Leonid Ilyich, there are hundreds of thousands of them," says the guard.

"So what?" asks Brezhnev.

"But Comrade," the guard protests, "they are all eating with chopsticks!"

The Chinese refer to Brezhnev these days as a new Hitler, and the press is again accusing the Soviet Union of threatening to launch a preemptive attack and of stepping up mobilization and plans for a war of aggression.

Not since 1969, when the two countries exchanged shots on the Ussuri River, have relations been worse. Instead of rejoicing in socialist unity at the victory of their allies in Indochina, they have fallen out even more sharply over the spoils.

The latest admission by the Vietnamese that though the Russians will not have a formal base at Cam Ranh Bay, they will be free to use the installations, has created new tensions between Peking and Hanoi. For better or worse, Vietnam is very much in the Russian camp.

Russia has moved quickly to promise substantial quantities of economic aid for postwar reconstruction and many Soviet ships have been delivering supplies to South Vietnamese ports. Gasoline soared to $8 a gallon before Russian supplies arrived in Saigon to ease the shortage.

The Russians have also become extremely active in Laos, where their Vietnamese allies, in deliberate contravention of now forgotten agreements, still have 30,000 troops.

A new aid program to Indonesia, which continues to decline to resume diplomatic relations with Peking, is modest but given on attractive terms. As a counter, the Chinese insisted on including a reference to great power hegemony in the communiques issued when they entered into diplomatic relations with Thailand and the Philippines.

They are determined to insert a similar clause in the peace treaty with Japan. But the Russians have kicked up such a fuss that the Japanese are now in an acute dilemma: They can go ahead with the treaty on the terms demanded by the Chinese only at the risk of destroying whatever hopes there may be of reaching agreement with the Russians.

OPINION

Since there is no prospect of any improvement in Russian and Chinese relations in the foreseeable future, this bitter rivalry must be expected to continue, and even to become worse, though the risk of war is probably not very great. It would become greater, in the Chinese view, if the United States, in the wake of its defeats in Indochina, were to withdraw from Asia.

Thus, Peking is very muted in its criticism of the American presence in the Indian Ocean and South Korea, very anxious to see American presence generally maintained, and, above all, to see that the American shield is not removed from Europe, since the more the Soviet Union is required to maintain its garrisons there, the fewer troops it will be able to spare for the China border.

If all of this is far removed from the era of peace and neutrality that the optimists expected to follow the end of the war in Indochina, the scene in East Asia is beginning to settle down into a sort of disorderly stability.

There has been some increase in the level of insurgency in Thailand and Malaysia, but the feared flood of weapons to other Southeast Asian states from Vietnam does not yet seem to have begun to flow, and while the Russians are influential, perhaps never will.

The two Koreas preserve an uneasy peace, and the United States with their arms aid for Indonesia and their firm guarantees to South Korea and Japan have relieved many fears that an American retreat might follow the collapse in Indochina.

It is not exactly a picture of peaceful serenity, but it is about the best that might have been expected after what Lee Kuan Yew in Singapore called the "unmitigated disaster" of the fall of Saigon.

In tiny Macao

Governor seeks reform

By RUTH YOUNGBLOOD from Macao

The blare of rock music mingles with a baby's wail from the rickety one-room house at the edge of the muddy water.

"No fotografia," painted sloppily on one worn wooden wall, welcomes visitors to the Chinese border.

"This is as far as we go," the guide says, an oft-repeated warning to curious tourists in this 10-square-mile Portuguese territory tucked into the Pearl River estuary on the Chinese Coast.

Buoys in the narrow canal mark the border. A Portuguese patrol boat guards the Macao side and its Chinese counterpart is visible in the distance, against the grassy plain of Canton.

Macao, the 400-year-old former haunt of pirates, the Orient's richest port until mud silted up the harbor, the "sin city" of the 1930s, has launched a program of political and economic development to alleviate some of its problems.

The world recession plunged Macao's major industries, tourism and gambling, into crisis lows. Unemployment rose and rumors spread that Portugal might abandon the colony. Incomes average less than $100 a month.

But the strife that has plagued the Portuguese territories of Angola and Timor has left Macao untouched.

The colony's 35-year-old governor, Col. Garcia Leandro, has in less than a year established himself as the architect of Macao's reforms.

He has planned a massive industrial complex on Coloane, one of Macao's two islands, to lure more foreign investors to the colony and provide badly needed jobs. The plan calls for a container wharf, a dockyard and several factories.

The project, which has government approval, will include extensive public facilities — a post office, fire station, health department, a school, and up to 2,000 housing units. The entire package is expected to cost around $30 million.

Government officials say the project would lure many workers to the island, easing the strain of the overpopulated City of Macao.

On the political side, Leandro is interested in bringng the colony's 240,000 Chinese inhabitants into the decision-making process. Only 7,467 Portuguese and small contingents from European and other countries live in the territory.

"Once the people have a greater say in their own affairs the Portuguese flag will continue to fly and the territory will remain officially a Portuguese possession," Leandro says.

Leandro claims to be dedicated to removing "the last vestiges of colonialism from Macao." He announced the formation of an 18-man legislative assembly to include both Portuguese and Chinese. He hopes to hold elections by the end of the year.

Still, Macao's Chinese, no matter what the government says, tend to feel that Peking exercises an informal veto over all key Portuguese decisions concerning the tiny enclave.

But Leandro emphasizes that Macao is "an unusual case". A report published in the United States saying Portugal had offered to return Macao to China and Peking rejected the offer was a "joke" and "nonsense", the governor said.

Dolphin, porpoise being hunted, too

By ROBERT MUSEL from London

The giant whales are dramatic mammals and naturally enough the fight to save them from extinction has caught the public's imagination.

So despite the threat that still exists to some of the biggest beasts that ever lived, principally from the whaling fleets of Japan and Russia, there is at least some progress towards a more sensible whaling policy.

But John Burton says the plight of the large whales has led a great many people to overlook the fact that their small relatives are in peril as well. Unless measures are taken soon, he said, they may go the way of the big whales.

Writing in the magazine New Scientist, Burton, who is natural history adviser to Friends of the Earth, says that as the size of the populations of large whales declines, dolphins and porpoises are becoming the targets for the whaler.

"The situation is made more dangerous because the history of exploitation of the great whales is well documented," he wrote, "whereas the smaller species have, as yet, received little serious consideration even though they have probably been exploited on a smallscale for many more years by local fishing communities."

Burton said the Minke whale catch a decade ago was about 3,000, most of them taken by Norway. By 1973 this figure had jumped to over 9,500, more than half taken in the Atlantic by whalers operating from Norway, Iceland, Greenland, Newfoundland, Japan, Brazil, Korea, South Africa and several other countries.

He said the international whaling commission takes little or no interest in "small" whaling despite the large numbers being killed. Including the smaller toothed whales better known as dolphins and porpoises. They are, he said, a significant part of the world's whale catch.

"Japan not only takes most of the world's great whales but probably the majority of the small whales", he said. "According to Seiji Ohsumi, a Japanese cetacean specialist, 12 species of the toothed whales were currently exploited by the Japanese coastal whaling industries.

"The number taken each year was substantial — over 30,000 in 1959, for example. A total of 300,000 were taken in the period of 1957-70. The catch is apparently declining. In 1970 only 16,000 dolphins were taken."

Burton said hundreds of thousands of dolphins were drowned in tuna fishing nets of the U.S. and other countries — "Ironically the fishermen use the dolphins to lead them to the shoals of tuna". He said public pressure in the United States will probably lead to improved methods of netting and fewer deaths.

"If we accept the evidence that over the years man's whaling interests have consistently turned their attention to smaller and smaller species, as he had consistently overexploited them, then we are forced to accept the fact that in a very short time dolphins and porpoises are going to become the target of a major industry.

"Providing harvesting is done rationally there is no inherent objection to this, though doubtless emotions would run much higher than at present if the U.S.A. or U.K. public thought that dolphins were taken for the pot."

King flays bargaining ploys

labor courts. I think the climate is such that the parties would not accept arbitrary decisions by a third party."

King said he was also convinced that some leaders in industry and in labor "make promises to their principals which they can't deliver, then it becomes a face-saving process where they have to rely on some third party to get them off the hook."

With B.C.'s new labor college scheduled to move into operation this fall, King said he hoped within a reasonable time to be able to change the collective bargaining climate.

The "college" will actually function on the campuses of community colleges throughout the province.

"We are providing labor education in the hope that in a couple of years time it will have an effect on the quality of bargaining," he said. He added that the government was also stepping up programs designed to provide statistical backup material for both sides in a dispute so they could better judge when it is time to call for the assistance of a third party.

"Right now it seems that there is a growing reliance on the third party with some parties involved in disputes appearing to think that unless they have a third party they haven't achieved the most that's available," King said.

Pollen years

tion executive got into an argument. Pollen's remarks cannot be printed, but those who were there, remember them well.

From then on, it was downhill all the way. The station aired daily editorials slamming Pollen and the mayor retaliated by accusing the station of conducting a witch-hunt.

In his unusal style, Pollen didn't stop at that. He called station employees "Blackshirts" and likened its owners to Himmler.

Every bit of criticism, no matter from where it comes, is countered with an all-out attack.

And yet, there is the other side of Pollen.

Anyone who has seen him address a meeting of elderly people — mostly of little old ladies — will swear that he couldn't utter a single harsh word to anyone.

He is genuinely charming, blushes and makes a great hit.

He is well-read and will quickly recognize an issue long before the general public does.

Pollen was the first one to drop the word "ecology" during a meeting of city council in 1970.

When the rest of council still believed that ecology was probably a new convenience food, Pollen called for environmental impact studies of proposed developments.

As quickly as he attacks, he will withdraw if he meets with firm opposition.

After more than a week's lambasting of the press in general and reporters in particular during every open committee and council meeting, I lost my cool one day.

Following a committee meeting, I told the mayor I was sick and tired of his tirade against reporters and that I didn't care if I never had to hear another word from him.

There was a brief exchange of unpleasantries and just when Pollen began to retreat, Ald. Tom Christie stepped in.

Cane raised above his head, Christie went after me shouting, "You don't talk like that to our mayor."

Last I saw of "our mayor" was a Pollen doubling over with laughter while I tried to escape Christie's swinging cane.

"You have to watch that guy," Pollen said later, completely forgetting the incident which had caused it all.

In the privacy of his office, Pollen told me two years ago that he would seriously consider running for the federal NDP.

When the remark appeared in print, he was furious and accused me of smoking the wrong stuff.

He will make wild statements laced with quotes that scream for headlines and then complain that reporting is too sensational.

When he first set out to curb highrise development in Victoria, I saw a chance of spreading the message while, at the same time, earning some freelance money.

Stories about Pollen an dhis battle with "rapacious extrepreneurs" appeared in the Toronto Globe and Mail, the San Francisco Chronicle, the Winnipeg Free Press, the New York Times and other major papers across the continent.

He loved it although he would never admit it. His office was flooded with mail from all over North America, congratulating him on his courageous course.

Pollen's remark to me: "You guys are awful. You build me up to sich an extent that I can never live up to my reputation."

Like most politicians, Pollen has a basic antipathy toward the press.

He once admitted that "I use the press," meaning that he accepts it as a medium to get his message across, but he never has had much liking for reporters.

They are either too dull or too sensational. They are either preoccupied with trivia or out to get him.

"The local papers hate my guts," he once told a visiting journalist.

He didn't mention that some of the top officials of both newspapers may have had reason not to like him.

In his numerous crusades, Pollen also went on a spree against the papers for owning shares in Premier Cablevision, parent firm of Victoria Cablevision.

Not content with pointing out what he believed to be a conflict of interest, Pollen accused the Victoria daily papers of being monopolistic, their publishers of being "recluses," and their owners (FP Publications, Winnipeg) of being a money-grabbing outfit from out of town that doesn't give a damn for Victoria.

He subsequently was genuinely hurt that the papers "don't like me."

Add to all this his opinion of himself — "I'm probably the best mayor the city has had since the war" — and you have the complex man who took on the establishment and won.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's most influential newspaper told its readers Wednesday that Jaws is one of a "flood of movie horrors" inundating the United States.

"Horror movies have been put on an assembly-line basis," said Pravda, the Communist party newspaper correspondent G. Vasilyev writes writes that films showing mass destruction or horror are successful in the United States because they "exploit a sense of fear, do not demand great intellectual effort and promise good profits."

But Vasilyev said U.S. writer Gore Vidal provided the chief reason for the success of such movies. He quoted Vidal as saying: "That which I call the second act of the greatest economic depression the world has ever known has given birth to this tendency of relishing all kinds of troubles and cataclysms."

Pravda says Vidal said it reminded him of ancient Rome where "to let off steam they had a show of lions eating people and gladiators killing each other . . . such movies distract people from their thoughts of the robbery and deceit to which they are subjected daily by oil companies, politicians and banks."

Second batch of charges on docket in PSAC case

Reading of a second set of unlawful-strike charges against Greater Victoria members of the Public Service Alliance of Canada began Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court and is to end this morning with the final charge total reported as 20.

Ten men were charged Thursday morning with unlawful participation in a strike while each was "a designated employee within the meaning of the Public Service Staff Relations Act." Prosecutor Malcolm McMicken and defence lawyer Ronald Tucker said 10 similar charges would be read this morning.

Five charges in the Thursday group were dated "between Feb. 18 and March 4" of this year while three were dated Feb. 18 alone and two March 4 alone.

Tucker entered pleas of not guilty to all charges and indicated he would take the same action today. Judge F. S. Green set the trials for one of the three court sections at 633 Fisgard from Jan. 19 to 26.

In July, 57 PSAC members were charged with unlawful participation in a strike Dec. 19, 1974, and the only difference other than the date was that none of the 57 was "a designated person."

Six pleaded guilty and were fined $50 each while the other 51 pleaded not guilty and had trials set at a rate of two or three a day from Oct. 21 to Dec. 23.

If all trials now scheduled actually take place, one of the three court sections will be filled for 26 working days and that total likely will increase to 31 as of this morning.

The result is that the Victoria Provincial Court backlog, normally 13 to 14 weeks, will be upwards of four months long — by far the longest in its history.

Toronto trading

TORONTO (CP) — Western oil shares recorded their largest gains in more than two months amid a strong advance on the Toronto stock market Thursday. Trading remained light.

Analyst said the advance was in response to figures released Wednesday indicating that Canada is emerging from the recession coupled with sharply higher prices recorded at New York.

Nowsco Well jumped 2¼ to $19½. The company said it will call a shareholders' meeting to consider a two-for-one stock split on its common shares.

Toronto Star B rose ⅞ to $14⅝, Harlequin Enterprises was unchanged at $9⅜ and Western Broadcasting A was unchanged at $9½. Toronto Star announced Wednesday that it has reached an agreement to buy controlling interest in Harlequin Enterprises. Western Broadcasting is the major shareholder with 35-per-cent interest in Harlequin.

Inland Natural Gas, which reported higher net earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30, gained ¼ to $9½.

Toronto Dominion Bank rose ⅝ to $42⅝. The bank reported a higher balance of revenue for the third quarter ended July 31.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market ran up its second biggest gain of the year Thursday with a broadly based rally touched off by hopes for a letup in the rise of interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 22.45 to 829.47 for its largest advance since January.

The NYSE's composite index climbed 1.05 to 45.99.

The upswing had begun in the closing minutes of trading Wednesday after a letter from Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, to House Banking Committee Chairman Henry Reuss (Dem. Wisc.) was made public.

In it Burns said the Fed would continue giving active consideration to buying long-term debt securities — a step the committee had urged with the aim of lowering interest rates in that sector of the credit markets.

Burns said he thought such purchases would have only a modest impact at best.

Among Canadian issues on the New York stock exchange, Alcan and Dome Mines gained ¾ each to $23½ and $43⅝ respectively.

Canadian Pacific rose to $14⅜, Inco to $26⅝, Massey-Ferguson to 16⅜ and Seagram to $30¼. All were up ¼.

Companies to explore again

B.C. increases gas prices

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial cabinet has agreed to raise the price of natural gas paid to British Columbia producers following recommendations by the B.C. Energy Commission, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, the minister in charge, announced Thursday.

Macdonald said no decision has been made yet on raising the consumer price for natural gas, but the energy commission said in a recent report the field increase would likely lead to an 18-per-cent increase for home owners in B.C.

The announcement was made to representatives of the six largest natural gas and oil producers in B.C. and to the press.

The higher price is to increase exploration and development of gas and oil, and William Richards, president of Dome Petroleum Ltd. immediately said the increases would increase exploration by his company.

"These price increases will be effective. I'm sure we'll see action at an early date," he said.

The field price increase is 20 cents a thousand cubic feet for gas in production after Nov. 1, 1974, from a current price of 35 cents a thousand cubic feet.

Gas on stream before Nov. 1, 1974, goes up 15 cents a thousand cubic feet from 20 cents paid now. This increase is subject to the companies first doing 20 cents' exploration for each thousand cubic feet of gas.

The recommendations were in an energy commission interim report on the natural gas and oil industry filed 10 days ago following 25 days of hearings in June.

Macdonald said the cabinet made the fast decision on the price increases so the B.C. Petroleum Corporation could get started soon renegotiating contracts with the producers.

The commission report also recommended the cabinet cut its royalties on oil so the companies would have a net return of $1.50 a barrel. One producer said returns are now between 3 and 30 cents a barrel.

Macdonald said he would make the change as soon as possible.

The report contradicted the provincial government's standing policies and principles on the oil industry, saying royalties were too high.

Macdonald said the government has changed its policies concerning the oil companies, but not its principles.

He admitted prices set by the provincial government for natural gas in the field have been too low and will be reviewed again next spring for possible further increases.

The exploration season in northern B.C. lasts for five or six weeks in the winter because that is the only time the ground is solid enough to support drilling equipment.

Last year no drilling was done during the season because the companies claimed there was no money in it for them.

New lines coming

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia Petroleum Corp. spokesman says development of two additional pipelines to tap known but undeveloped natural gas resources in the province is proceeding and should provide substantial additional supply this winter. The lines will be built by Westcoast Transmission, the carrier of gas contracted for by the Crown corporation.

Improved offering goes in flurry

BY GEORGE GIBSON
Colonist Business Editor

The announcement that Canadian Development Corporation was raising the dividend rate on its coming issue of $100 convertible preferred shares made it an active Thursday morning in Victoria investment houses.

The shares will now come out — likely next Wednesday according to a CDC spokesman in Vancouver, — with an 8 per cent dividend instead of the 7 per cent originally announced.

The shares also will be redeemable five years earlier than had been the original plan, on Oct. 2, 1980 instead of Oct. 2, 1985.

Stock brokers checked here say that their allotments have all been spoken for, with many clients who had been considering the offer making their move to purchase in the Thursday morning activity.

One broker said that the raising of the dividend, combined with the reduction of the redemption period, made the shares better in some respects than a five-year guaranteed investment certificate, which are currently being offered at 10 per cent.

He said that taking the bonus common shares into account, the favorable tax treatment given to those holding the shares would boost their effective yield to 10.8 per cent, even though part of this benefit would be deferred into the future. This would apply to those in higher brackets.

Another broker said that his firm, which had been staying open until 8 in the evening in order to attract some investors, no longer had any need to go to such lengths, so favorable had been the activity Thursday.

The Vancouver spokesman for CDC said that first word of the improved offering had been made from his office. The corporation has been criticized in many areas for having a head office in Vancouver while most of its real activity is carried on in Toronto.

The spokesman added that a board of directors meeting that had been held in Toronto Wednesday would reconvene there next Tuesday morning to complete all the formalities and for the signing of documents by the underwriting group. He said that the final prospectus likely would be printed overnight and the official distribution started.

However, it seems likely that the issue is already all but gone.

Evidence not there

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada officials said Thursday that an internal investigation has uncovered no evidence of kickbacks by Lockheed Aircraft Corp. to any airline employee.

Claude Taylor, Air Canada's vice-president for public affairs, issued a statement denying that any official of the Crown-owned airline ever received bribes or kickbacks from Lockheed.

"The Lockheed Corporation has assured me personally," said Taylor, "that not one cent was paid to any employee of Air Canada at any time."

The question of possible kickbacks stemmed from testimony in Washington Monday by Lockheed chairman Daniel Haughton before a U.S. Senate hearing.

David Pember, a spokesman for the airline, said in a telephone interview with The Canadian Press that Air Canada had completed an exhaustive internal investigation.

"We talked to anybody who was in a position to influence the purchase," he said. "We have a team of more than 100 people who studied the L-1011.

"We found the chance for anyone to do any steering was practically impossible," he added.

"We are now sure that no employees of Air Canada has ever received any payment, bribe, kickback — call it what you will — from any aircraft manufacturer."

Doman sales much better

DUNCAN — An improved third quarter, particularly with regard to sales, is shown in the nine-months financial statement of Doman Industries Ltd., released here Thursday.

The Duncan forestry and transportation firm shows sales to July 31, 1975 of $28.7 million. While this is slightly below the $30.9 million mark shown at the same period last year, it is more than twice the sales total for the first half which was only -10.9 million.

Net earnings a sof July 31 were $1.86 million against $1.91 million last year and earnings per common share, on an undiluted basis, were 57 cents, compared to 60 cents last year.

Commenting on the lumber market, company president Herb Doman stated that the company's main market on the Altantic coast of the U.S. has not been strong and the other export markets to such countries as the U.K. and Japan have been poor.

Doman added that no immediate imprrovement is expected in exports. He added that the Canadian market has been fairly strong but the present shortage of mortgage money, coupled with forecasted higher interest rates is not encouraging.

Cowichan Bay yields new leader

The new leader in the King Fisherman contest chinook section and the largest chinook in 13 years from Cowichan Bay is a 49:2-pounder caught by Ian Bateson, Allenby Road, Duncan.

Bateson was mooching midmorning at Separation Point in Cowichan Bay, using 25-pound test line with a 25-pound test leader. He was using cut plug herring as a lure.

The big chinook put up a tough fight for an hour and 45 minutes before Bateson was able to net it.

Bateson has been having great success mooching in Cowichan Bay waters during the last week and a half. He's managed to hook five chinooks in the 20-30 pound range.

Unfortunately, Bateson is not a Colonist subscriber so he does not qualify for the merchandise prize of a Polaroid color camera courtesy of Colwood Pharmacy, but he does qualify for the King Fisherman trophy for the heaviest chinook of the contest.

Vincent Messina, 1383 Esquimalt Road, Victoria, still holds the lead as the Colonist subscriber with the heaviest chinook — a 47.8-pounder taken at Oak Bay Golf Links Point.

The sports fishing boundaries will be going into effect in Cowichan Bay waters at midnight Monday. They are the same boundaries as last year, according to a fisheries spokesman.

Anglers should keep this in mind when fishing in Cowichan Bay waters.

A lot of people in the Esquimalt Anglers Association have put in a lot of hours of advance work so a lot of fishermen can win prizes in their annual derby Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Proceeds from the big yearly event go to charity and last year, a cheque for more than $3,000 was given to the cerebral palsy organization.

The main draw prize is a 15½-foot boat with a 50-horsepower electric-start outboard. The largest fish caught each day will earn $25 and the biggest in the derby gets $100 with $75 for second, $50 for third and $40 for fourth largest.

Numerous hidden-weight prizes also are on the schedule. Fishing must be in the Trial Island-Race Rocks area, with fish weighed in by boat at the Fleming Beach Ramp.

The Labor Day holiday weekend is an excellent time for tyee anglers to try their skills in the Port Alberni Salmon Festival derby which offers $12,000 in prizes.

Biggest salmon of the derby being held Saturday, Sunday and Monday will win $5,000 and there will be a $500 prize for the biggest fish each day, plus a $500 hidden weight prize each day.

Montreal newspaper:

Ship eyed as casino

MONTREAL (CP) — A spokesman for the National Harbors Board disagreed Thursday with earlier reports that the French superliner France is too large to be brought into Montreal harbor.

The French-language newspaper Le Devoir says the city of Montreal and the Quebec government have taken steps to purchase the luxury liner and turn it into a floating casino in the harbor.

A spokesman for the manager's office at the Port of Montreal said the France could come into Montreal harbor, "provided she was not in full ballast and if one of her high masts was lowered."

Maximum draft of the France is 34 feet, five inches, fully loaded, while the ship channel in the St. Lawrence River to Montreal has "a guaranteed 35 feet of water," he said.

He added there was always a "cushion" of two to nine feet, depending on the season.

Earlier, a spokesman for a major steamship line said the liner was too large to navigate the channel.

Quoting "very reliable sources" in Montreal, Paris and Quebec City, the Le Devoir said part of revenues would be used to offset the city's construction deficit for the 1976 Summer Olympic Games.

Mayor Jean Drapeau is also considering an ultra-rapid rail line to be built between Montreal and New York, "to bring with the greatest of haste to Montreal the American gamblers and convention delegates," the newspaper said.

Soviets okay fish pact

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian and Soviet officials have agreed on measures to protect the Atlantic fisheries that could result in the re-opening of East Coast ports to Russian fishing vessels.

The officials agreed to recommend to their governments the formation of a joint commission to consult on fisheries problems and on steps to bring a halt to fishing, once internationally-set quotas for various stocks are filled.

Harrison credits 'managing' for golf success

By JIM REID

Jim Harrison, who is threatening to make a runaway of the Canadian junior golf championship, is a young man who has it all together.

A business administration major who shifts this fall from Indiana University to Florida State, the six-foot-three Islington, Ont., product displays a maturity, in a game which spawns immaturity in middle-aged men, far beyond his 18 years.

"When you don't have the talent," Harrison says modestly, "you have to manage well."

That Harrison manages better than most players — and has talent as well — has been evident during the first two days of play at Gorge Vale, where he has scored a pair of 72s under conditions far less than favorable.

Management, in Harrison's case, started with a walk around Gorge Vale two days before the tournament got underway, assessing distances and developing a game plan.

And once a game plan is developed, Harrison sticks to it.

"When you have a bad hole, it is so tempting to dig a little deeper into your bag on the next one — to disregard your game plan — but what good is it going to do if you turn over on that shot."

"Golf is such an emotional game that you must maintain an even tempo. You can't be discouraged by a poor hole or jump up and down when you get a birdie. You must keep moving down that fairway at an even pace no matter what."

And how does an 18-year-old get his mind together as Harrison obviously has?

It has to be a combination of making the most of natural talent, desire, eagerness to accept guidance and willingness to make the necessary effort.

Harrison credits John Kindred, a pro from Tallahassee, Florida with an impressive record on the Canadian tour, and veteran Canadian pro Al Balding with having reer.

"Both have impressed on me the benefit of developing my natural swing and making the most of it — and of 'managing' ".

And he believes that he will have a better opportunity to develop his natural swing at Florida State than he did at Indiana where his coach stressed a mechanical approach with which he did not necessarily agree.

Desire is something that Harrison simply accepts.

He admits that golf and girls are his major interests at the moment. But, he says, he could have stayed home and chased girls.

He chose instead to make his first trip west of Ontario to Victoria because he really wants a second Canadian championship more than anything else. Only Robbie Jackson of Quebec, the 1972 and 1973 champion, and Gerry Kesserling of Kitchener, in 1946-47, have scored back-to-back victories.

And a second one-over-par 72 isn't making Harrison complacent or over-confident.

After taking a short lunch break following his Thursday round, he headed to the practice fairway where he spent an hour or so and then moved to the practice green.

"I wasn't putting too well today," Harrison said, although you couldn't tell it by his score.

Harrison isn't sure.

"I played in the recent Canadian amateur and for the first time experienced real pressure. I didn't give myself any relief. After each round, I hit practice shots until dark. By the time it was over my stomach was in a big knot."

Harrison thinks about playing on the tour but —

"If it ceases to be fun, what's the use?"

Defending champ holds six-stroke advantage

By JIM TANG

Jim Harrison is an introspective young man who is schooling himself to take nothing for granted, but others who have been observing what has been happening in the Canadian junior men's golf championship are already more than willing to concede him a second successive championship.

The slender defending champion from Islington, Ont., had everything working again Thursday when he toured the treacherous Gorge Vale layout in a second 72.

Although it wasn't quite as wet Thursday as it was for the opening round, the course was kept extremely soggy by intermittent drizzle and Harrison's 144 for the first 36 holes is an outstanding accomplishment. It's two over the new par established for this tournament but under normal conditions Gorge Vale at 71 is a difficult par.

Harrison is understandably all by himself as the field, reduced to the 78 players who managed 163 or better, heads into the third round. His margin is now six strokes, and his closest rival is Robert Dew of Inglewood, Ont.

Dew, who was rewarded by club members with a championship chance when he shot a record 65 while playing in the championship at the exotically-named Chinquacousy Club, shot a 77 on Thursday.

Bernie Starchuk of Halifax is next at 151, Joe Limoli of the Vancouver Golf Club is at 152.

In a group at 154 and leading the juvenile (16 and under) competition are 16-year-old Jim Rutledge of Victoria and Eric Kaufmanis, a 14-year-old from the Royal Ottawa Golf Club who lives in East Aylmer, Que. Both have had two rounds of 77.

Harrison showed again Thursday that he wasn't just making conversation when he said that the secret of success was to maintain an even pace — not to be upset when things went wrong or become too elated when fortune was good.

He made a bad start for the second time, and he stayed with his game plan. On Wednesday an embarrassing tee shot brought him a double bogey on the fourth and he played sub-par golf the rest of the way. On Thursday, playing the back nine first, he bogeyed the 11th and 12th holes and then played his last 15 holes in one under par.

After his bad start Thursday, Harrison parred six holes and got a stroke back with a birdie on the par-four 17th. He started his last nine with six successive pars. He drew a bogey six on the seventh hole, then showed his cool again with a par on the eighth and a birdie on the ninth which could have been an eagle with a touch of luck.

Harrison almost made the green with his second shot the 488-yard closing hole, took his time in lining up the shot, and had it right on line as the ball hit the stick and left him a putt from about two feet.

A golfer who has the winning knack of being able to recover, Harrison has been over par on only six of his first 36 holes and has had five birdies and 25 pars.

Play today starts at 8:30 a.m. with threesomes leaving the first tee every eight minutes. Harrisn, who has Starchuk and B.C.-champion Jim Goddard as playing partners, goes off at 11:50. Dew is in the threesome immediately ahead, and Rutledge and Kaufmanis are off at 11:34 and 11:26, respectively, to continue their battle for the juvenile championship.

Ontario nabs team title

Alberta couldn't hold on and Manitoba and British Columbia couldn't catch up on Thursday at Gorge Vale, and Ontario became the winner of the Pepsi trophy in the junior inter-provincial team golf match.

It is decided by taking the best three scores from four-player teams during each of the first two rounds of the 72-hole individual championship, and with no one else to match defending-champion Jim Harrison, Ontario, with 458, won by three strokes.

Alberta was second, Manitoba third at 464 and B.C. rallied to finish fourth with 466.

Harrison, in a tremendous achievement in view of playing conditions, shot 72 each day. And on Thursday, he got a big hand from Peter Serafimoff, who came back from being high Wednesday with an 83 to post a 75.

A one-stroke leader after the first round, Alberta failed to hold on when its two top players couldn't match their Wednesday's performances. Provincial-junior champion Roy Abbenbroek went from 76 to 79 and Doug Lecuyer, the Alberta amateur champion, skidded from 74 to 82.

B.C. came back strongly after a disappointing first round, the four players cutting a combined total of 30 strokes off their first-round efforts. But there was 17 strokes to make up and that was only good enough to get within eight.

Bakers square series

BY WILF HURD

Bakers defused the Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League's first-place computer, topping league-champion Burnaby Cablevision 21-15 before a crowd of 1050.

The win knotted the best-of-seven final series with the third game scheduled for tonight at Queens Park Arena. The clubs are back at Esquimalt Sunday, where McDonalds are unbeaten in eight games.

Panic is a state of mind not normally associated with the Cables, but they exhibited none of the poise they showed in sauntering to the league title.

Give credit to the McDonalds, who came up with their best effort of the campaign and obviously surprised the visitors after an anemic display in the opener at Queens Park Arena Tuesday.

Seizing on a weakness for bounce-shots by goaltender Gary Greer, McDonalds whipped in eight first-period goals for an 8-5 edge.

Burnaby did narrow the gap to 9-10 early in the second period, but Victoria exploded for six unanswered goals, chasing Greer in the process and gaining a 16-10 advantage.

McDonalds stunned Cablevision at their own game, moving the ball with precision, and continually hitting the open man as they moved down the floor. Rich Zecchel, who replaced Greer, probably worked harder in his 11 minutes of second-period duty than he has in any period this season.

McDonalds received a six-goal performance from Bob Cool, and three came on productive power-plays. Gerry Cadwallader, Charlie Randall, 17-year-old Tej Labh, King, and Kevin Alexander scored twice.

Bowles, Gloeckner, Joe Mottishaw, Norm Baker, and Steve Hepburn scored once.

Last-minute goal sinks Shamrocks

RICHMOND — Victoria Shamrocks made it closer Thursday night, but they again lacked the finishing touch and now trail 0-2 in the best-of-seven Western Lacrosse Association final.

A goal by rookie Ron Pinder 35 seconds from time brought Vancouver's husky Burrards a 9-8 win before 1937 fans in Richmond Arena.

As was the case Wednesday in Victoria, where Burrards scored the game's last seven goals in a 13-9 win, the Shamrocks faltered near the end. A goal by Pete Rushton in the ninth minute of the final period gave the Islanders a 7-6 lead, but they couldn't hold on and Pinder was all by himself as he went in on George Grover to make the winning shot.

Shamrocks were handicapped by the loss of Jeeven Dillon, who couldn't play because of a hand injury received on Wednesday, and by having to use husky Mike Beaulac sparingly because of an injured back.

Also playing a big part in the decision was the penalty-killing of the Burrards, who didn't allow a goal during a second-period stretch in which they played shorthanded for almost six minutes.

Jerry Kustaski led Shamrocks with two goals and two assists and Tom Somner drew four assists. Pinder, with three goals and two assists, and Bob Salt, with a goal and four assists, were the most-productive Burrards on offence.

The third game of the series is in Victoria Saturday.

Russians in series

TORONTO (CP) — The Russian Ice Hockey Federation has sent the National Hockey League a signed contract agreeing to participate in a series of exhibition games this season, says NHL president Clarence Campbell.

It was the first official word from the NHL, prime mover of the series, had from the Russians concerning games to be played in late December and January between two Russian club teams and several NHL teams in North America.

Approval for the series has yet to be obtained from the NHL Players' Association, which meets in Chicago next week.

Caribous win spot

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Caribous clinched a spot in National Lacrosse League playoffs Thursday by defeating Boston Bolts 14-8.

Top Quebec scorers were Pat Differ, with four goals, and Dave Durante, Robert Bleau and Terry Sanderson, with two goals each.

Wendy, Sally eliminated

OTTAWA — The hopes of two British Columbia girls for titles in the Canadian Junior tennis championships were ended Thursday by top-seeded Wendy Burkhart and Beth Ruman, both of the U.S.

Miss Burkhart romped to a 6-1, 6-0 win over Sally Cates of Vancouver but Miss Ruman was extended to the limit by Wendy Barlow of Victoria before emerging with a 3-6, 6-4, 7-6 victory in the 16-and-under singles semi-finals.

Ploen heads Hall of Fame selections

HAMILTON (CP) — The incomparable Kenny Ploen, who led Winnipeg Blue Bombers to four Grey Cup championships from 1958 to 1962, has been elected to the Canadian Football Hall of Fame, the hall's selection committee announced today.

Ploen, who played 11 seasons at quarterback for the Canadian Football League's Blue Bombers, is one of six persons elected to the hall.

Also elected as players were By Bailey, former star fullback with British Columbia Lions who scored the team's first touchdown in CFL competition; Dick Shatto, who holds 13 club records and numerous CFL marks after a 12-season career with Toronto Argonauts; and Herb Trawick, former offence lineman for Montreal Alouettes who was chosen to the CFL's all-star team a record seven times.

Elected as builders are Lew Hayman, former CFL president and now president of the Argonauts; and Tom Brook, former president of Calgary Stampeders and one of the first to suggest an interlocking schedule between the Eastern and Western conferences.

Ploen started his professional football career by completing an unusual double. He played in a Rose Bowl game and a Grey Cup game the same year — 1957.

He starred as his Iowa University team beat Oregon State 35-19 in the Rose Bowl, but as a rookie quarterback later in the year, the Blue Bombers were defeated by Hamilton Tiger-Cats 32-7.

Ploen was selected all-Canadian in 1965 and shares the record for the longest touchdown pass play in the CFL. He combined on a 109-yard scoring play with Ken Nielson, at Calgary on Nov. 20, 1965.

Bailey, a native of Omaha, Neb., played briefly with Detroit and Green Bay before coming to B.C. for eight seasons as fullback and three more as defensive back.

Bailey ran from scrimmage 783 times in his career for 3643 yards and 26 touchdowns. He now lives in Vancouver and is an official with the CFL Lions.

Bates, Tony's to tangle in winners' final today

OSHAWA — Victoria Bate Construction rode Dave Ruthowsky's three-hit pitching and Bob Burrows booming bat to a 4-1 win over Quebec, Thursday, in the opening game of a double-knockout final series for the Canadian senior men's softball championship.

Bates meet Oshawa Tony's, 4-1 winners over Ontario, in the winners' bracket final at 2 p.m. today.

A double by Bob Holness and Pete Songhurt's single gave the B.C. champions a second-inning lead and after Quebec, represented by Gatineau Thom Construction, got the tying run in the top of the third inning. Ruthowsky slammed the door and Burrows provided the punch which produced a sixth straight win for Victoria.

Burrows cracked a two-run double in the bottom of the third to score Reg Underwood, who had singled, and Carl Walker, who had reached base on an error, and then unloaded a home run, his third of the tournament in the sixth inning.

The host Oshawa club, which clinched second place in the Red Division with a 2-0 win over Newfoundland earlier in the day to qualify for the round-robin play, gave up an early run to previously unbeaten Kitchener Evergreens then staged two-run rallies in the fourth and sixth innings.

Pete Landers, who pitched a no-hitter and struck out 14 batters against Newfoundland, came back to win the nightcap with a four-hitter.

The Kitchener club had completed its round-robin play by defeating Manitoba, 5-1, to finish with a 5-0 record in the Blue Division. Quebec earned the second berth out of that division with a 10-0 romp over Prince Edward Island.

Winner of today's Bates-Tony's game advances to the final at 10 a.m. Saturday while the loser moves to the losers' bracket final at 8 p.m. against the winner of a Quebec-Ontario game, scheduled for this morning.

Reds help Pirates by blanking Cards

Pittsburgh Pirates had a day off Thursday and enjoyed it doubly as their lead in the east division of the National League grew to three and a half games.

Runaway leaders in the west division, Cincinnati Reds gave the Pirates a boost by besting St. Louis Cardinals as Don Gullett pitched a five-hitter for his seventh straight victory, a 4-0 shutout which dropped the Cards into a tie with Philadelphia Phillies.

The Phillies earned a share of second place with an 8-5 win over San Francisco Giants.

Tom Hilgendorf checked the Giants on six hits for seven and a third innings after the Giants had chased Jim Lonborg with three runs on five hits in the first inning. Hilgendorf, who ran his record to six wins in nine decisions, helped his own cause with a run-scoring double in a three-run seventh inning. Tug McGraw pitched the ninth inning and gave up a two-run single to Bobby Murcer.

With San Francisco leading by 3-2, Mike Schmidt started a sixth-inning Philadelphia rally against Jim Barr with a one-out double. He scored on Garry Maddox' triple and Maddox scored the go-ahead run on a double by Johnny Oates. Oates later scored on Dave Cash's grounder.

Cincinnati's margin in the west grew to 18½ games as New York Mets jumped on the Los Angeles Dodgers for a 4-1 win as rookie Mike Vail belted a tie-breaking single in the fifth inning and Del Unser added a two-run homer in the seventh.

Jerry Koosman scattered eight hits for his 11th victory, as the Mets moved to within a game of St. Louis and Philadelphia.

Injunction clears Cuthbertson

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia Supreme Court injunction granted Thursday will put jockey Alan Cuthbertson back in the saddle at Exhibition Park until an appeal is heard against his suspension.

Mr. Justice Lloyd McKenzie granted the injunction against enforcement of the three-day suspension issued by Exhibition Park stewards for an alleged bumping of two horses in last Saturday's Jack Diamond Futurity.

Court officials said it was the first time such an injunction has been granted in Canada although it has been done in the U.S.

The injunction will be in force until the B.C. Racing Commission hears Cuthbertson's appeal against the stewards ruling, possibly on Tuesday.

Cuthbertson's lawyer, Morely Cofman, argued that the suspension would deprive Cuthbertson of the opportunity to ride in Saturday's B.C. Derby Trial and in Monday's S.W. Randall Plate, two races which could prove especially profitable for the jockeys riding in them.

Cofman said that the suspension could cause irreparable damage to Cuthbertson because if the jockey's appeal was successful he wouldn't be able to precisely state damages in any subsequent suit.

He said Cuthbertson could lose as much as $10,000 by not riding in the two races, "but it would be very difficult to prove precisely what the damages were."

Top seeds lead charge in U.S. Open tourney

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Chris Evert crushed a usually formidable opponent, Lesley Hunt of Australia, Thursday night in the opening round of the U.S. Open tennis championships.

The 20-year-old Miss Evert, joined boyfriend Jimmy Connors in leading a sweep of favorites forward before continuing record crowds at the West Side Tennis Club.

Chris won 6-1, 6-0, over Hunt, who had carried her to 46 hard-fought games at Wimbledon last year and given her a titanic battle in the quarter-finals of this event afterward.

Connors, like Chris, the top seed, played spotty but overpowering tennis in ousting Geoff Masters of Australia 6-3, 6-3.

"I am eager, I am ready," Connors said afterwards. "I am not horsing around. I am working twice as hard to win this year."

She last lost a match on clay in August 1973.

She dropped the first game on her own service when Miss Hunt caught her flat-footed with two deft drop shots. It was the last game Miss Hunt won as the sharp-shooting Chris ran off 12 straight for a 45-minute victory.

Seeded ranks in both the men's and women's divisions remained unbroken through the second 11-hour day unfolded before a record matinee crowd of 17,452 and the evening hurnout of about 6,000.

Connors was joined in the men's second round by Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, No. 2; Manuel Orantes of Spain, No. 3; Bjorn Borg of Sweden, No. 5; Ilie Nastase of Romania, No. 8; Rod Laver of Australia, No. 9, and Raul Ramirez of Mexico, No. 11.

All won comfortably in straight sets, not seriously pressed. Only Laver, the 36-year-old former world champion, was forced into a deuced set.

The Soviet Union's Olga Morozova, runnerup to Chris Evert at Wimbledon last year, alone was challenged among the women seeds. The Moscow school teacher, No. 6, rallied for a 7-5, 3-6, 6-1, triumph over Mimi Jausovec of Yugoslavia.

The other favored women to prevail were left-handed Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia, No. 3; Evonne Goolagong of Australia, No. 4; Margaret Court of Australia, No. 5; France's Francoise Durr, No. 7, and Julie Heldman, No. 8.

Britain's Virginia Wade, No. 2, has yet to play.

There were two mild upsets, however, in women's play. Marina Kroschina, a 22-year-old Ukranian, toppled Rosemary Casals, No. 3 ranked among American women, 6-4, 6-2 and Mona Schallau won over Nancy Richey Gunter, a many-times clay court champion and once No. 1 nationally, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Jimmy Connors

Connors considers representing U.S.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Jimmy Connors indicated strongly Thursday that he would represent the United States in the Davis Cup and might possibly play in the Association of Tennis Professionals' Nations Cup later this month.

"I am not getting any younger and I am now doing some of the things I want to do," he said after his opening victory in the U.S. Open tennis championships. "Everything has been cleared up from the past."

Connors was referring to the million dollar suits and countersuits filed by him and the ATP which were settled out of court recently.

Connors said he had promised to give Arthur Ashe, president of the ATP, a definite statement late in the week regarding the Nations Cup, and planned a dinner meeting with the new Davis Cup captain Tony Trabert.

Volleyball coach stays

OTTAWA (CP) — American Bill Neville will remain coach of the Canadian men's volleyball team although three players have quit because they say the "team is going nowhere fast" under his direction. Ian Stoddart, executive-director of the Canadian Volleyball Association, said Thursday.

Stoddart said the association took a long, hard look at Neville last weekend and decided to stick with him." Jean Letendre, Michel Roy and Pierre Belanger, all of Montreal, quit because they had lost confidence in Neville, he said.

Letendre said in Montreal this weekend that the three players would not return until Neville is replaced. Choosing an American to coach the national team was a mistake because "The U.S. is not stronger than we are in volleyball.

"We should have hired an Asian coach like the women's national team. They're progressiving rapidly while we're standing still." Moo Park of South Korea coaches the women's team.

Roy said the men's team was stronger before Neville became coach.

"His thinking and our thinking just didn't go together." He also said the other team members agreed that Neville did not have the necessary coaching talent but "when asked in public, though, they said they were behind him."

But Stoddart said the other players on the team said that "if Neville was replaced, they'd quit."

The association announced Tuesday that it was moving the national team to Winnipeg from the Montreal suburb of Longueuil.

Stoddart said Longueuil was chosen to make easier for Quebec players to be on the team. But as many of the members were from Winnipeg and were having difficulties getting jobs and coping with Montreal's high cost of living, Winnipeg was chosen.

"The Winnipeg players "came to Montreal and tried but they found little public support for the team. With the Montreal players gone, the association felt there was little reason to stay."

College golfers post victories

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — All-American Curtis Strange wiped out a one-hole deficit by winning five in a row Thursday and advanced through the third round of the United States Amateur golf championships with three other big-name college stars — Andy Bean, Keith Fergus and Bob Byman.

Strange, 20, who won the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship in 1974 as a freshman at Wake Forest, holed out a 120-foot wedge shot for an eagle for one of two consecutive twos he used for a 4-and-2 victory over John Jacobs.

The 22-year-old Bean beat Gary Jacobson 3-and-2, and Fergus sidelined Pete Wallenborn 4-and-3.

But the quickest executioner was Byman, Strange's Wake Forest team-mate who routed Brian Shanks 8-and-6. Both Bean and Byman were two under par, Strange was even, and Fergus was one-over-par.

Another winner was 23-year-old Stan Price, who on Wednesday beat the tournament favorite Vinnie Giles, the current British Amateur titleist.

Uganda orders Akii-Bua home

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — John Akii Bua, Uganda's 400-metre hurdles world record holder, has been ordered to curtail his current European tour and return home immediately, a Kenyan newspaper reported Thursday.

The Daily Nation said Akii-Bua, gold medallist in the 400-metre hurdles at the 1972 Munich Olympics, had been told by the Uganda Amateur Athletic Association not to run in any more meets abroad.

The paper said that in order to reinforce its ban on Akii-Bua competing abroad, the Ugandan association had written to the International Amateur Athletic Association requesting the world body to inform member countries about their decision.

Justune Kibuga, secretary of the Uganda AAA, told the paper that Akii-Bua was scheduled to have returned home some weeks ago. He said since he was on the Ugandan team taking part in this weekend's East and Central African Track Championships at Mombasa, Kenya, the Ugandan association had no alternative but to intercept him through the IAAF.

The unpredictable Akii-Bua had a previous run-in with the Uganda AAA last June. He was in Finland at the time when the Uganda AAA cabled the organizers of a meet in Helsinki saying he didn't have their permission to compete.

Akii-Bua was forced to withdraw.

NFL players vote soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The membership of the National Football League's Players Association will vote next week on whether it will accept a contract offer by management and end the one and one-half-year long NFL dispute, the union announced Thursday.

Ed Garvey, NFLPA executive director, told a news conference that the union membership will vote a week from Friday on any management proposal put on the table by next Monday.

Garvey said the decision to send a management offer to the membership for a vote was made during a meeting of the player representatives last Monday in Chicago.

"This dispute has dragged on for well over a year and a half and the union executive board is anxious to have the matter solved. Since the owners have been unwilling to come forward with a complete proposal, we felt that by setting the first of September as a deadline for an offer to be submitted to the players, the owners would be encouraged to bargain with the players' negotiating committee. The vote will be taken on or on September 1.

Garvey said the owners representatives, who met with the union officials in Chicago, "indicated that a full proposal would be forthcoming prior to or on Steptember 1.

"We explained that it would then be submitted to the players for a vote and Kermit Alexander union president suggested that they give it their 'best shot.'"

In New York, Sargent Karch, executive director of the NFL Management Council which represents the owners in contract negotiations, said no decision has been made yet on whether a new offer would be submitted to the players by Monday.

"We are making that determination now," he said, adding that a decision could be made today.

The last offer made by the owners came July 23, one which Garvey described was less than a proposal offered Aug. 27, 1974, and rejected by the union's executive board by 25 to 1.

If no new proposal is made, Garvey said, the players would be voting on the July 23 offer.

Great start for Aussies

LONDON (Reuter) — An unbroken partnership of 273 by opener Rick McCosker and captain Ian Chappell launched Australia towards a huge total Thursday in the fourth and final cricket Test against England at the Oval.

At the close of the first day, Australia was 280 for one. McCosker was unbeaten on 126—his maiden century—and Chappell 142 not out.

With the Test scheduled for six days the toss was vital, and Tony Grieg lost it for the first time since becoming England's captain. But, with only seven runs scored, Alan Turner — recalled in place of Gary Gilmour — was snapped up at short leg by David Steele off Chris Old.

Bustino retired

LONDON (Reuter) — Lady Beaverbrook's brilliant four-year-old Bustino has been retired from thoroughbred racing on veterinary advice, it was announced Wednesday. Bustino, narrowly beaten last month by Grundy in the King George VI and Queen Elizabeth Stakes at Ascot, was found to have heat in his offfore tendon.

New owners must deal with Orr

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Storer Broadcasting Corp. announced Thursday it has sold the National Hockey League Boston Bruins and Boston Garden to Sportsystems Corp., a multi-faceted international firm based in Buffalo, N.Y.

The sale was approved later in the day by the NHL board of governors meeting in Toronto. Sportsystems is controlled by the Jacobs brothers, Jeremy, Max and Lawrence.

Jeremy, president of the firm, said there are no immediate plans to change the management of either the Bruins or the Garden. There was no announcement of the price of the purchase.

Among the first orders of business for the new owners will be to deal with defenceman Bobby Orr, generally considered the NHL's best player. Orr has been threatening to leave the Bruins and accept a $6.5 million, five-year offer to play for the World Hockey Association's Minnesota Fighting Saints. It's been reported that Boston has offered Orr between $350,000 and $400,000 a year for seven years.

Alan Eagleson, Orr's lawyer, said Wednesday from Toronto: "We've told the Bruins we can't accept their contract offer and negotiations have been finalized. If they are, in fact, sold, we'll give the the new owners another chance at retaining Orr's services."

"Hopefully, we'll come to a successful arrangement in keeping Bobby Orr," said Jeremy Jacobs after the NHL governors approved the sale.

"We're in the throes of discussion with Eagleson . . . I've got a lot of confidence in the Bruins hockey team and I consider Bobby Orr part of that team."

Eagleson said he would sit down and seriously discuss the Orr deal with the Jacobs' interests within the next week. He admitted he had been in touch with one of their representatives, but would not be specific.

"I'm sure the new people have some ideas on what it will take to keep Bobby, from figures I proposed to Harry Sinden (the Bruins' managing director) when Storer owned the club," said Eagleson.

Eagleson said the matter has to be resolved by midnight of Sept. 15. The Bruins training camp opens the next day and Orr has asked Eagleson to settle the matter before then.

"I don't expect the new owners to match the Minnesota offer, but the offer will have to be substantially more than the final Storer offer," Eagleson said. "I think we're looking at a 10-year deal prepaid so we can invest the entire thing."

Jeremy Jacobs said he doesn't plan any immediate changes in the Bruins' non-playing personnel, but has contemplated building a new arena to replace the Boston Garden.

The brothers were in the public eye a couple of years ago when a firm they controlled called the Emprise Corp. was mentioned in a report issued in 1973 by the House of Representatives committee on crime.

The report said that Emprise "has done business with individuals designated by public authority or authorities as organized crime figures and that Emprise Corp. knew or should have known at that time it did business with such persons that they had been designated by responsible public authorities as organized crime figures or had the reputation of being a part of organized crime."

The committee added that its investigation uncovered no evidence that Emprise was actually a part of organized crime itself.

Irish Games program promises keen action

Hurling, Gaelic football, and Camogie may not be household words in these parts. However, the Victoria public gets the opportunity to view the native Irish sports Saturday at Centennial Stadium when the Irish-Canadian Cultural society presents a Gaelic Games Day.

Action starts at 2 p.m. in the exhibitions, a first for Victoria, and all players will be supplied by the Irish Sporting Club in Vancouver.

Hurling follows the same general rules as grass hockey with the exception of the goals, which are larger, and the ball, which is leather. A shot entering the goal counts three points and a shot over the crossbar one point.

In Ireland, the national hurling final in September attracts a crowd of 95,000 people to Dublin, and the game is rivalled only by the national soccer final.

Gaelic football is a cross between rugby and soccer with a minimum of rules. Tackling, shouldering, and kicking or handling the ball are all condoned, with the ultimate plan to deposit the ball into a soccer goal at either end of the pitch.

The third exhibition, Camogie, is the female version of hurling with similar rules.

All exhibitions will be Irish provincial rules. Munster plays Leinster in hurling, Ulster takes on Connaught in Gaelic football, and Northern Ireland tackles Eire in Camogie.

Nedomansky, Farda can visit Finland

TORONTO (CP) — Czech nationals Vaclav Nedomansky and Richard Farda need not fear extradition to their homeland if they accompany Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association for two exhibition games in Finland next month.

A spokesman for the Finnish goverment here said his country does not have an extradition treaty with Czechoslovakia.

It had been reported earlier that Nedomansky and Farda would not play in the Toros' exhibition games at Tampere and Helsinki during the WHA's extended stay in Europe because of extradition treaties between Finland, Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union.

The two players, both stars of the Czech national team before defecting a year ago to join the North American professionals, said they would be subject to arrest at home and, they understood, could be extradited from Finland.

"There is no reason to feel that way because we do not have an extradition treaty with Czechoslovakia," said Aleksei Lai, Finnish consul here. "The players would be welcome like any other visitor."

Cowboys charged

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Aeros have filed tampering charges with the World Hockey Association, charging Calgary Cowboys with trying to sign right winger Frank Hughes.

The charges were filed last week.

Hughes, 25, scored 112 goals and had 96 assists during three seasons with the Aeros.

His contract with Houston expired at the end of last season and the Aeros have been negotiating with him.

The Houston Chronicle said Hughes was approached by Calgary officials, and shortly afterward, his asking price to the Aeros jumped to six figures.

Bachelor Bob cut by Oilers

EDMONTON (CP) — Bobby Sheehan, Edmonton Oilers' fifth-leading scorer last season, will not be back with the World Hockey Association club this season, general manager Bill Hunter says.

Hunter said Sheehan's contract has expired and he will not be offered a new one. He said Sheehan, a bachelor, does not fit into the club's plans because of his lifestyle. The general manager did not elaborate.

Sheehan scored 19 goals and drew 39 assists last season.

Rioters kill policeman

BASTIA, Corsica (UPI) — Corsican separatists killed one French federal policeman and wounded at least 16 others Thursday in riots and gunfights in the city street.

Sources in the French Interior ministry said a squadron of police paratroopers was flying to Corsica Thursday to help maintain order. Three French policemen have died in clashes with separatists this week.

Early Thursday, snipers fired shotguns, automatic weapons and .22 calibre rifles at Compagnie Republicaine de Securite police charging a group of rioters in Bastia's St. Nicholas Square.

Police said one of the riot-trained policemen died and at least 16 were wounded, one critically.

A real lifesaver

Mae West, visiting on set of Universal's big-scale movie Midway in Los Angeles, autographs lifejacket worn by actor Kevin Dobson, and affectionately known as Mae West by Second World War sailors and flyers. Dobson plays role of Ensign George Gay in movie, and similar jacket saved Gay's life when he was shot down by Japanese planes.

Tragedy staged

LONDON (Reuter) — Seven Soviet soldiers and officers were imprisoned by the Germans during the Second World War in a Polish monastery without food, water or clothing, and then abandoned.

When Soviet troops arrived 60 days later, only two officers were found and both were insane, having survived by eating the remains of their comrades. Both were given a meal and shot and the monastery blown up.

The incident is the subject of a new British National Theatre production written by Canadian journalist Barry Collins and directed by Peter Hall.

The play, Judgment, which opened Wednesday night, imagines that one of the survivors came out sane. It consists entirely of a 2½-hour speech by Capt. Andrei Vukhov to his judges, justifying his behavior and that of his comrade.

The speech is delivered without interruption and is said to be the longest monologue in the history of the theatre.

B.C. stays clear of food dispute

VANCOUVER (CP) — A federal government agency has decided to investigate the B.C. food industry dispute while the provincial government intends to steer clear of it.

In Ottawa, Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the Food Prices Review Board, said in a news release Thursday that key company and union negotiators have been asked to brief board secretary Anthony Campbell on thir positions.

In Victoria, labor minister William King said he had no plans to intervene in the dispute.

Unless there are significant changes in bargaining positions, 125 supermarket outlets — most of them in the Vancouver area — employing 4,500 workers will be closed Tuesday.

A meeting has been proposed for today between the B.C. Food Industrial Relations Council, which is bargaining for the 11 companies involved in the dispute, and at least two of the unions.

The Baker Workers Union and the meatcutters' division of the Canadian Food and Allied Workers Union announced Wednesday they would not begin picketing until Tuesday.

The two unions and the Retail Clerks International Association have been served lockout notices by the food council which was formed to prevent selective strikes.

The council has said it will lock out clerks when either the bakery union or the meatcutters union pickets any member.

The stores, meanwhile, have cut prices of some perishables in an attempt to reduce inventories before Tuesday.

Mrs. Plumptre said the food prices review board is concerned with the impact of settlement on food prices in B.C. which already has the highest food prices in Canada.

"The board has repeatedly called for restraint on the part of economic decision makers, including both management and labor, as being essential for dealing with the inflation problem, of which food prices are only a part," she said.

ICBC union accepts

VANCOUVER (CP) — Striking members of the Office and Technical Employees Union have voted to accept a report by industrial inquiry commissioner Noel Hall, which could put the Insurance Corp. of B.C. back in operation by Tuesday.

Fred Trotter, OTEU spokesman, said Thursday that the 1,800 workers employed by ICBC approved the proposed term of settlement in the report, but he declined to provide voting percentages.

The union's negotiating committee had recommended acceptance of Hall's report, which proposes a compounded increase of 39.55 per cent during a 28-month term, retroactive to June 1974.

The workers, members of Local 378, seeking their first contract, have been on strike since May. 20.

Directors of the corporation were still studying the report Thursday and were expected to make a statement today.

Union spokesmen had said earlier that the OTEU executive was not pleased with all the terms of the report, but believed it was the right time to return to work.

Driver pays heavily

A 24-year-old Esquimalt man who "appears to go literally berserk when faced with some action by his estranged wife which he does not approve" was sent to jail Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court by Judge F. S. Green.

Green ended the unusual case of William Robert Utterson, 879½ Admirals, by sentencing Utterson to a total of 74 days in jail to be served on weekends, putting him on probation for two years and banning him from driving for three years.

Conditions of the probation included no alcohol for Utterson for two years, continued payments of $300 a month to Utterson's father until the total reaches $2,000 and payment of $600 to the Insurance Corp. of B.C. before April 15, 1976.

Two cars

The payments follow damage to two cars in a March 22 parking lot incident in the 700-Block Courtney which prosecutor Scott Marshall and defence lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood agreed involved "outrageous" conduct by Utterson.

He was originally charged with criminally negligent driving but pleaded guilty July 28 to a reduced charge of dangerous driving as well as to driving while under a licence suspension.

Utterson was driving a brother's car, which apparently was owned by their father, when he saw his estranged wife with another woman in a car on the parking lot. He stopped his car, sped to a spot which blocked the other car's exit from the lot and got out.

Futile kick

He tried to open the car doors but they were locked. He tried to kick out a window but that failed. He went back to his car and twice rammed the other vehicle, pushing it out to the street, before leaving the scene.

Owen-Flood said Utterson had a previous driving record which included a jail term and was on probation March 22, but urged Green not to send his client to jail.

He said Utterson had good character references, an excellent work record, was already paying his father $300 a month, wanted to pay the ICBC bill, was taking psychiatric treatment and "he has matured . . . he is more stable and more rational."

The defence lawyer also said Utterson had "resolved not to see his wife again."

By his wife

Green welcomed that but said Utterson's marital problems "and a basic immaturity cast a shadow over everything else. He appears to go literally berserk when faced with some action by his estranged wife which he does not approve."

The judge said a jail term was needed, but could be served on weekends so Utterson could keep his job and thus "retain his responsibilities to his children" while also continuing repayment.

Green said he had even considered a probation condition ordering Utterson not to see his wife but that would be "contrary to public policy."

Wettest August on record

Raindrops keep falling . . . and at the rate they've fallen this month Greater Victoria has had its wettest August on record.

The weather office at Pat Bay Airport had recorded 3.30 inches for the month at 5 a.m. Thursday.

The normal rainfall for August, according to Pat Bay Airport readings, is 0.97 inches.

Greater Victoria is not alone in its abnormal August rainfall. Vancouver, too, was close to a record. To Thursday, 3.36 inches of rain had been recorded at Vancouver International Airport. Vancouver's wettest August came in 1962 when 3.54 inches fell.

Supermarket shutdown

'Disaster' looms for B.C. farmers

By JIM GIBSON
Colonist Reporter

A prolonged supermarket shutdown on the Lower Mainland and in Victoria would be disastrous for the province's vegetable producers, according to the Victoria manager of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

Dick Stocks said producers could hold off a couple of days but as the available storage filled up the alternative might be to plow crops under.

"It's coming at a bad time for vegetable growers," he said of the labor dispute between the 21-member B.C. Food Council and three unions that could shut down major supermarkets some time after Labor day.

Stocks estimated that losses to the provincial farming industry could reach $1 million a day with a shutdown.

He said this figure was based not only on lost produce but also on the laying off of farm workers. He said a prolonged shutdown would first affect vegetable and fruit producers but poultry and meat producers would eventually be hit.

He said cattlemen were already finding few buyers for finished animals as retail buyers were cutting back in the event of a shutdown. He said that buyers were scarce for 4-H calves at the Pacific National Exhibition.

Stocks said co-operatives across the province were looking for other outlets either on the Prairies or the numerous independent stores not involved in the dispute.

But he said the independent stores could only handle so much produce.

Doug Philp, manager of the Island Vegetable Co-operative, said his 75-member group was adopting a wait-and-see attitude toward the possible shutdown.

A similar attitude is held by local retail clerks union business agent John Nicol who said a Victoria shutdown depended on whether proposed Lower Mainland lockouts spread to this area.

Any lockouts by affected Victoria area supermarkets would come with the striking of Lower Mainland Super-Valu stores by Meatcutters or with pickets by bakery workers at the Fort and Foul Bay Safeway store.

Food Council member stores in the Victoria area include 10 Safeway stores, three Shop Easy markets and a single Maverick store.

John Pepper, manager of the Cadboro Bay Shop Easy which is not involved in the dispute, reported "quite a lot of people are buying."

"I've never had to worry about having too much business," he said.

But labor problems in eastern Canada have reached as far as his store. About one-third of his orders, he reported, cannot be met because of eastern Canada labor disputes.

Training aimed at foster parents

Prospective foster parents will get an idea of what is in store for them before they actually sign up to take foster children under a training scheme announced Thursday by the Capital Region branch of the Human Resources Department.

It is hoped that the end result will be a steadier supply of foster homes, with foster parents able to cope with the demands of the 40 to 50 children taken into care each month in the Victoria area.

All prospective foster parents will be required to take the four-part course before being accepted by the department to take in foster children.

The tougher regulations are apparently paradoxical at a time when placement officers are finding it more and more difficult to come up with suitable homes.

But, says Barbara Lee, Foster Parents Association president, it is expected that after taking the course foster parents will be less liable to give up under the pressure of dealing with difficult children.

New foster parents will meet social workers, experienced foster parents, as well as natural parents whose children have been placed in care.

"They will have an idea of what to expect, how to cope and perhaps most important they will know where to go for help when they run into problems."

The Foster Parents Association recommended in June 1971 that the department should be responsible for the continuing education and training of all foster parents," Ms. Lee said.

'Holy surgery' in Philippines: $1,350 just for a good look

By JON FERRY
Colonist Reporter

Miracle healing seems to take to the Philippines like a duck to water.

And recent investigations by the media have made an ever-skeptical public increasingly aware of quacks.

But now Langley businessman Colin Donison claims to be able to direct people away from charlatans to the real thing — seven Filipino ministers who hold the power of the Holy Spirit in their hands.

Donison, a 46-year-old diabetic who says he's undergone several "operations" during four recent visits to the ministers' chapel in Quezon City near Manila, is co-ordinator of the B.C. chapter of a new society called the World Mission Society.

Donison says the society, whose aim is spiritual brotherhood, is officially registered in Ottawa. Membership costs $100 and so far there are nine members in this province.

Later this year, on Nov. 5 and again on Dec. 20, Donison will be guiding parties of the plainly sick or simply interested to the Philippines for a 21-day spiritual excursion complete with spiritual surgery.

"You get a helluva trip," notes Donison who estimates the excursion cost at $1,350 including air fare, hotel accommodation, meals and bus transportation — but not including any donations for surgical services rendered.

A foretaste of what the spiritual tourists can expect was disclosed Thursday night at Servetus Hall in James Bay with a movie-lecture from Rev. Marcos Orbito, World Mission Society national chairman, society president Loreto Dolor and Donison himself.

The two Filipinos were here as part of a publicity swing through Alberta and B.C. Donison paid for the trip.

Donison says Orbito is one of four brothers and three other ministers of the Filipino Christian Church who have the powers of holy surgery.

As was explained to the audience Thursday night Orbito could not display his amazing powers in Canada because of legal difficulties.

This purported to show Donison and other patients undergoing "magnetic healing" and "surgery" by the laying on of hands without mechanical incision, anesthetic or antiseptic.

The hands of the apparently entranced medium simply fingered the relevant part of the patient's anatomy, "reached through" the skin and within seconds removed fatty tissue, tumor or whatever.

All this without scar in sight and, according to Dolor, with the only instrument used being that of God working through his human medium.

With an assistant dabbing away at the "wound" and the hands of the medium covering the "incision" it was hard for those who saw the movie Thursday to be convinced that the skin was actually punctured during any of the operations.

And despite protestations from World Mission officials that with God all things are possible, skeptics could be forgiven for remaining skeptical, especially as an expensive trip to the Philippines appears to be the only way at present of making believers out of doubting Thomases.

Donison however, says he has documentary evidence of patients being cured by the Filipino healers who perform hundreds of operations each day.

The cost of a trip to the Philippines isn't really expensive, he explains; "it all depends how sick you are and how much you like to suffer."

After a wood beam dropped on him while he was housebuilding in May, 1971, Donison said he suffered gangrene in his left leg and doctors here in Canada recommended amputation.

On the advice of a friend he visited the Filipino chapel and the gangrene was stopped and the "dead cells" were "cleansed."

Donison says he's also had "operations" for hemorrhages in his eyes and on his heart.

"This has done wonders for me," he says.

He would like to see conventionally qualified doctors go to the Philippines to see for themselves.

Visitors can apparently witness the operations and the incisions made without a knife and without the need for antispectic precautions.

"You can stick your finger right in between the parting (of the flesh) or put your nose there and smell the body odor," Donison said.

No charge is made for the operations but donations are accepted — whether in single figure dollars or thousands of them.

Donison himself says he can guarantee members of his parties "aren't going to be ripped off." One main purpose in founding the World Mission Society was to protect the public from imposters, he said.

The need to guard against the latter appears to be great — especially in the light of one independent investigation of a South Seas healer which showed that what was purported to be human blood was blood of an animal.

Shaw needs day for roller mark

By this morning Clint Shaw expected to have picked up another world's roller skating record but the Victoria man has at least another day of skating in a Reseda, Calif., arena if he wants the marathon record.

Last Saturday morning when Shaw laced on his skates, he was aiming at breaking a 30-year-old record of 147-hours. But this week he discovered the record was more like 200 hours and just five months old.

It seems a California disc jockey didn't think Shaw's banking of his five-minute-per-hour breaks into four-hour stretches was cricket. So the radio man phoned the Guinness Book of Records to protest.

Shaw's procedure was all right but his timing was off. He'll have to skate through until 6 p.m. Saturday to equal the March record set by an Alabama couple.

He plans to continue through until Sunday just to be safe.

In a telephone interview Thursday as he continued to skate, Shaw said the news about the March record was his big letdown of the week. But he was "healthy and in good morale."

Earlier in the week he suffered depression and halucinations before he took his first four-hour break.

"I didn't know who I was or what I was doing in the United States," he said.

He reported plenty of callers on his cordless telephone. One caller Thursday was his Victoria employer, Clyde Emms of Trojan Steel.

Shaw said his marathon try is drawing crowds and publicity for the roller rink. But rink owners last week almost scotched Shaw's record-breaking attempt when they insisted he come up with $1,300 to cover costs of keeping the rink open 24 hours a day. Friends and seven Victoria businessmen found the money.

He claims he is receiving no payment for his feat but if he succeeds he may do a linament commercial.

His other records include most miles skated in a day — 106 — as well as being the first to roller skate across Canada and the U.S.

$1,000 goes Sayward

A Sayward woman was the big prize winner in the first draw of the Lucky Leo lottery Thursday.

Ann Reinson won $1,000 in the early bird draw held at Saanich municipal hall.

Victorians won six of the 42 consolation prizes of $100. The other winners were from other parts of B.C., except for one winner from Calgary and one from London, England.

Another draw will be held Oct. 6, and the final draw for $100,000 will ne held Nov. 28.

Orphan gifts become little more concrete

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

Candy, nuts and fruit in generous proportions served once a year, and a new suitcase and clothes to "start life's venture" were the gifts William Nevin Williams intended to give Victoria's orphans through a trust fund set up in his will.

But with orphans in short supply the old B.C. Protestant Orphanage has become the Bishop Cridge Centre for the Family, and there are no orphans there to receive the gifts.

So on Thursday, the children who live there and attend programs received a modern version of the candy and nuts — a boxed-in, tennis-court-size concrete pad.

They will be able to use the $4,500 bequest for floor hockey, basketball, volleyball or any of the games they wish to play.

Little is known about Williams, except that he grew up in the Protestant Orphanage, and died in Seattle many years ago.

At his death, a $33,000 trust fund was established with the stipulation that it should be used, until the principal and interest were exhausted, to purchase "candy, nuts and fruit in generous proportions, each in a separate package to go with a present to all under its roof, including matron."

The largesse was to be distributed once a year, he directed.

And, added Williams: "I direct that each child upon leaving or being discharged from this home be furnished with a suitcase, suitable clothing or wearing apparel and a sum of money with which to start on life's venture."

But these directives, says Denison Stewart, acting director at the centre, are not too practical in an age without orphans living in an orphanage, and with the new direction being taken by society.

The stress today is upon providing housing for families in transition — for single parents with their own families — and upon programs for the children living in the house on the centre property.

About 10 years ago, a court order set aside the original terms of the will, stipulating instead that the money should be used for the benefit of children living on the property.

"The trustees were given wider discretion for the use of the fund," said Stewart.

This spring it was decided that the small concrete pad on the property should be enlarged, and the work was begun with the help of about two dozen volunteer workers — half of them youngsters from 10 to 16 who live at the centre.

Directors applied to the trustees for the money needed and about three weeks ago one of the trustees, J. C. Irvine of Seattle, a friend of Williams' inspected the pad.

"He approved the project, and the money should be here in a few weeks time," Stewart said.

Add dash of color to apartments

By JULIET KAY
Colonist - Monitor News Service

Most people who live in rental apartments are hesitant about going through the expense of doing anything permanent to their apartment, anything that can't be packed up and taken with them when they move.

Nobody relishes the thought of moving, and most people end up staying in their apartment for one or two leases, which is a pretty long time. Menwhile, their four white walls cry out for a little color, a personal touch, a little individuality, an identity.

A splash of color in the right place can not only brighten a room, it can also separate an area visually, highlight a piece of furniture or a setting, make a narrow room appear wider, a barren room cozier, or just noticeably change a room you've grown tired of.

Many tricks

There are many decorating tricks you can do yourself, in a relatively short time, for very little expense, which will leave no permanent damage to your walls or apartment and which don't require any special expertise.

One of the easiest things to do requires only some paint, a paint brush, a few sheets of newspaper on the floor to prevent spills, and a step ladder or chair to stand on. The water-based, or latex paints are easy to use and don't present any messy cleanup problems, though two coats of paint may be required when using a bright color over white walls.

Just one wall

You paint just one wall, part of a wall, or possibly just the doors or moulding, depending on the desired effect.

If you have a combination living room and dining room, you can create a visual separation between the areas by painting the walls around the dining area. You can paint just part of the wall directly behind the couch for an interesting effect. If your room is a long, narrow one, painting the short wall will make the room feel wider.

If yours is an old apartment with lots of moulding and-or beams, you can paint just the moulding and beams for a nice effect which will highlight the architectural features of a bygone era.

Masking tape

To help you create straight lines while painting part of a wall, use masking tape to define the line. Once the paint is dry, pull off the tape, but do so carefully to avoid pulling off the previous coat of paint.

Another way of adding color is to use wallpaper, which need not be an expensive procedure. Prepasted wallpaper is easy to use, inexpensive, and available in a wide range of patterns, styles, and colors. You can put it up yourself.

Measure the area you intend to cover, and purchase the right amount. One or two rolls should cover all or part of a wall. Spread the wallpaper out on the floor, measure with a yardstick or tape measure the amount for each strip. If the paper requires matching for the pattern, just line up the second strip next to the first, matching the pattern, and then cut.

Press to wall

Wet the entire rolled-up strip in the nearest bathtub or sink, or you can purchase a little oblong pan made for the purpose, and then just press it to the wall, starting at the top. Smooth it out with a wet sponge. Pop any air bubbles that develop with a pin and smooth the paper out. That's all there is to it.

Contact paper can also be used, and is particularly effective in bathrooms and kitchen areas, where prepasted wallpaper might loosen with the steam. When applying contact paper, be sure to leave at least a quarter of an inch for overlap in case shrinkage occurs.

Another inexpensive trick which can be used to emphasize a wall is to apply strips of wood moulding, which can be obtained at any lumber store. They are available in an assortment of widths and designs, from simple wood strips to ones with scalloped edges, geometric cutouts, or carved strips. They can be painted any color, or finished with a wood stain and put up with finishing nails.

Integrate them

On plain or bi-fold doors, a fancy scalloped strip can be placed at each edge to bring the doors into prominence and integrate them into the decorating scheme of the room. They look particularly effective on those wall-to-wall closet bi-fold doors that are often seen in modern apartments.

These moulding strips usually are availabe in eight-foot lengths. If you measure the length you will need, you can have the lumber store cut them to size for you.

fabric trimming. It's available ing similar effects is to use fabric trimming. It's availabe at notions or fabris stores in a wide variety of styles, fabrics, and colors, with or without tassels, fringe, or pom-poms. Fabric trimming may cost more than wood moulding, but it can be cut with a pair of scissors and placed anywhere, using glue, double-faced tape, or nails.

Stitch trim

Trim can also be stitched onto draperies, a bedspread, an upholstered couch or chair, cushions. It can be glued as a frame around a mirror, or over existing venetian blind tapes.

How about dull windows? The frames can be painted a contrasting color, to match that patch of wall that was painted in a bright color. If you have ordinary pull window shades, they can become part of the decorating scheme. They can be covered with wallpaper or fabric to match the draperies, bedspread, or upholstered furniture.

Some like eels, others eat bats

SAIPAN, Marianas Islands (UPI) — The current constitutional convention of the northern Marianas is humming along, debating freedom of press, freedom from forced marriages and freedom to eat saltwater eels.

Isaa Lanwi, the Marshall Islands delegate to the convention, proposed a freedom of diet to mawe sure the central government of the Pacific trust territory of Micronesia will not try to regulate what any person eats.

Lanwi's fellow delegates accepted the proposal without batting an eye.

Lanwi noted that he doesn't want someone from the Marshalls, where saltwater eels are a popular item, barred from eating them while visiting in the Marianas, where they're looked down upon.

On the other hand, fruit bats are considered a delicacy in the Marianas, while Marshall Islanders revolt at the thought of eating a bat.

Nanmwarki Max Iriarte of Ponape wants an abolition of forced or prearranged marriages.

"In Ponape and perhaps in other districts parents decide and arrange marriages when their children are as young as three years old," he said. "Children who disagree with their parents' choice can be disqualified from owning land in Ponape as they grow older."

The delegates have already adopted on first reading a proposal for the right to freedom of speech and press.

The people of the Marianas voted in June to turn the string of 14 islands into a commonwealth of the United States. The constitution they come up with will require presidential approval.

Hash-to-Canada drug link cut

ann landers

Dear Ann Landers: In answer to "Upstate, N.Y.," here is my solution to the ever-growing problem for the older generation who taught their children respect for other people and their homes — but unfortunately those children didn't teach their children.

When the "monsters" enter, I bring out a large box of toys and games. I place them in the middle of the floor and say, "I'm sure you will find something here to play with while we older folks visit." Usually they are delighted because sitting around listening to old people talk can be very boring.

If a child refuses to play with the toys and insists on making a nuisance of himself, I say, "You have your toys, now just play with them or go to the kitchen and sit in a chair until we have finished visiting."

To the parents I say, "I'm sorry, but my home is my castle and if you refuse to correct your children, then I must."

It's surprising how many parents thank me — and even more surprising how many children settle down and enjoy themselves. When they return they behave beautifully because they know I will not tolerate poor behavior. — Upstate Supporter

Dear Up Sup: You've said in a different way what I have said so often. Discipline is a special kind of love. Children need and want it. Too many older people, especially grandparents, are afraid to get tough for fear the grandchildren won't like them. Nonsense. No child wants to be allowed to run wild.

Dear Ann: Our 17-month-old nephew seems to be developing a tendency toward being left-handed. The child's mother is hell-bent on training him to use his right hand. She cites all the examples of the inconveniences left-handed are faced with throughout life. (I didn't realize there were so many.)

It seems I read somewhere that a child who is naturally left-handed should be let alone. Please check this out and let me know.—Uptight in K.C.

Dear Up: Every child specialist with whom I checked said it is unwise to try to "train" a left-handed child to use his right hand. The inconvenience is a trifle, compared with the damage that might result.

Cafes flourish in Saigon

SAIGON, South Vietnam (UPI) — Unemployed citizens trying to make a buck have turned Saigon's sidewalks into a maze of tiny coffee shops.

What seem like thousands of the streetside cafes jam the downtown sections of the city and stretch along virtually every street into the farthest suburbs.

Unemployment is the single greatest problem facing South Vietnam's new communist government and enterprising citizens have set up the shops to survive.

They require little investment and reap respectable profits. But for all their charm the shops have earned some contempt because of the clientele.

"Groups of young girls and boys, dirty hippies dressed in sexy clothes, repulsive debauched drunks and heroin smokers," was the way one letter to the editor of the official Saigon liberation newspaper described the cafe clients.

On the other hand, the cafes provide a place to relax, especially in the evenings when patrons can sip iced coffee and watch the traffic and the pedestrians.

Rumors had it that authorities intended to close down all the cafes, particularly those along notorious Tu Do Street, where American GIs used to find their evening entertainment in less restrained times. Vietnamese are sensitive about Tu Do's poor reputation.

At one point soldiers ordered all cafes in one Tu Do block closed, apparently because owners refused to clean the sidewalks at the end of their business day, but about a week later they reopened.

One owner said it took an investment of about $40 to open a cafe with half a dozen small tables, 30 tiny chairs or stools, a cheap ice chest and supplies to make coffee and serve soft drinks. Owners pay no rent since the cafe is on the public sidewalk.

"For now, while I try to figure out what to do with my future, it's a way to survive," one cafe operator said. Critics also say most customers are unemployed and living from savings.

The average cafe operator takes in about $10 a day, enough to live on and buy supplies for the next day.

Former Saigon regimes banned outdoor cafes and restaurants because of the threat of terrorist attacks. In one sense the return of the sidewalk cafe provides proof that peace has returned to Vietnam.

However, as unemployment falls and more Saigon residents join the exodus to the countryside, the cafes likely will begin to disappear.

"There are too many cafes now and they give the lazy people a place to go," said one Saigon resident. "But I hope in the future a few of them stay open because they are a nice place to go in the evening."

Second movie goes big

TORONTO (CP) — Black Christmas, a Toronto-made film thriller, has become English-speaking Canada's number two domestic box office champion and the second to crack the $1-million barrier.

The film's gross, 10 months after initial release, stands at $1,274,000 — second among Canadian-made films only to the record $1.8 million of The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz.

Warner Brothers has opened the movie in selected U.S. markets under the title, Silent Night, Evil Night. The title was changed because it was felt white audiences would stay away thinking Black Christmas was for blacks, said producer Gerry Arbeid of August Films.

Black Christmas made $1 million worth of sales at the Canadian Film Festival and officials responsible for the federal government-sponsored Canadian participation at the festival confirm the movie did more business there this year than most of the other Canadian movies combined.

'Draft Gibson' move claimed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A former provincial Liberal party official says that MLA Gordon Gibson (L—North Vancouver-Capilano) has been asked by some influential Liberals to run against current provincial leader David Anderson.

Cecil Cosulich, past president of the Vancouver South Constituency Association, said Thursday he and several other unidentified active Liberals are running a draft-Gibson campaign for the party's leadership convention in late September.

Cosulich said he retired from active Liberal politics last year but has again become active because "we have been experiencing quite a few difficulties in the party."

Provincial Liberal strength in the legislature was reduced to two from five when MLAs Pat McGeer, Allan Williams and Garde Gardom left the party to sit as independents in support of a coalition free enterprise movement.

Gibson said later Thursday that he has been asked to run in the convention but has made no decision.

"I'm keeping my eyes and ears open and my mouth shut," he said. "I would want to discuss the matter with David Anderson before any announcement."

Anderson is on vacation and is expected to return Sept. 10.

Cosulich said he respected Anderson, but that a new leader was needed because Anderson "wasn't able to hold the party together."

Hall leads parade into Hall of Fame

TORONTO (CP) — "They called us stupid, and maybe we were," Glenn Hall recalled Thursday night. "But we thought they (the owners) were, because they kept paying us to play a game we wanted to play."

Hall was Mr. Goalkeeper for 18 seasons in the National Hockey League and was speaking to an audience gathered to honor him and six other inductees into the Hockey Hall of Fame.

The Humboldt, Sask., native was reacting to his introduction by former team-mate Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks who claimed goaltenders of the Hall era were often characterized as being "courageous" while they were really always looked on as being "crazy" or "whacked out."

Owner of 84 regular season shutouts, Hall set an iron-man performance in the nets by playing 502 consecutive NHL games, a record unlikely ever to be touched in the modern era where teams now carry two and sometimes three goaltenders during the season.

Joining Hall for induction into the players' section of the Hockey Hall of Fame were Gordie Drillon of Saint John, N.B., the first Maritimer to be elected to the Hall; defenceman Pierre Pilote, a former team-mate of Hall's at Chicago; Irwin W. Ace Bailey, whose career with Toronto Maple Leafs was cut short following a near fatal injury, and former Toronto captain George Armstrong.

MONTERREY, Mexico (UPI) — A city bus tried to beat a slow-moving freight train to a crossing Thursday and was struck by the train. Four persons were killed and 13 injured. Police detained the bus driver and the train's three crew members. They also seized the driver of another bus, said by witnesses to be taking part in the race to the crossing. The bus hit by the train carried 40 passengers.

WHY MEN WON'T SEEK HELP

Many men won't admit they have a problem. They're trapped — in jobs they don't like, or in cold, empty marriages, losing contact with their children. Most men are too proud of their masculinity to admit failure. But in expecting men to always be strong, and never show the weaknesses that all of us possess, we put a terrible burden on them. Learn how you can lessen that burden — and help someone who is endangering his emotional and mental health. Read WHY MEN WON'T SEEK HELP. Everything you need to know about comfortable shoes.

The rest of the world, please note.
Roots is a comfortable, casual shoe — different from the shoes you grew up in, and different from other casual shoes, too.
There's nothing else quite like them.
Here's the story.

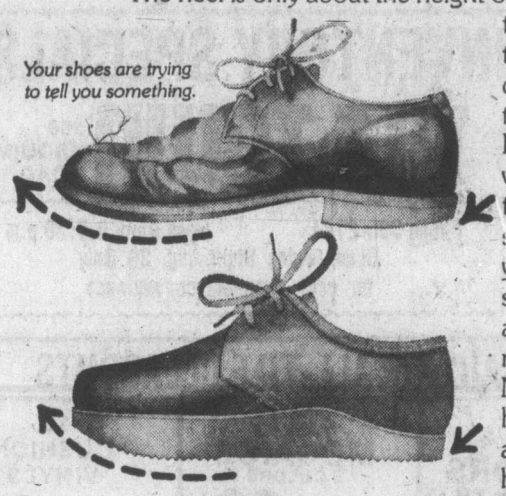
It cradles your heel and supports your arch. Unlike ordinary shoes, you stand in Roots, not on them.
The Roots toe is not pointed like the toes of ordinary shoes. It is broad and rounded like feet so your toes have room to wiggle and air can circulate to keep your feet cool.
The bottom of the sole is molded in a "rocker" shape so that it fits the natural heel-to-toe motion of walking.
The heel is only about the height of the heel on a tennis shoe and the "rocker" sole curves up toward the tip of the toe.
If you wonder whether or not all this makes any sense put one of your ordinary shoes on a table and look at it for a minute.
Notice that the heels have worn away and the sole has assumed a comfortable curve. Whether you wear size 3½ or 13, high heel or regular heel, the more you wear an ordinary shoe, the more it assumes the shape of Roots



Your shoes are trying to tell you something.

There are other casual shoes that look like Roots at first glance.
Some have sculptured soles. Others are styled to look as though they do.
But none of them has the obvious love of good leather and fine boot-making you'll find in a pair of Roots.
The difference in Roots is due, in large part, to the men pictured here. John Kowalewski and his sons are custom-bootmakers. They built the first pairs of Roots with the same care and enthusiasm they poured into the expensive shoes they had made for exclusive boutiques.
Today they run the Roots factory in Toronto where every pair of Roots is made.
They pick the leather, set the standards, supervise the whole operation.
They are of the old school.
So, in Roots you have more than a shoe made for the way you were born to walk. You also have a beautifully made pair of shoes, visibly nicer (and a little more expensive) than the rest.

The trouble with Roots.
The trouble is, they're so damned comfortable.

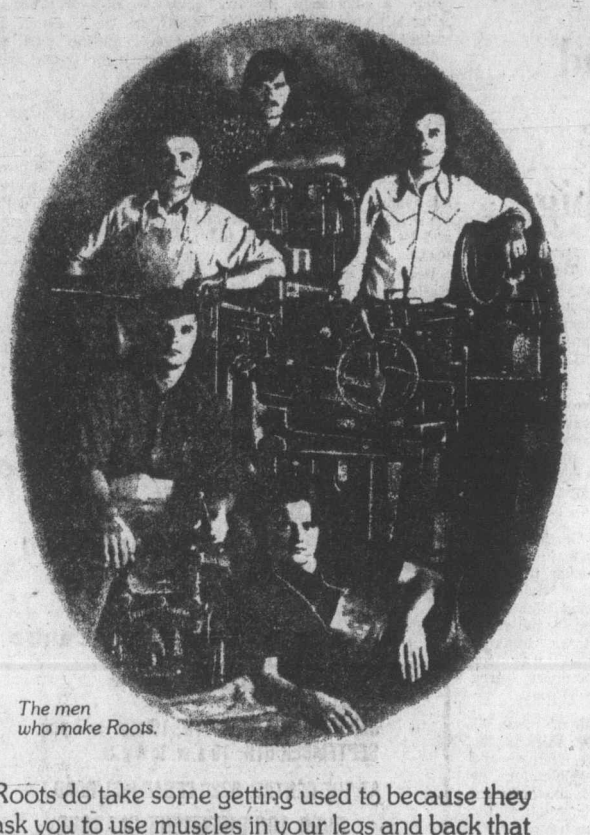
They worry that after getting used to Roots they won't be able to wear ordinary shoes.
Some people just like to worry.
But there simply isn't anything to worry about.
Walking in Roots is very much like walking in bare feet and you've been doing that on and off for most of your life.



The men who make Roots.

Roots do take some getting used to because they ask you to use muscles in your legs and back that have been under-used wearing ordinary shoes.
And of course, they don't look like ordinary shoes either, which bothers some people.
But, if you're secure enough to deal with a few characters who want to know why you're wearing those "funny-looking shoes" you're going to love the comfort of Roots.

Sold only at Roots stores.
And you'll find these stores as comfortable an experience as Roots themselves.
They don't look like ordinary shoe stores.
As a result Roots customers keep coming back for more. The record right now is 10 pairs bought in less than a year, by a man who is definitely old enough to know better.
Evidently it's easier than we guessed to go bananas over Roots.

Roots.
"Be kind to feet. They outnumber people two to one."

M. V. Chesnut's Garden notes

The year 1975 will always remain in my mind as the Year of the Weed. Just what particular set of weather conditions is responsible for the infestation, I wouldn't know, but I don't think I have ever seen a more prolific growth of chickweed, poverty weed, blindweed, plantain, portulaca, thistle and all the other green pests. Keeping them under control is a never-ending job, and the moment you turn your back, up pops another crop, apparently born fully grown and all ready to start scattering their infernal seeds.

I don't like hard work any more than the next man, so for years I have been experimenting to find methods of controlling weeds without so much back-breaking labor. I can't say I have made any dramatic progress in this field of research, but one thing I have noticed is this: The shallower you hoe, the quicker the weeds die.

Deep hoeing is a lot more work and it doesn't do as good a job. The weeds are simply transplanted from one place to another, and if a shower or a heavy dew comes along to freshen them up, they have little trouble in pushing their roots down again.

For hoeing between the rows in the vegetable plots and between well-spaced plants in the perennial border, I don't think there is any implement that does quiet such a good job as the scuffle hoe, and particularly one with a crescent-shaped, forward-facing blade put out by the Tru-Temper people. While these come in several sizes, I prefer a rather small, light one, easier to control accurately when scuffling off weeds which are growing close to valued plants.

I keep my little scuffle hoe razor sharp by dressing the blade with a flat file. When I scuffle the soil with this sharp blade, it slices the weeds off just a fraction of an inch below the surface and does no damage to the shallow-rooted subjects in my garden. The draw hoe, which operates much more deeply in the soil, is a menace to corn, tomatoes, raspberries and such plants which maintain their active feeding roots just below the soil surface.

Another thing that appeals to me about the scuffle hoe is the fact that you work backward down the row, so you never need step on the freshly hoed ground. With the draw hoe, the work is a strenuous chopping motion, and you progress forward, trampling all over your work. This means going back over the ground with the rake, not only to erase the footprints and leave things shipshape, but because tramped-on weeds have an uncanny knack of insinuating their roots back into the soil.

It is quite possible to make our midsummer dry spells work in our favor in the control of weeds, simply by arranging things so all the water goes on the crops and none on the weeds. I grow most of my summer row crops — vegetables and gladiolus — in shallow trenches in the ground, and when watering with the hose, it is easy to channel the water into these miniature ditches where it goes directly to the roots of my plants, leaving the alleys between the rows as dry as the proverbial bone. Weeds seldom get a chance to germinate in this sun-baked ground.

There are some plants, of course, which need freshening up occasionally by an overhead watering. Runner beans, for instance, have a habit of dropping their blossoms and failing to "set" unless given frequent shower baths.

On the other hand, such plants as tomatoes and potatoes make healthier growth when the roots are irrigated without wetting the foliage.

Jack Smith

Statistics might not bear me out, but I have a notion that Los Angeles drivers are better than those of any other large city in the world, and certainly better than small town and rural drivers.

This seems true to me even though you can't venture out on one of our streets or freeways without encountering fools and madmen. But compared with the drivers in New York, Paris or Rome, for example, we are skillful, prudent and considerate.

It is almost axiomatic that a driver who commits certain errors on the freeway, such as stopping to get his bearings, is regarded as either drunk, senile or from out of town.

The other day a colleague sent me a clipping from the Iron County Record, published in Cedar City, Utah (pop. 7,543), which seems to justify this arbitrary conclusion. It is an article written by one Mary Gae Evans, evidently a native of that neighborhood, after a visit to Los Angeles.

"There are definitely two kinds of driving," she observes. "And when driver's education is taught they should explain this more fully. Students should be taught how to drive in Southern Utah and then a whole different course on how to drive in Southern California."

Mrs. Evans says she is a very good driver at home, but just holding a wheel in Los Angeles transforms her into a "jibbering idiot".

"In Southern Utah," she points out, "no one signals. We all know where everyone is going to turn off to get home, so we wait. If someone does signal we still wait until we're sure they mean it. It seems perfectly acceptable to change your mind at the last minute and we do it all the time. In California you don't signal unless you mean it or your next turn may be into the hospital emergency ward."

Mrs. Evans was bewildered by the phantasmagora of signs, signals and choices she had to face on our freeways.

"You have to learn how to read freeway signs that split up your road into four different directions while going 60 m.p.h.," she reports, "and pick out your light when an array of red, yellow and green ones are going all at once. I just sort eenie-meenie-minie-mo it."

Mrs. Evans perhaps doesn't realize it, but no one except a driver with flawless vision, lightning reflexes, superb orientation and a well-developed extrasensory perception could find his way over the labrynth of our freeway system if he were guided only by the signs. It is our familiarity with the routes that makes it possible for us to get from one point to another without cracking up or going into shock.

Mrs. Evans draws an appealing picture of driving in a town so small that everyone not only knows all the streets, but all the other drivers also, and the people in the houses they pass.

"In Southern Utah if we slow down to avoid hitting a pet dog or cat we can be sure the driver behind us will slow down too, because we both know whose dogs are always in the street. We know which streets will be filled with kids playing ball, and which drivers have a reputation for backing out of driveways without looking.

"We know which teenagers in town have new driver's licenses and are feeling their oats by laying a little rubber and speeding a bit. So, we warn the kids to stay out of the street when they see them coming. There are occasional pretty little girls and handsome young men who run by to check on their latest flame two or three times a day. When one little girl first got her license she almost got me a couple of times appearing out of nowhere at a fast clip. But, I watch for her now and we get along fine." (I hope that little girl doesn't turn out to be fickle! She could have the whole town terrorized before she settles down.)

Mrs. Evans says the system in Utah could probably be called "defensive driving", and it works fine there. But in Los Angeles defense is not enough! You have to have an offense, too, like a football team.

"You have to change a lot of old habits and learn to start fast, stop fast, think fast and drive fast. And, above all else, remember the old Chinese proverb, 'He who hesitates is lost.'

"My husband doesn't let me drive in the city anymore," Mrs. Evans assures us, "since he had to back us down off an overpass when I accidentally chose the wrong route. He says that if he ever decides to commit suicide we'll just go to L.A. on vacation and he'll let me drive."

I am reluctant to intrude on a domestic matter in serene Cedar City, but if the Evanses ever do come to Los Angeles again I hope Evans will change his mind and let Mrs. Evans drive. If there's anything I don't want to meet on a freeway it's a man from Utah backing down an offramp simply because his wife had taken the wrong route. It's better to be lost.

If he insists, however, I hope he lets Mrs. Evans out of the car before he puts it in reverse. She sounds sane.

Sydney Harris

Thoughts at Large:

● Justice, as a living process, will never be anything but a catchword until people become more interested in distributing it than in demanding it.

● Fanatics and bigots always have more plausible arguments than those who oppose them, for they are commonly the only ones who take the trouble to document their case (no matter how partial the documentation may be).

● Two of the most commonly misused words are not long ones, but the shortest ones possible: "eke" and "ilk," both used improperly in such examples as "He ekes out a living," and "People of that ilk."

● What we like most about those we call "charming" is that they manage to retain an amused detachment from their own commonplace troubles.

● Take ten guesses at who said this, before you peek: "If civilization is to survive, all men cannot fail eventually to adopt Gandhi's belief that the process of mass application of force to resolve contentious issues is fundamentally not only wrong but contains within itself the germs of self-destruction."*

● A woman's friends may engage in "escapades," "indiscretions," or "little flings;" but the women she doesn't like have "tawdry affairs."

● What we mean by the "free world" is that part of the world which still finds it economically and militarily more feasible to take help from us than from our antagonists.

● Speaking of nations, we shouldn't be surprised at the enmity between Russia and China; as Colton observed long ago, "In politics, as in religion, we have more dislike for those who believe only half of our creed than for those who deny the whole of it."

● For a general understanding of what has been going on in our country, and in the world, I heartily recommend Milton Mayer's new book of commentary of the last 30 years, The Nature of the Beast.

● "Sincere" is what we call a writer who has few other virtues; would anyone think of calling Shakespeare "sincere?"

● When we agree with pickets and demonstrators, we lay emphasis on their "rights;" when we disagree, we lay emphasis on their "responsibilities."

● A European who remarks to one of us, "I'd never dream you were an American," is not exactly paying our country a compliment.

James Bacon's Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — Only in Hollywood can you parlay a delicatessen opening and a dinner party in Beverly Hills' fanciest restaurant all in the same evening.

Hy Ochberg and actors Burt Reynolds and Art Metrano opened The Posh Bagel, a delicatessen that is decorated like El Morocco in New York. Half the town showed up, some from off the street no doubt.

Ran into Jack Berle and asked him if he had heard from his brother Milton. "Not a cent," said Jack. Jack is a famous actor. He played the Arab delegate to the United Nations in Missiles of October. If you know Jack, that's acting. Milton once talked Jack into learning a trade so he could know what kind of work he was out of.

Red and Alicia Buttons, author Louis L'Amour and his wife Kathy, actor David Huddleston and his wife Carol were among the two or three thousand who showed up.

Burt Reynolds couldn't make it as he is still in exile in Mexico on Lucky Lady which is taking longer to shoot than the Second World War. Ochberg, the millionaire behind the bagel emporium, plans to open a chain of them. The waiter are dressed in tuxedos. It's a new look in delicatessens.

From The Posh Bagel to the Bistro where Robert and that gorgeous Georgette Muir hosted a dinner party that included Lesley and Tony Curtis, Denise and Prentis Cobb Hale who flew in from San Francisco, Connie Towers and John Gavin, Gene Washburn the uncola heiress, and Brenda Simon of Indianapolis.

Sat next to Brenda, who is a knockout. She had just flown in from Indianapolis in one of her two private jets. Her husband, like Muir, owns shopping centres all over the country.

Financier Douglas Campbell and Richard Gully rounded out the table. the recession never hit the Bistro. Kurt Niklas turns away 30 or 40 customers a night. Someone from Las Vegas told him that if he had his choice, he would sooner own the Bistro than Caesars Palace.

Remember that item about actress Sherry Taranto who was undecided whether to pose for the nude centrefold of Playboy magazine because she lives in Pasadena? The offer went up to $9,000 but she turned it down anyway. Told her it would have been better to have moved from Pasadena.

about tv
bruce lowther

CHANNEL ONE: First indications are that Beacon Hill, the CBS Boston rewrite of Upstairs-Downstairs, could be a hit of the new season. I was interested in the small part I saw, the phone calls to me showed interest if not full support and the news wires say reaction was good.

First there was Godfather II and then Jaws II, which is being filmed now. Next, says Warners studio, will be The Exorcist II with Linda Blair again as the star. The Return of the Magnificent Satan, maybe? . . . Bob Hope says he and Bing Crosby may make one final Road film The Road to Tomorraw.

Try this for trivia: In 1945, when the U.S. army started its Armed Forces Network radio station in Berlin, the station commander was a man who went on to other fame — Major George Kennedy.

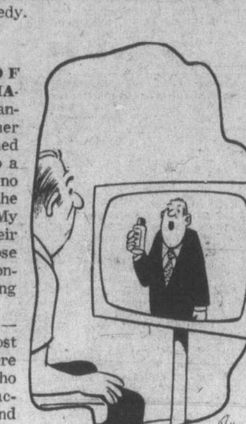
BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Thursday's answer — When Lerner and Loewe turned Shaw's Pygmalion into a musical, there was no mystery about where the title came from. My Fair Lady was their choice because those words came after "London bridge is falling down."

Today's question — Two of history's most famous women were Clara Barton, who worked for years to accomplish something, and Lisa del Giocondo, who didn't work at all and needed far less time to gain her fame. Do you know what they did? Answers Saturday.



"This offer ends at midnight, September 28, 1963. Now back to 'Pete and Gladys.'"

Friday highlights

8:00 p.m. — The new TV season is only a few days away, which means so is U.S. college football. ABC Sports takes an hour to run down the college biggies, led by Archie Griffin—4.

8:00 — John Davidson in Shell Game, a CBS pilot which missed—7.

8:30 — David McCallum in The New Invisible Man, an NEC pilot which will be a series—8.

9:00 — Victoria MP Allan McKinnon—10.

9:30 — Anne Meara as Kate McShane, a CBS lawyer pilot which also made it—7.

10:00 — An English black comedy: It's the Only Way to Go. I'd say what occupation is involved but I gave my undertaking not to—2.

11:30 — ABC repeats a roast of O. J. Simpson with Cosell, Gifford, Butkus and that lot. Tell me, how do you roast Orange Juice?—4.

Friday movies

12:45 noon — Tom Brown's Schooldays (1940 Freddy Bartholomew antique). From the corny but funny school, which has far too many members and teachers—8.

1:00 p.m. — The Man from Planet X (1951 nothing.) I don't know what made me think of it but I love that ancient joke. "I'm so old I remember when they called it Preparation F"—11.

3:30 — Sheriff of Fractured Jaw (fitfully funny 1959 western comedy), Kenneth More, Jayne Mansfield. Some young moviemakers consider it a classic but then, they're young—5.

9:00 — Search for the Gods (entertaining 1974 mystery), Kurt Russell, many more. A combination of Chariots of the Gods and a whodunit—4.

9:00 — Grand Slam (all right 1968 robbery suspense), Edward G. Robinson, Janet Leigh. A grand slam is a bridge term, dummy—12.

● 11:30 — Juliet of the Spirits (1965 Fellini dandy), Giuletta Massina. Next to La Strada, my favorite Fellini, but be warned it's only for art-film freaks—12.

12:00 — The Russians Are Coming (frequently funny 1966 comedy), Alan Arkin, trillions more. Try it—2.

12:00 — When Michael Calls (pretty scary 1971 chiller), Michael Douglas, Ben Gazzara, Elizabeth Ashley. I'm also so old I can remember getting a phone call through on the first try—6.

12:00 — Night Monster (1942 Lugosi loser)—7.

12:00 — Ritual of Evil (quite good 1969 devil cult), Louis Jourdan, Anne Baxter, Carroll O'Connor. Best of the late shockers—8.

1:25 a.m. — Screaming Skull (1958). Worst of the ditto—7.

1:50 — Kiss Me, Stupid (mostly stupid 1964 adultery is fun), Kim Novak, Dean Martin. A rare Billy Wilder boob—6.

2:05 — Countess from Hong Kong (1967 Chaplin). With Loren, Brando and Margaret Rutherford and its only plus, sadly, is the brief Chaplin-Rutherford bit. This is the real funny school—8.

Friday radio

● — Recommended.

THE ACES® ON BRIDGE

by IRA G. CORN JR. TEAM CAPTAIN

In the Bermuda Regional Tournament held in Southhampton, the winners of the Women's Pairs were Marion Weed and Dorothy Moore of Dallas. Dorothy has long been one of my favorite partners. Her play on this hand explains why.

Opening lead: Five of clubs

In duplicate bridge overtricks are much more important than in rubber bridge. Since one's score is compared to all others playing the same cards, assuring oneself of 12 tricks when 13 might be made is not a winning approach. However, there's always an exception and today's cliff hanging slam offers a good example.

The slam was bid by most pairs but the opening lead was not automatic. Some Wests chose a red suit lead and the temptation got to most declarers. After winning the red suit ace, most declarers could see 13 tricks via a simple crossruff plan. But when the second top club was played, West ruffed rudely and led a trump and it was all over. Declarer had three losing clubs left and only two trumps were left in dummy. Down one was a fairly common result.

Against the winners, West led the singleton club. Dorothy Moore won the trick and also saw the obvious plan for 13 tricks. But why had West led the suit that declarer had shown? Declarer decided that it had to be a singleton and here's how she made the hand.

Instead of trying for all 13 tricks and playing the other high club, declarer led a low club from her hand, willingly giving up the trick. East won in surprise, but there was no longer any defense. East switched to a trump but the trump lead came too late. Declarer won the trump and ruffed a low club in dummy. A diamond was led to the ace and the last low club was ruffed with dummy's last trump. A diamond was ruffed and trumps were drawn and 12 tricks claimed for a top score

It pays to decipher the possibilities of an unusual opening lead!

Answer: Three spades. A lesser evils choice. While a second suit is rarely raised with only three trumps, this hand is an exception. The spades are excellent while the lack of a diamond stopper makes a no trump bid unattractive.

LIEUTENANT David Webber of Comox and cadets work on 14-foot sailboat they are building at Comox junior high school. Classes are held daily at school as part of the HMCS Quadra program.

Women 'equal' at Quadra

COMOX — This year, which has been designated International Women's Year, more than 200 female cadets, have attended the HMCS Quarda land-based naval training establishment.

The camp, which this weekend ends its 25th year of operation, has evolved from a primarily sea-oriented operation to a land-water course of training.

Commander G. F. Amundsen, who assumed command last week from Commander Ralph Vipond, said the women have been absorbed without problems.

"In fact, they have had a beneficial effect on us all, and this feeling of goodwill I intend to encourage."

.. The rule at Quadra is equal privileges with equal responsibilities. This means that the quota of women, in the ratio of five to one, take the toughest of training, including the practical leadership course, a really exhausting experience in its demands on spirit and body.

Cadets training includes the obstacle course, drill, sports and firing range, in addition to a full range of seafaring skills and boat handling.

The cadet band this year participated in several parades, locally and in Vancouver, and recently in the colorful and ceremonial Ceremony of the Flags.

The summer-long program at Quadra ranges from the sea phase in which marine skills are taught to wilderness survival and adventure training on Forbidden Plateau treks, to precision drill on the parade square and a wide range of academic studies in the nearby Comox junior high school.

During their training sessions, cadets this year were able to lend a hand to marine travellers who needed assistance in 20 incidents.

On several occasions in past years, cadets have been involved in rescue operations at sea.

This year more than 2,500 cadets spent a week or more at the camp.

Refs' group will meet

Spokesman Steve Holotuk says the alliance is in need of referees of all ages and anyone interested may contact him at 477-0532 or 388-3637 or attend the meeting scheduled for 8 p.m. at Esquimalt Recreation Centre.

Quarterback joins Argos

TORONTO (CP) — Ken Pettiford, a recent quarterback cut of San Francisco '49ers of the National Football League, has joined Toronto Argonauts for a five-day Canadian Football League tryout.

Pettiford, a native of Nashville who played college ball at Tennessee State, was the final quarterback cut last year by the NFL's Kansas City Chiefs.

Eagles win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Second-year quarterback Mike Boryla threw two touchdown passes in his first start of the National Football League pre-season and led Philadelphia Eagles to a 30-20 victory over Cincinnati Bengals Thursday night.

Festival begins

DUNCAN — Three and a half days of camping and fun will start today when the Festival of the Sun opens here. The event is sponsored by the B.C. Arts Caravan grant, and the profits will go toward the establishment of the Indian arts college. There will be entertainment, dancing, barbeque and a number of outstanding craftsmen will display their skills and show their work.

Broken arm causes death

WURZBURG, West Germany (UPI) — An American solider climbed atop a statue on a bridge over the Main River and fell to his death when the arm of the statue broke off.

Saints facing suit over seating plan

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Businessman Dave Dixon filed a $75 million damage suit Thursday against New Orleans Saints, claiming "cruel and deceptive trade practices" in the assignment of seats in the Louisiana Superdome.

Dixon's suit asks damages for two groups of season ticket holders to the National Football League team's games: 14,000 persons assigned seats on the lower level of the stadium and 50,000 or more who have held season tickets during the seven years the Saints have played at Tulane Stadium.

Dixon says the Saints pulled the lower level of stands back from the field to allow a greater seating capacity, thereby making it impossible to see the giant television screens from those seats and impairing the view of the field.

He also says in his suit that the Saints advertised for years that season ticket holders would get first crack at the more desirable seats in the Superdome when it opened.

"We have 1975 season ticket holders sitting on the sidelines while 1967 season ticket holders are sitting in the end zone," Dixon said.

"That's a cruel and deceptive trade practice, and we're asking triple damages. It could amount to $70 million to $75 million. It could affect the ownership of the Saints. It's entirely possible that it could result in public ownership.

"And I believe it could result in other suits throughout the NFL. What it means is that no longer will franchise owners in publically built stadiums have the ultimate say-so in everything."

Baltimore joins ABA

BALTIMORE (AP) — The American Basketball Association ended months of uncertainty Thursday over its bankrupt Memphis franchise, announcing that the club will move to Baltimore.

The new team is to be called Baltimore Hustlers.

Dave DeBusschere, ABA commissioner, made the announcement at a news conference with local civic leaders and the owners of the new team. DeBusschere said plans are being prepared for an equalization draft to stock the new team and that some of the Memphis players will probably come to Baltimore.

Lawyer David Cohan, one of the owners of the Hustlers, said a coach has not yet been selected for the team but that Joe Mullaney — the Memphis coach — is a leading candidate. He has two years left on his $50,000 annual contract.

PROVINCIAL COURT

A preliminary hearing of an attempted murder charge against a 48-year-old Saanich woman began Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court before Judge William Ostler with a no-publication order and is scheduled to end this afternoon.

Mrs. Ivy Marie Long, 3841 Epsom, was charged after a shooting incident May 11 in her home during which, said Saanich police, her husband Warren John Long, 51, suffered a minor wound in the back.

The order prohibiting publication or broadcast of evidence at the hearing was issued by Ostler at the request of defence lawyer Kenneth Murphy.

Nova Scotia resident Norman John Bodhaine, 17, one of two persons charged after a $2,100 break-in and theft May 6 at Mouat's Trading store in Ganges, received a suspended sentence from Ostler and was put on probation for one year.

Bodhaine was originally charged with break-in and theft but that charge was stayed Aug. 12 when he pleaded guilty to a charge of possession May 6 of known stolen property worth more than $200.

About $1,500 in cash and cheques plus $600 worth of clothing, ammunition and cigarettes were taken in the break-in.

Alberta resident John Hunt, 29, also known as David Kelly, was remanded by Judge F. S. Green to Sept. 16 for pre-sentence report and sentence following pleas of guilty to three charges.

They were possession July 10 in the Sooke area of a known stolen car, failing to obey a release order July 21 in Victoria and assault causing bodily harm July 24 in Victoria.

Of the last charge, prosecutor Scott Marshall said Hunt and a 77-year-old man passed while walking in the 800-Block Yates and Hunt suddenly punched the man several times in the face. Then, after the man fell down, Hunt stepped on his glasses.

Marshall said Hunt told police the man had given him a dirty look and "he did not like old men . . . he was mad and was about to hit another old man" nearby when the victim crossed his path.

In traffic court, Frederick Schley, 42, of 3898 Wilkinson, pleaded guilty to a Saanich charge of impaired driving Aug. 22 and was sentenced by Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre to 14 days in jail and a six-month driving ban.

Health-cost talks 'all Ottawa wants'

SASKATOON (CP)—Federal Justice Minister Otto Lang says Ottawa has no intention of getting out of cost-sharing arrangements with the provinces to finance hospital and medical care programs.

Lang told a Liberal Party policy meeting Wednesday night that the only way the federal government could get provincial officials to discuss ways to limit growing hospital costs was to threaten to withdraw from the hospital cost-sharing agreement.

Ottawa was concerned with growing costs and wanted to negotiate ways to limit the increase, he said.

The federal government announced it was terminating the agreement in its June 23 budget. Since then, provincial representatives across Canada have said this means Ottawa is planning to get out of the cost-shared programs and place the entire financial burden on the provinces.

"The provinces know, although you wouldn't know it to hear them talk, that we have no intention of stopping to share in hospital costs," Lang told a questioner.

He said one of the reasons for rapidly-escalating medical care and hospital costs is that provinces are paying only 50 cents of every dollar as the costs rise and no serious attempts were being made to limit these costs, particularly by the richer provinces.

Lang also urged support for a national guaranteed income if such a program could replace all existing welfare programs.

He said he supported the concept, arguing that it would reduce government staff needed to operate the current proliferation of welfare programs. It also would provide more of a work incentive than current programs, he said.

He said the Liberal government still does not have the answer to transportation inequalities across Canada, but the pressure may be on to get such an answer before the 1978 federal election or voters may express their disapproval at the polls.

Strike today at BCR

VANCOUVER (CP) — The second in an expected series of rotating strikes on the B.C. Railway system is scheduled for today, disrupting local freight service at Fort St. John, Chetwynd and Dawson Creek.

Company spokesman Hugh Armstrong said the provincial government railway has received notice from the United Transportation Union and Canadian Union of Transportation Employees.

Trainmen and enginemen are to lay down tolls from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Dawson Creek, and 8 a.m. at Fort St. John and Chetwynd.

Armstrong said the disruption is not expected to affect mainline operations through Prince George. He said B.C. Rail is already operating only one mainline freight train each way daily, instead of three, owing to the effect of the forest industry labor dispute and an embargo on hauling perishable goods.

The embargo went on Aug. 20 right after the unions served strike notice when bargaining broke down on one of several contract issues — overtime pay.

B.C. Rail has been bargaining with 11 unions, including five shopcrafts, on the renewal of contracts which expired July 31.

The first 12-hour walkout confined to the railway yards at Prince George ended at midnight Wednesday without seriously affecting the service.

WORKERS' COMPENSATION BOARD OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

ANNOUNCEMENT ON HEARING LOSS

The Minister of Labour, the Hon. W. S. King, is pleased to announce that the Lieutenant-Governor in Council has ordered the issuance of a proclamation bringing into force Section 7A and Schedule D of the Workers' Compensation Act on September 1st, 1975, insofar as they relate to a hearing loss of 68 decibels or more in the ear least affected.

Under the Workers' Compensation Act, hearing loss resulting from trauma is compensated in the same manner as an industrial injury.

In other cases of hearing loss, the Act provides for compensation where the hearing loss is due to the nature of an employment under Part I of the Act. In such cases, medical aid is provided, and compensation is payable where the hearing loss has disabled a worker from earning full wages at the work at which he was employed.

The effect of the proclamation will be that effective 1st of September, 1975, a worker who has suffered a total loss of hearing from employment under Part I of the Act in British Columbia may be eligible for compensation even though he has not suffered an actual loss of earnings.

If you are suffering from total deafness caused by employment in British Columbia, you may apply now for compensation benefits.

If you are suffering from partial deafness, watch for further announcements.

To apply for compensation or to make an enquiry, write to:

90-hour order part of sentence

Community-work high

The record for longest community-service work order issued in the adult sections of Victoria Provincial Court, which was 60 hours until Thursday, was broken twice in five minutes when Judge F. S. Green made one order for 80 hours and then one for 90.

Lorraine Geisshirt, 23, of 1032 Balmoral, was the subject of the 80-hour order as part of a suspended sentence and one-year term of probation levied after she pleaded guilty Wednesday to a Victoria charge of shoplifting.

She took two blouses worth a total of $42.95 Monday from the Girls Boutique, 1320 Government, then was arrested the next day, when she returned to the store.

"I went back to the store because I'd left a package there and they remembered me," she told Green. "I guess I could have run out but I didn't."

The next case was that of Thomas Seitcher, 18, of 1287 Centre, who was sentenced to 30 days in jail followed by a 15-month term of probation. He was ordered to do 90 hours of community-service work, attend a weekend work camp and abstain from alcohol during his probation.

Seitcher pleaded guilty Aug. 11 to a Victoria charge of possession of known stolen property Aug. 10 — 17 bottles of liquor and eight cases of beer which two other men stole early that day from Antonio's Restaurant, 2 Centennial Square, and Seitcher helped them to carry it to a nearby parkade.

Prosecutor Barry Mah Ming said the others were sentenced earlier to 14-day jail terms for the theft. Green noted Seitcher had a record going back to 1971 and was on probation Aug. 10.

"I don't really know what to do with you," Green told Seitcher. "You're turning your whole thing into a mess because of alcohol."

The judge said he didn't think a jail term would change Seitcher's attitude but the public interest demanded it. Seitcher should "smarten up (and) break the alcohol pattern, which could result in an early death or lengthy periods in prison."

Provincial legislation passed in 1974 allowed the use of community-service work orders as part of sentence. A convicted person is told by the judge to do so many hours of work and a community-service supervisor in the probation service decides where.

Work orders also can be made at the discretion of police without recourse to the courts. The work can range from desk duty at a youth club to cleanup at a municipal park.

Court and probation officials agreed before the scheme started last winter on an unofficial maximum of 100 hours in "adult" court orders and the highest until Thursday had been 60.

In Victoria juvenile court, there has been one order for 100 hours of work and one, made only this week, for 150 hours.

B.C. police aid Papua in starting

Two B.C. police officers will be leaving shortly for a month-long stint in Papua, New Guinea, to assist the emerging nation in establishing its own police force.

Atorney-General AlexMacdonald said the "land-police" arrangement was a result of a request for assistance from the government of Australia, former administrator of the country. Papua becomes independent Sept. 4.

The two officers, Geoff Mortimer and Joe Horwell, are both from the Lower Mainland area. Mortimer is a member of the B.C. Police Commission and Hornell is West Vancouver's chief.

Macdonald said it was gratifying that the police system in B.C. had been selected as the one on which the Papuans wanted to model their new force.

Afte the tour of duty of the two B.C. policemen, four or five officers from the newly-formed Papuan force will travel to B.C. for a full course at the B.C. Police College.

IWA: A narrow 'No'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 29,000 coast members of the International Woodworkers of America have rejected a proposed settlement in the B.C. forest industry dispute by a vote of 51.2 per cent, the union announced Thursday.

Jack Munro, regional vice-president of the IWA, said the negotiating committee will be called in next week to decide on the union's next move. The committee had recommended the report be accepted.

Munro said he was disappointed in the rejection vote, but the union now must find a way to improve the report by special mediator Henry Hutcheon, chief justice of the B.C. Supreme Court.

The forest industry reacted to the IWA vote by confirming that it doesn't intend to budge beyond the recommendations in the report.

The Hutcheon report provided for increases of $1.55 an hour on the base rate of $5.10 an hour in a two-year contract. A cost-of-living clause that provided 24 cents an hour under the old agreement would be included.

The IWA sought an increase of $1 an hour in a one-year contract while pulp workers originally wanted $1.50 an hour over one year.

The Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada and the Canadian Paperworkers Union earlier rejected the mediator's recommendations by identical votes of 84 per cent.

Woodworkers in the southern interior were the only group to accept the Hutcheon report. A spokesman there said the rejection vote on the coast would not affect them.

Pulp workers are already on strike but have voted not to picket operations that employ IWA members until Wednesday so the woodworkers would get holiday pay from the statutory Labor Day holiday.

'Safety' strike to halt air service on Sunday

OTTAWA (CP) — Air traffic controllers said Thursday they will strike at 12:30 a.m. B.C. time Sunday to protest a government plan to give their assistants more work duties.

The walkout would virtually halt all commercial air travel in the country.

B.C. regional director Jim Whyte said the 240 controllers in B.C. would provide for emergency services such as mercy flights, "but that's all."

"We won't be striking for anything but air safety," he said. "We aren't after more money or shorter hours, we're just trying to head off a possible disaster."

The date of the planned walkout caught government officials by surprise although the controllers had warned of a possible strike if the 10-month dispute was not resolved.

Jim Livingston, president of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, said the employees would stay off the job until the dispute is resolved satisfactorily.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand told a news conference soon after the 2,200-member union had announced its plans that he wished the controllers would hold off a walkout until next week when the cabinet will be available in Ottawa to discuss the problem.

Marchand also promised legal steps to try to force the employees back to work should there be a strike.

A walkout by the controllers would be illegal. The union has a contract which remains in effect until Dec. 31, 1975.

The controllers argue the government plan to assign more duties to the assistants, who belong to the Public Service Alliance of Canada, would result in a safety hazard for the public.

The assistantts were unqualified and insufficiently trained to handle three specific control functions, they say. The duties are collection of time and altitude information, pre-taxi clearance and flight data plotting.

The threatened strike is the second potential walkout facing the transport department and is the more immediate one. The Canadian Airline Pilots' Association has called for a 24-hour strike on Oct. 17 unless the government stops tests on bilingual air traffic control in Quebec.

Bus depot closed by pickets

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Canadian Paperworkers Union pickets Thursday closed the Vancouver Island Coach Line bus depot here.

A CPU spokesman said the action was taken because the union believed the bus line could be involved in strike-breaking activity by carrying express and materials for MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.

King flays bargaining ploys

Labor Minister William King said Thursday that too many labor-management negotiations in B.C. were requiring the intervention of a third party in the form of an industrial inquiry commission.

He made the statement during the taping of CTV's Capital Comment for viewing Sunday night.

Earlier this year King expressed concern over the effectiveness of the collective bargaining system and stated that if it continued to break down other methods of solving major disputes may have to be found.

Thursday he wasn't saying what those other methods might be.

"The point I'm trying to make with respect to the collective bargaining system not working very well is the growing tendency of labor and management to rely on third parties to bring about settlements," he said. "It's becoming a rarity for the parties to sit down and negotiate their own agreements."

The minister said he was convinced that in some disputes both sides arrived at the bargaining table knowing they would in the end rely on the government to provide a decision for them.

"And that is the failure of the collective bargaining system," he said. "That is when we have to consider alternatives, that is what we are concerned about. We have provided full and free measures and they will either be successful or the public will demand other alternatives."

Asked if he had considered establishing labor courts such as those in some European countries, King said he preferred "not to hold out anything particular at this time . . . but we haven't considered

Chains, clubs used in melee

CDC enticing investors with boost in dividends

TORONTO (CP) — The Canada Development Corp., shaken by changing market conditions and by criticism of its proposed shares offering, has altered the terms to make the stock more attractive to investors.

● City brokers say issue all gone, Page 9

Key changes, disclosed Thursday to a meeting of underwriters, are an increase in the dividend to 8 from 7 per cent, and a reduction in the money-back guarantee period to five from 10 years.

Shortly after the changes became known, brokers reported a rush for the stock that previously had been getting a mixed response.

CDC directors, headed by president H. A. Hampson, met with the underwriters following an emergency meeting Wednesday to discuss the prospects for the offering designed to raise $100 million to $125 million for the federal-owned investment firm.

It was reported that the underwriters were prepared to sell at least $100 million of $100 convertible preferred shares which under the revised terms, will pay investors $8 interest instead of $7 and with five instead of 10 years to get their money back.

Before meeting with the underwriters, Hampson said the market was less buoyant with higher interest rates than it was when the CDC first made its offer July.

The CDC has been buffeted

Plane destroyed by runway bomb

TUCUMAN (AP) — Explosives placed under an airport runway by guerrilla terrorists blasted a transport plane loaded with 114 border guards Thursday, Argentine military officers said.

They said a tleast four persons were killed and 30 were wounded.

In addition to the border guards, the U.S.-made C-130 also had a crew of five or six men.

An official communique said the Argentine air force turbojet plane was taxiing for takeoff at Benjamin Matienzo airport in Tucuman, 750 miles northeast of Buenos Aires, when the explosion occurred and the plane erupted in flames.

A photographer said sections of one of the aircraft's four engines was blown 400 yards away and several sheep at a nearby farm were killed by falling chunks of the concrete runway.

THE POLLEN YEARS

Fast on draw, mayor shines in verbal wars

Second of a series

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Mayor Peter Pollen's finest moments have come when he tore adversaries to shreds.

But his eagerness to dish out blows is equalled only by his inability to accept criticism.

One of the more memorable moments involved a column which I wrote in January 1971, about a year after he first became an alderman.

The column accused him of destroying the morale of much of the staff at city hall by his constant attacks on the administration.

The column quoted more than a dozen senior city hall officials (with names deleted) expressing feeling of bitterness, discouragement and disappointment.

They all objected to being called "bureaucrats bent on pushing through one mad scheme after another" and similar accusations that had been voiced by Pollen in the past.

Pollen phoned me at home that evening, laying a few choice words on me and threatening he would never speak to me again.

For more than three months, he kept his promise until one day, just before a council meeting, he approached me cheerfully, asking whether I'd like a Lifesaver.

I accepted the olive branch and got along well with him until next time.

His most relished feud has been with Victoria radio station C-FAX or, as Pollen pronounces it C.F.A.X. He will not grace the station with referring to it by its more familiar name.

It all began at a cocktail party at which he and a sta-

Dishing it out: Peter's principles

Following is a collection of Pollenisms on a variety of subjects. All of them were uttered impromptu and without a second's hesitation.

On corporations: "We must establish guidelines for corporations or a new kind of feudalism will take over our cities. It's already manifested by the architecture of enormity, coupled with our obsession for security. The only way you can get into many of these huge complexes is through a Pinkerton guard."

On banks: "They're led by people who started at 16 and are now chairmen of the board. They have no planned approach to society and they have an immense financial capacity. Their response to urban challenges is a big zero. They just go on building huge buildings to outdo each other. It's ludicrous for corporate pride to be reflected in this manner."

On Europeans: "They are very nice people, but they're inordinately smug, undemocratic and self-satisfied."

On the morale of a police force which claims to be underpaid: "It's regrettable that esprit de corps and morale in any force are equated with money. If this were true, the New York police force should have a high morale and dope pedlars making $30,000 and $40,000 a year should have a high morale."

On himself: "I would say with the utmost modesty that I'm probably the best mayor the city has had since the war."

Pollen has often hung labels on various segments of society and some of these labels are worth mentioning.

The chamber of commerce: "The flat earth society.

Unions: "Organizations bent on destroying society."

Developers: "Rapacious enterprenurs."

The tobacco industry lobbying against advertising bans: "An immense lobby aided and abetted by the Senate of Canada which has thwarted and destroyed any proposed federal legislation regarding tobacco advertising."

Pelletier new Paris envoy

OTTAWA (CP) — Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier, close confidant of Prime Minister Trudeau, is resigning to become Canadian ambassador in Paris, it was learned Thursday.

Friends of the family confirmed rumors that the announcement was due shortly, probably today, by the prime minister who entered politics with Pelletier 10 years ago.

It was learned that the Pelletier home in Montreal has been rented.

In Montreal Wednesday, Quebec Communications Minister Dennis Hardy was reported to have told a radio interviewer he did not know who his new federal counterpart would be after Pelletier becomes ambassador to France Oct. 1.

Then Thursday, sources said Speaker James Jerome had received notification of a resignation by an MP, effective today. A spokesman in Trudeau's office said the prime minister would be making a statement today, on his return from an Arctic vacation.

On top of all this, it was learned that Leo Cadieux, the present ambassador in Paris, was tendered a farewell dinner there Tuesday.

There had been on official announcement of a change in ambassadors, but an external affairs department official said Thursday that one could be expected shortly.

There have been recurring rumors for months that Pelletier, 56, would become the next ambassador to Paris. After 10 years in Parliament, seven of them in cabinet, he was said to be anxious to try a more relaxed existence. He has lately been embroiled in that sometimes incredible federal-Quebec dispute over cablevision rights.

OSHAWA — Victoria Bate Construction rode Dave Ruthowsky's three-hit pitching and Bob Burrows booming bat to a 4-1 win over Quebec, Thursday, in the opening game of a double-knockout final series for the Canadian senior men's softball championship.

A double by Bob Holness and Pete Songhurt's single gave the B.C. champions a second-inning lead and after Quebec, represented by Gatineau Thom Construction, got the tying run in the top of the third inning. Ruthowsky slammed the door and Burrows provided the punch which produced a sixth straight win for Victoria.

Burrows cracked a two-run double in the mottom of the third to score Reg Underwood, who had singled, and Carl Walker, who had reached base on an error, and then unloaded a home run, his third of the tournament in the sixth inning.

The host Oshawa club, which clinched second place in the Red Division with a 2-0 win over Newfoundland earlier in the day to qualify for the round-robin play, gave up an early run to previously unbeaten Kitchener Evergreens then staged two-run rallies in the fourth and sixth innings.

A double by Paul Gibbens drove in the fourth-inning runs while the Tony's put together three singles with a Kitchener error and sacrifice for their final two runs.

The Kitchener club had completed its round-robin play by defeating Manitoba, 5-1, to finish with a 5-0 record in the Blue Division. Quebec earned the second berth out of that division with a 10-0 romp over Prince Edward Island.

Winner of today's Bates-Tony's game advances to the final at 10 a.m. Saturday while the loser moves to the losers' bracket final at 8 p.m. against the winner of a Quebec-Ontario game, scheduled for this morning.

There will be national television coverage of Saturday's action which could end with a 10 a.m. game or extend into a second game scheduled for 12:30 p.m. Oshawa time.

Reds help Pirates by blanking Cards

Pittsburgh Pirates had a day off Thursday and enjoyed it doubly as their lead in the east division of the National League grew to three and a half games.

Runaway leaders in the west division, Cincinnati Reds gave the Pirates a boost by besting St. Louis Cardinals as Don Gullett pitched a five-hitter for his seventh straight victory, a 4-0 shutout which dropped the Cards into a tie with Philadelphia Phillies.

The Phillies earned a share of second place with an 8-5 win over San Francisco Giants.

Tom Hilgendorf checked the Giants on six hits for seven and a third innings after the Giants had chased Jim Lonborg with three runs on five hits in the first inning. Hilgendorf, who ran his record to six wins in nine decisions, helped his own cause with a run-scoring double in a three-run seventh inning. Tug McGraw pitched the ninth inning and gave up a two-run single to Bobby Murcer.

With San Francisco leading by 3-2, Mike Schmidt started a sixth-inning Philadelphia rally against Jim Barr with a one-out double. He scored on Garry Maddox' triple and Maddox scored the go-ahead run on a double by Johnny Oates. Oates later scored on Dave Cash's grounder.

Cincinnati's margin in the west grew to 18½ games as New York Mets jumped on the Los Angeles Dodgers for a 4-1 win as rookie Mike Vail belted a tie-breaking single in the fifth inning and Del Unser added a two-run homer in the seventh.

Jerry Koosman scattered eight hits for his 11th victory, as the Mets moved to within a game of St. Louis and Philadelphia.

Injunction clears Cuthbertson

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia supreme court injunction granted Thursday will put jockey Alan Cuthbertson back in the saddle at Exhibition Park until an appeal is heard against his suspension.

Mr. Justice Lloyd McKenzie granted the injunction against enforcement of the three-day suspension issued by Exhibition Park stewards for an alleged bumping of two horses in last Saturday's Jack Diamond Futurity.

Court officials said it was the first time such an injunction has been granted in Canada although it has been done in the U.S.

The injunction will be in force until the B.C. Racing Commission hears Cuthbertson's appeal against the stewards ruling, possibly on Tuesday.

Cuthbertson's lawyer, Morely Cofman, argued that the suspension would deprive Cuthbertson of the opportunity to ride in Saturday's B.C. Derby Trial and in Monday's S.W. Randall Plate, two races which could prove especially profitable for the jockeys riding in them.

Cofman said that the suspension could cause irreparable damage to Cuthbertson because if the jockey's appeal was successful he wouldn't be able to precisely state damages in any subsequent suit.

He said Cuthbertson could lose as much as $10,000 by not riding in the two races, "but it would be very difficult to prove precisely what the damages were."

HMCS Quadra

Women's role praised

COMOX — This year, which has been designated International Women's Year, more than 200 female cadets, have attended the HMCS Quarda land-based naval training establishment.

The camp, which this weekend ends its 25th year of operation, has evolved from a primarily sea-oriented operation to a land-water course of training.

Commander G. F. Amundsen, who assumed command last week from Commander Ralph Vipond, said the women have been absorbed without problems.

"In fact, they have had a beneficial effect on us all, and this feeling of goodwill I intend to encourage."

The rule at Quadra is equal privileges with equal responsibilities. This means that the quota of women, in the ratio of five to one, take the toughest of training, including the practical leadership course, a really exhausting experience in its demands on spirit and body.

Cadets training includes the obstacle course, drill, sports and firing range, in addition to a full range of seafaring skills and boat handling.

The cadet band this year participated in several parades, locally and in Vancouver, and recently in the colorful and ceremonial Ceremony of the Flags.

The summer-long program at Quadra ranges from the sea phase in which marine skills are taught to wilderness survival and adventure training on Forbidden Plateau treks, to precision drill on the parade square and a wide range of academic studies in the nearby Comox junior high school.

During their training sessions, cadets this year were able to lend a hand to marine travellers who needed assistance in 20 incidents.

On several occasions in past years, cadets have been involved in rescue operations at sea.

This year more than 2,500 cadets spent a week or more at the camp.

It's coming at bad time

Supermarket closure would first hit vegetable producers

By JIM GIBSON

A prolonged supermarket shutdown on the Lower Mainland and in Victoria would be disastrous for the province's vegetable producers, according to the Victoria manager of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

Dick Stocks said producers could hold off a couple of days but as the available storage filled up the alternative might be to plow crops under.

"It's coming at a bad time for vegetable growers," he said of the labor dispute between the 21-member B.C. Food Council and three unions that could shut down major supermarkets some time after Labor day.

Stocks estimated that losses to the provincial farming industry could reach a $1 million a day with a shutdown.

He said this figure was based not only on lost produce but also on the laying off of farm workers. He said a prolonged shutdown would first affect vegetable and fruit producers but poultry and meat producers would eventually be hit.

He said cattlemen were already finding few buyers for finished animals as retail buyers were cutting back in the event of a shutdown. He said there buyers were scarce for 4-H calves at the Pacific National Exhibition.

Stocks said co-operatives across the province were looking for other outlets either on the Prairies or the numerous independent stores not involved in the dispute.

But he said the independent stores could only handle so much produce.

Doug Philp, manager of the Island Vegetable Co-operative, said his 75-member group was adopting a wait-and-see attitude toward the possible shutdown.

A similar attitude is held by local retail clerks union business agent John Nicol who said a Victoria shutdown all depended on whether proposed Lower Mainland lockouts spread to this area.

Any lockouts by affected Victoria area supermarkets would come with the striking of Lower Mainland Super-Valu stores by Meatcutters or with pickets by bakery workers at the Fort and Foul Bay Safeway store.

Food Council member stores in the Victoria area include 10 Safeway stores, three Shop Easy markets and a single Maverick store.

John Pepper, manager of the Cadboro Bay Shop Easy which is not involved in the dispute, reported "quite a lot of people are buying."

"I've never had to worry about having too much business," he said.

But labor problems in eastern Canada have reached as far as his store. About one-third of his orders, he reported, cannot be met because of eastern Canada labor disputes.

Ottawa urged to assist short-haul air services

The British Columbia government has asked Ottawa to help save the province's network of short-haul local air services from operational and financial distress.

Transport Minister Robert Strachan said Thursday the provincial government sent a brief to the federal government outlining the problems and listing recommendations for federal action ranging from monetary help to improved navigational aids.

The brief was sent to federal Transport Minister Jean Marchand whose department claims exclusive jurisdiction over the so-called third-level air carriers which operate scheduled or semi-regular flights between B.C. communities.

Strachan said the provincial government surveyed all 17 third-level carriers in B.C. The carriers are based in 12 different communities, employ 620 persons and operate 221 aircraft for regular or charter flights.

"The situation has become acute in this province with the threat of withdrawal of their essential services becoming more real every day," says the brief. "Forced reductions in over-all operations are already occurring as some carriers try to avoid financial disaster."

Strachan said some financial assistance may be necessary to prevent essential services from disappearing while governments try to work out long-range solutions.

Included in other recommendations were:

A call for more federal funds to improve and upgrade small non ministry of transport airports;

Establishment of a federal capital equipment loan fund making financing available to small carriers on reasonable terms to replace or renew aged aircraft;

Sayward woman wins big prize

Victorians won six of the 42 consolation prizes of $100. The other winners were from other parts of B.C., except for one winner from Calgary and one from London, England.

Another draw will be held Oct. 6, and the final draw for $100,000 will ne held Nov. 28.

Proceeds from the lottery go to B.C. Lions Society for Crippled Children projects, such as camps, transportation, the Easter Seal house, and the Cleft Lip Palate Association.

Lottery tickets ate still available from K-Mart, the Empress, liquor stores on weekends, the Ingraham Hotel, and at the corner of Douglas and Yates.

Courses on literature to continue

Included in the fall syllabus is a non-credit course — Selected Readings in Literature — which will allow students to participate in a weekly discussion group that will focus on the fiction of the Commonwealth. This class will meet on Thursday mornings.

Kevin Roberts, the instructor, has undertaken post-graduate studies on this subject at Exeter University, England, and as a writer from Australia now living in Canada, has a special understanding of most facets of the Commonwealth experience.

Novels selected for examination will be drawn from those written in India, Australia, Canada, South Africa, Nigeria, the West Indies and other post-British countries.

The course will endeavour to find out what changes have occurred in the vision of first the British writer and later the native or homegrown writer.

It will deal with the manner in Which the English language was modified to accommodat alien or new landscapes, frontiers and modes of lif.

It will also look at the inevitable conflicts that arose from this encounter of British sensibility with different environments, races, creeds and classes and, as far as possible, will trace the emergence of significant national literatures.

Novels to be considered include Voss by Patrick White, the Australian who received the Nobel prize for literature last year. Other works to be examined include Conrad's Heart of Darkness, the Nigerian novel Things Fall Apart, by Chinua Achebe, Agagak, by French Canadian Yves Theriault, Doris Lessing's African novel The Grass is Singing, Richardson's Wacousta, a novel about early Canada and George Lamming's novel about growing up in the West Indies, In the Castle of my Skin.

The first text to be discussed will be Four Hemispheres, a collection of short stories from many other commonwealth countries edited by W. H. New, professor in commonwealth literature at the University of British Columbia.

Capture of mate for Haida whale bittersweet

By GRANIA LITWIN
Colonist Reporter

The story of a young female killer whale recently taken to Sealand of the Pacific by owner Bob Wright is a bittersweet one.

Bittersweet, because, while the whale is to become the companion, and possible mate, of Sealand's performing killer whale Haida, in doing so it has had to leave its family, a small six-member pod which travelled to Victoria from Barkley Sound.

Haida, a nine-year-old whale and resident of Sealand for the past six years, had two would-be mates before this one — Chimo and Nootka — both of whom died of hereditary diseases.

How long this new female, estimated to be an immature three-year-old, will live is anybody's guess.

Killer whales have a life expectancy of roughly 35 years, according to Pacific Biological Station scientist Dr. Mike Bigg.

Thousands of Victorians are emotionally involved in, and curious about, the future of these two ocean-going mammals, but an even wider audience is interested in the whole story of killer whales.

There is a common fascination in the organization of small whale families (called pods) just as there is for species such as Canada geese and trumpeter swans which choose their mates for life.

A typical pod consists of 15 animals, explained Bigg in an interview from Nanaimo this week, and an extraordinary fact is that there is no obvious leader.

"Whales are very intelligent, their social hierarchy is arranged under water and there is no indication of any leader."

There is a wealth of interesting stories about the close family ties of killer whales and not the least striking was one incident on this coast.

Typical killer whale pod in Island waters

In June, 1964, a pod of whales was trapped in the mouth of a small bay near Namu. All but one were released.

The remaining whale, called Namu, was sold to Seattle Marine Aquarium for $8,000 and transported in a floating cage towed by boat all the way to Puget Sound.

It was only after Namu was transferred into the aquarium that his family returned to the area north of Vancouver Island.

In his novel, A Whale for the Killing, Farley Mowat describes a case where a whale, trapped by the tide in a small bay, is kept alive by its mate which herds schools of herring into it from outside the bay.

Of the whales caught in Pedder Bay, Aug. 16, only two have been kept for aquariums, yet the rest of the pod is reported still in the area. One spokesman said that two or perhaps three did not leave the bay even when released last week.

The whale still held in the bay may be shipped to an aquarium in Niagara Falls, Ont., Wright said.

Another interesting fact about killer whales is that they appear to have a language. They make two kinds of sounds ranging from a low frequency noise to something far above human hearing, and can communicate up to 10 miles, Bigg said.

This fact seems to have been confirmed at Sealand, according to manager Angus Matthews.

"When Chimo was performing at Sealand two years ago, we strongly suspected she never understood the trainer's hand-movement instructions."

"We believed Haida was telling her what to do."

Matthews went on to explain that because Chimo never watched hand instructions. When the whales dived they communicated in swift high-frequency sounds which were recorded on hydrophones, and performed tricks and broke the surface at precisely the same moment.

"Their movements were absolutely simultaneous," said the manager, who added the trainer could not have achieved such perfection through hours of effort.

To the Indian tribes of the northwest coast of B.C., killer whales have always symbolized strength and power and today scientists are proving they may need this to survive.

In a report printed in August's issue of B.C. Outdoors magazine, Raymond Davis claims they are "highly social animals," and goes on to explain that while stocks were at first estimated to be in the thousands, their numbers are more likely only several hundred in local waters.

leen, fin whales and other great whales which range across the oceans of the world consist of hundreds of thousands of animals while killer whales number, in total, perhaps 10,000.

Festival begins

DUNCAN — Three and a half days of camping and fun will start today when the Festival of the Sun opens here. The event is sponsored by the B.C. Arts Caravan grant, and the profits will go toward the establishment of the Indian arts college. There will be entertainment, dancing, barbeque and a number of outstanding craftsmen will display their skills and show their work.

Forest pickets will escalate

Canadian Press

B.C. forest unions decided Wednesday to escalate picketing throughout the province but wouldn't say by how much.

The move followed a meeting with the B.C. Federation of Labor after there were indications the 30,000-member coastal division of the International Woodworkers of America will reject the mediation report of Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon.

The striking Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada and the Canadian Paperworkers Union earlier rejected the report and announced plans to escalate picketing to all forest operations run by companies already hit by the pulp and paper shutdown.

They had previously said they would delay increased picketing until the IWA completed its vote on the hutcheon report.

"Many IWA-represented operations around the province will have PPWC-CPU pickets around them by next Wednesday and most of the industry represented by the big forest companies will be shut down," said Stan Shewaga, PPWC vice-president.

Len Guy, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said picket expansion to IWA operations by the pulp unions should be confined to "one or two instances" until next Wednesday, when the unions and the federation meet again to discuss picketing.

Resource board's role explained

BY JOHN HENDERSON
Colonist Correspondent

PORT ALBERNI — A community Liaison officer for the department of human - resources, made a presentation before council this week, to clarify what he termed "some misunderstandings of the role of the Port Alberni Community Resources Board."

William McKenzie also outlined the implications "of not having a fully elective board replacing the current interim body."

He first defined the basic function of the CFB in the community, stressing that the board worked within a framework of priorities established by the human resources department and the minister in determining the needs and priorities of non-statutory social services.

Assistance, including the obtaining o fadditional funding, had been obtained by the local board for such activities as transportation for the handicapped, family guidance and the drug and alcohol commission, McKenzie said.

He added, "Since they do not fall within the priorities or guidelines", such organizations as a choral society or other purely recreational group would not come within the scope of the board.

Council had turned over a request for funds from the Port Alberni Orchestra and Choral Society to the CFB last spring.)

Once the board became a strictly elected body, McKenzie said, it would operate from a "global fund" at its own discretion in matters of funding, rather than referring all requests to Victoria, as was necessary now. This would broaden its abilities to assist in "particular cases" considerably, he said.

Also, he said, there was no decline in local financing as had been stated by a member of the interim board. During the current year, the board and agencies they had been assisting would be receiving $65,000 from the government.

McKenzie said this was considerably more than had been received in the past, and in fact "Port Alberni is doing very well in obtaining its share of available funds."

Mayor Howard McLean asked about programs that the city is already financing which might fall "within your priorities". Would the CRB be taking them over, he asked.

McKenzie said that this could happen.

"Then we should continue to send along these requests for funding that we receive to see if they are in your ball park," the mayor said.

"You can do that," McKenzie said, "but I think there will be a good many cases in which they will come right back."

The mayor then wanted to know if a member of council could be elected to the directorate of the CRB.

"Certainly," McKenzie replied. "We'd be delighted to have a member of council as one of our directors. I'm sure it would provide an ideal method of liaison between council and the board."

McKenzie said the obtaining of assistance and financing from the Community Resource Board would not necessarily stop any organisation seeking financial aid from approaching the city.

"Many organizations are seeking funds from whatever source they can," he said, "and just because we are helping them will not stop them from approaching you for assistance, nor should it stop you from donating to what you would consider a worthy community effort."

It cradles your heel and supports your arch. Unlike ordinary shoes, you stand in Roots, not on them.
The Roots toe is not pointed like the toes of ordinary shoes. It is broad and rounded like feet so your toes have room to wiggle and air can circulate to keep your feet cool.
The bottom of the sole is molded in a "rocker" shape so that it fits the natural heel-to-toe motion of walking.
The heel is only about the height of the heel on a tennis shoe and the "rocker" sole curves up toward the tip of the toe.
If you wonder whether or not all this makes any sense put one of your ordinary shoes on a table and look at it for a minute.
Notice that the heels have worn away and the sole has assumed a comfortable curve. Whether you wear size 3½ or 13, high heel or regular heel, the more you wear an ordinary shoe, the more it assumes the shape of Roots

Your shoes are trying to tell you something.

There are other casual shoes that look like Roots at first glance.
Some have sculptured soles. Others are styled to look as though they do.
But none of them has the obvious love of good leather and fine boot-making you'll find in a pair of Roots.
The difference in Roots is due, in large part, to the men pictured here. John Kowalewski and his sons are custom-bootmakers. They built the first pairs of Roots with the same care and enthusiasm they poured into the expensive shoes they had made for exclusive boutiques.
Today they run the Roots factory in Toronto where every pair of Roots is made.
They pick the leather, set the standards, supervise the whole operation.
They are of the old school.
So, in Roots you have more than a shoe made for the way you were born to walk. You also have a beautifully made pair of shoes, visibly nicer (and a little more expensive) than the rest.

The trouble with Roots.
The trouble is, they're so damned comfortable.
Believe it or not, people worry about that.
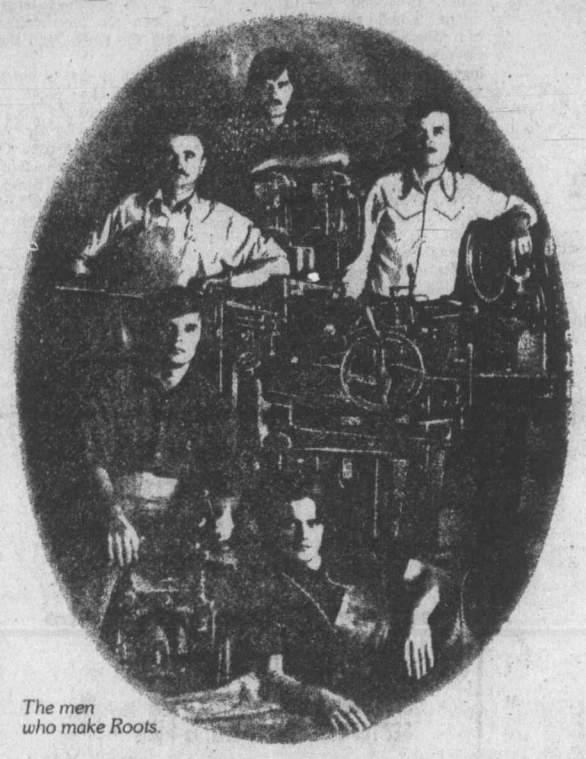
They worry that after getting used to Roots they won't be able to wear ordinary shoes.
Some people just like to worry.
But there simply isn't anything to worry about.
Walking in Roots is very much like walking in bare feet and you've been doing that on and off for most of your life.



The men who make Roots.

Roots do take some getting used to because they ask you to use muscles in your legs and back that have been under-used wearing ordinary shoes.
And of course, they don't look like ordinary shoes either, which bothers some people.
But, if you're secure enough to deal with a few characters who want to know why you're wearing those "funny-looking shoes" you're going to love the comfort of Roots.

Sold only at Roots stores.
And you'll find these stores as comfortable an experience as Roots themselves.
They don't look like ordinary shoe stores.
As a result Roots customers keep coming back for more. The record right now is 10 pairs bought in less than a year, by a man who is definitely old enough to know better.
Evidently it's easier than we guessed to go bananas over Roots.

Roots.

"Be kind to feet. They outnumber people two to one."

Out from under the gun

Two young children walk past police position on way out of house where they had been held hostage for three hours in Kansas City on Thursday. They were held by bank robber who ran into house while being chased by police. Robber surrendered shortly after releasing children.

IWA: A narrow 'No'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 29,000 coast members of the International Woodworkers of America have rejected a proposed settlement in the B.C. forest industry dispute by a vote of 51.2 per cent, the union announced Thursday.

Jack Munro, regional vice-president of the IWA, said the negotiating committee will be called in next week to decide on the union's next move. The committee had recommended the report be accepted.

Munro said he was disappointed in the rejection vote, but the union now must find a way to improve the report by special mediator Henry Hutcheon, chief justice of the B.C. Supreme Court.

The forest industry reacted to the IWA vote by confirming that it doesn't intend to budge beyond the recommendations in the report.

The Hutcheon report provided for increases of $1.55 an hour on the base rate of $5.10 an hour in a two-year contract. A cost-of-living clause that provided 24 cents an hour under the old agreement would be included.

The IWA sought an increase of $1 an hour in a one-year contract while pulp workers originally wanted $1.50 an hour over one year.

The Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada and the Canadian Paperworkers Union earlier rejected the mediator's recommendations by identical votes of 84 per cent.

Woodworkers in the southern interior were the only group to accept the Hutcheon report. A spokesman there said the rejection vote on the coast would not affect them.

Pulp workers are already on strike but have voted not to picket operations that employ IWA members until Wednesday so the woodworkers would get holiday pay from the statutory Labor Day holiday.

'Safety' strike to halt air service on Sunday

OTTAWA (CP) — Air traffic controllers said Thursday they will strike at 12:30 a.m. B.C. time Sunday to protest a government plan to give their assistants more work duties.

The walkout would virtually halt all commercial air travel in the country.

B.C. regional director Jim Whyte said the 240 controllers in B.C. would provide for emergency services such as mercy flights, "but that's all."

"We won't be striking for anything but air safety," he said. "We aren't after more money or shorter hours, we're just trying to head off a possible disaster."

The date of the planned walkout caught government officials by surprise although the controllers had warned of a possible strike if the 10-month dispute was not resolved.

Jim Livingston, president of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, said the employees would stay off the job until the dispute is resolved satisfactorily.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand told a news conference soon after the 2,200-member union had announced its plans that he wished the controllers would hold off a walkout until next week when the cabinet will be available in Ottawa to discuss the problem.

Marchand also promised legal steps to try to force the employees back to work should there be a strike.

A walkout by the controllers would be illegal. The union has a contract which remains in effect until Dec. 31, 1975.

The controllers argue the government plan to assign more duties to the assistants, who belong to the Public Service Alliance of Canada, would result in a safety hazard for the public.

The assistants were unqualified and insufficiently trained to handle three specific control functions, they say. The duties are collection of time and altitude information, pre-taxi clearance and flight data plotting.

The threatened strike is the second potential walkout facing the transport department and is the more immediate one. The Canadian Airline Pilots' Association has called for a 24-hour strike on Oct. 17 unless the government stops tests on bilingual air traffic control in Quebec.

Bus depot closed by pickets

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — Canadian Paperworkers Union pickets Thursday closed the Vancouver Island Coach Lines bus depot here.

A CPU spokesman said the action was taken because the union believed the bus line could be involved in strike-breaking activity by carrying express and materials for MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.

King flays bargaining ploys

Labor Minister William King said Thursday that too many labor-management negotiations in B.C. were requiring the intervention of a third party in the form of an industrial inquiry commission.

He made the statement during the taping of CTV's Capital Comment for viewing Sunday night.

Earlier this year King expressed concern over the effectiveness of the collective bargaining system and stated that if it continued to break down other methods of solving major disputes may have to be found.

Thursday he wasn't saying what those other methods might be.

"The point I'm trying to make with respect to the collective bargaining system not working very well is the growing tendency of labor and management to rely on third parties to bring about settlements," he said. "It's becoming a rarity for the parties to sit down and negotiate their own agreements."

The minister said he was convinced that in some disputes both sides arrived at the bargaining table knowing they would in the end rely on the government to provide a decision for them.

"And that is the failure of the collective bargaining system," he said. "That is when we have to consider alternatives, that is what we are concerned about. We have provided full and free measures and they will either be successful or the public will demand other alternatives."

Asked if he had considered establishing labor courts such as those in some European countries, King said he preferred "not to hold out anything particular at this time . . . but we haven't considered

TERRACE (CP) — No one was seriously hurt Wednesday when about 100 people—local residents and workers from a travelling carnival — battled one another with clubs, chains and rocks. Police said the fight lasted about 10 minutes, and no charged have been laid.

CDC enticing investors with boost in dividends

TORONTO (CP) — The Canada Development Corp., shaken by changing market conditions and by criticism of its proposed shares offering, has altered the terms to make the stock more attractive to investors.

● City brokers say issue all gone. Page 9

Key changes, disclosed Thursday to a meeting of underwriters, are an increase in the dividend to 8 from 7 per cent, and a reduction in the money-back guarantee period to five from 10 years.

Shortly after the changes became known, brokers reported a rush for the stock that previously had been getting a mixed response.

CDC directors, headed by president H. A. Hampson, met with the underwriters following an emergency meeting Wednesday to discuss the prospects for the offering designed to raise $100 million to $125 million for the federal-owned investment firm.

It was reported that the underwriters were prepared to sell at least $100 million of $100 convertible preferred shares which under the revised terms, will pay investors $8 interest instead of $7 and with five instead of 10 years to get their money back.

Before meeting with the underwriters, Hampson said the market was less buoyant with higher interest rates than it was when the CDC first made its offer July.

Plane destroyed by runway bomb

They said at least four persons were killed and 30 were wounded.

In addition to the border guards, the U.S.-made C-130 also had a crew of five or six men.

An official communique said the Argentine air force turbojet plane was taxiing for takeoff at Benjamin Matienzo airport in Tucuman, 750 miles northeast of Buenos Aires, when the explosion occurred and the plane erupted in flames.

A photographer said sections of one of the aircraft's four engines was blown 400 yards away and several sheep at a nearby farm were killed by falling chunks of the concrete runway.

Pelletier new Paris envoy

OTTAWA (CP) — Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier, close confidant of Prime Minister Trudeau, is resigning to become Canadian ambassador in Paris, it was learned Thursday.

Friends of the family confirmed rumors that the announcement was due shortly, probably today, by the prime minister who entered politics with Pelletier 10 years ago.

It was learned that the Pelletier home in Montreal has been rented.

In Montreal Wednesday, Quebec Communications Minister Dennis Hardy was reported to have told a radio interviewer he did not know who his new federal counterpart would be after Pelletier becomes ambassador to France Oct. 1.

Then Thursday, sources said Speaker James Jerome had received notification of a resignation by an MP, effective today. A spokesman in Trudeau's office said the prime minister would be making a statement today, on his return from an Arctic vacation.

On top of all this, it was learned that Leo Cadieux, the present ambassador in Paris, was tendered a farewell dinner there Tuesday.

There had been on official announcement of a change in ambassadors, but an external affairs department official said Thursday that one could be expected shortly.

There have been recurring rumors for months that Pelletier, 56, would become the next ambassador to Paris. After 10 years in Parliament, seven of them in cabinet, he was said to be anxious to try a more relaxed existence. He has lately been embroiled in that sometimes incredible federal-Quebec dispute over cablevision rights.

THE POLLEN YEARS

Fast on draw, mayor shines in verbal wars

Second of a series

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Mayor Peter Pollen's finest moments have come when he tore adversaries to shreds.

But his eagerness to dish out blows is equalled only by his inability to accept criticism.

One of the more memorable moments involved a column which I wrote in January 1971, about a year after he first became an alderman.

The column accused him of destroying the morale of much of the staff at city hall by his constant attacks on the administration.

The column quoted more than a dozen senior city hall officials (with names deleted) expressing feeling of bitterness, discouragement and disappointment.

They all objected to being called "bureaucrats bent on pushing through one mad scheme after another" and similar accusations that had been voiced by Pollen in the past.

Pollen phoned me at home that evening, laying a few choice words on me and threatening he would never speak to me again.

For more than three months, he kept his promise until one day, just before a council meeting, he approached me cheerfully, asking whether I'd like a Lifesaver.

I accepted the olive branch and got along well with him until next time.

His most relished feud has been with Victoria radio station C-FAX or, as Pollen pronounces it C.F.A.X. He will not grace the station with referring to it by its more familiar name.

It all began at a cocktail party at which he and a sta-

Dishing it out: Peter's principles

Following is a collection of Pollenisms on a variety of subjects. All of them were uttered impromptu and without a second's hesitation.

On corporations: "We must establish guidelines for corporations or a new kind of feudalism will take over our cities. It's already manifested by the architecture of enormity, coupled with our obsession for security. The only way you can get into many of these huge complexes is through a Pinkerton guard."

On banks: "They're led by people who started at 16 and are now chairmen of the board. They have no planned approach to society and they have an immense financial capacity. Their response to urban challenges is a big zero. They just go on building huge buildings to outdo each other. It's ludicrous for corporate pride to be reflected in this manner."

On Europeans: "They are very nice people, but they're inordinately smug, undemocratic and self-satisfied."

On the morale of a police force which claims to be underpaid: "It's regrettable that esprit de corps and morale in any force are equated with money. If this were true, the New York police force should have a high morale and dope pedlars making $30,000 and $40,000 a year should have a high morale."

On himself: "I would say with the utmost modesty that I'm probably the best mayor the city has had since the war."

Pollen has often hung labels on various segments of society and some of these labels are worth mentioning.

Unions: "Organizations bent on destroying society."

Developers: "Rapacious enterprenurs."

The tobacco industry lobbying against advertising bans: "An immense lobby aided and abetted by the Senate of Canada which has thwarted and destroyed any proposed federal legislation regarding tobacco advertising."

Rioters kill policeman

BASTIA, Corsica (UPI) — Corsican separatists killed one French federal policeman and wounded at least 16 others Thursday in riots and gunfights in the city street.

Sources in the French Interior ministry said a squadron of police paratroopers was flying to Corsica Thursday to help maintain order. Three French policemen have died in clashes with separatists this week.

Early Thursday, snipers fired shotguns, automatic weapons and .22 calibre rifles at Compagnie Republicaine de Securite police charging a group of rioters in Bastia's St. Nicholas Square.

Police said one of the riot-trained policemen died and at least 16 were wounded, one critically.

A real lifesaver

Mae West, visiting on set of Universal's big-scale movie Midway in Los Angeles, autographs lifejacket worn by actor Kevin Dobson, and affectionately known as Mae West by Second World War sailors and flyers. Tragedy staged

LONDON (Reuter) — Seven Soviet soldiers and officers were imprisoned by the Germans during the Second World War in a Polish monastery without food, water or clothing, and then abandoned.

When Soviet troops arrived 60 days later, only two officers were found and both were insane, having survived by eating the remains of their comrades. Both were given a meal and shot and the monastery blown up.

The incident is the subject of a new British National Theatre production written by Canadian journalist Barry Collins and directed by Peter Hall.

The play, Judgment, which opened Wednesday night, imagines that one of the survivors came out sane. It consists entirely of a 2½-hour speech by Capt. Andrei Vukhov to his judges, justifying his behavior and that of his comrade.

The speech is delivered without interruption and is said to be the longest monologue in the history of the theatre.

B.C. stays clear of food dispute

VANCOUVER (CP) — A federal government agency has decided to investigate the B.C. food industry dispute while the provincial government intends to steer clear of it.

In Ottawa, Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the Food Prices Review Board, said in a news release Thursday that key company and union negotiators have been asked to brief board secretary Anthony Campbell on thir positions.

In Victoria, labor minister William King said he had no plans to intervene in the dispute.

Unless there are significant changes in bargaining positions, 125 supermarket outlets — most of them in the Vancouver area — employing 4,500 workers will be closed Tuesday.

A meeting has been proposed for today between the B.C. Food Industrial Relations Council, which is bargaining for the 11 companies involved in the dispute, and at least two of the unions.

The Baker Workers Union and the meatcutters' division of the Canadian Food and Allied Workers Union announced Wednesday they would not begin picketing until Tuesday.

The two unions and the Retail Clerks International Association have been served lockout notices by the food council which was formed to prevent selective strikes.

The council has said it will lock out clerks when either the bakery union or the meatcutters union pickets any member.

The stores, meanwhile, have cut prices of some perishables in an attempt to reduce inventories before Tuesday.

Mrs. Plumptre said the food prices review board is concerned with the impact of settlement on food prices in B.C. which already has the highest food prices in Canada.

"The board has repeatedly called for restraint on the part of economic decision makers, including both management and labor, as being essential for dealing with the inflation problem, of which food prices are only a part," she said.

ICBC union accepts

VANCOUVER (CP) — Striking members of the Office and Technical Employees Union have voted to accept a report by industrial inquiry commissioner Noel Hall, which could put the Insurance Corp. of B.C. back in operation by Tuesday.

Fred Trotter, OTEU spokesman, said Thursday that the 1,800 workers employed by ICBC approved the proposed term of settlement in the report, but he declined to provide voting percentages.

The union's negotiating committee had recommended acceptance of Hall's report, which proposes a compounded increase of 39.55 per cent during a 28-month term, retroactive to June 1974.

The workers, members of Local 378, seeking their first contract, have been on strike since May. 20.

Directors of the corporation were still studying the report Thursday and were expected to make a statement today.

Union spokesmen had said earlier that the OTEU executive was not pleased with all the terms of the report, but believed it was the right time to return to work.

Driver pays heavily

A 24-year-old Esquimalt man who "appears to go literally berserk when faced with some action by his estranged wife which he does not approve" was sent to jail Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court by Judge F. S. Green.

Green ended the unusual case of William Robert Utterson, 879½ Admirals, by sentencing Utterson to a total of 74 days in jail to be served on weekends, putting him on probation for two years and banning him from driving for three years.

Conditions of the probation included no alcohol for Utterson for two years, continued payments of $300 a month to Utterson's father until the total reaches $2,000 and payment of $600 to the Insurance Corp. of B.C. before April 15, 1976.

Two cars

The payments follow damage to two cars in a March 22 parking lot incident in the 700-Block Courtney which prosecutor Scott Marshall and defence lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood agreed involved "outrageous" conduct by Utterson.

He was originally charged with criminally negligent driving but pleaded guilty July 28 to a reduced charge of dangerous driving as well as to driving while under a licence suspension.

Utterson was driving a brother's car, which apparently was owned by their father, when he saw his estranged wife with another woman in a car on the parking lot. He stopped his car, sped to a spot which blocked the other car's exit from the lot and got out.

Futile kick

He tried to open the car doors but they were locked. He tried to kick out a window but that failed. He went back to his car and twice rammed the other vehicle, pushing it out to the street, before leaving the scene.

Owen-Flood said Utterson had a previous driving record which included a jail term and was on probation March 22, but urged Green not to send his client to jail.

He said Utterson had good character references, an excellent work record, was already paying his father $300 a month, wanted to pay the ICBC bill, was taking psychiatric treatment and "he has matured . . . he is more stable and more rational."

The defence lawyer also said Utterson had "resolved not to see his wife again."

By his wife

Green welcomed that but said Utterson's marital problems "and a basic immaturity cast a shadow over everything else. He appears to go literally berserk when faced with some action by his estranged wife which he does not approve."

The judge said a jail term was needed, but could be served on weekends so Utterson could keep his job and thus "retain his responsibilities to his children" while also continuing repayment.

Green said he had even considered a probation condition ordering Utterson not to see his wife but that would be "contrary to public policy."

$1,000 goes Sayward

A Sayward woman was the big prize winner in the first draw of the Lucky Leo lottery Thursday.

Ann Reinson won $1,000 in the early bird draw held at Saanich municipal hall.

Victorians won six of the 42 consolation prizes of $100. The other winners were from other parts of B.C., except for one winner from Calgary and one from London, England.

Victoria district winners were: Bob Gilson of 3159 Douglas, J. Roger of 1109 Lyle, Howard R. Smith of 707 Esquimalt Road, Anne Leiper of 235 Cook, John Pilatzke of 4533 Densmore, and George Alexander of 743 Stelly Crossroad.

Another draw will be held Oct. 6, and the final draw for $100,000 will ne held Nov. 28.

Proceeds from the lottery go to B.C. Lions Society for Crippled Children projects.

Wettest August on record

Raindrops keep falling . . . and at the rate they've fallen this month Greater Victoria has had its wettest August on record.

The weather office at Pat Bay Airport had recorded 3.30 inches for the month at 5 a.m. Thursday.

The normal rainfall for August, according to Pat Bay Airport readings, is 0.97 inches.

Greater Victoria is not alone in its abnormal August rainfall. Vancouver, too, was close to a record. To Thursday, 3.36 inches of rain had been recorded at Vancouver International Airport. Vanccuver's wettest August came in 1962 when 3.54 inches fell.

'Holy surgery' in Philippines: $1,350 just for a good look

By JON FERRY
Colonist Reporter

Miracle healing seems to take to the Philippines like a duck to water.

And recent investigations by the media have made an ever-skeptical public increasingly aware of quacks.

But now Langley businessman Colin Donison claims to be able to direct people away from charlatans to the real thing — seven Filipino ministers who hold the power of the Holy Spirit in their hands.

Donison, a 46-year-old diabetic who says he's undergone several "operations" during four recent visits to the ministers' chapel in Quezon City near Manila, is co-ordinator of the B.C. chapter of a new society called the World Mission Society.

Donison says the society, whose aim is spiritual brotherhood, is officially registered in Ottawa. Membership costs $100 and so far there are nine members in this province.

Later this year, on Nov. 5 and again on Dec. 20, Donison will be guiding parties of the plainly sick or simply interested to the Philippines for a 21-day spiritual excursion complete with spiritual surgery.

"You get a helluva trip," notes Donison who estimates the excursion cost at $1,350 including air fare, hotel accommodation, meals and bus transportation — but not including any donations for surgical services rendered.

A foretaste of what the spiritual tourists can expect was disclosed Thursday night at Servetus Hall in James Bay with a movie-lecture from Rev. Marcos Orbito, World Mission Society national chairman, society president Loreto Dolor and Donison himself.

The two Filipinos were here as part of a publicity swing through Alberta and B.C. Donison paid for the trip.

Donison says Orbito is one of four brothers and three other ministers of the Filipino Christian Church who have the powers of holy surgery.

As was explained to the audience Thursday night Orbito could not display his amazing powers in Canada because of legal difficulties.

This purported to show Donison and other patients undergoing "magnetic healing" and "surgery" by the laying on of hands without mechanical incision, anesthetic or antiseptic.

The hands of the apparently entranced medium simply fingered the relevant part of the patient's anatomy, "reached through" the skin and within seconds removed fatty tissue, tumor or whatever.

All this without scar in sight and, according to Dolor, with the only instrument used being that of God working through his human medium.

With an assistant dabbing away at the "wound" and the hands of the medium covering the "incision" it was hard for those who saw the movie Thursday to be convinced that the skin was actually punctured during any of the operations.

And despite protestations from World Mission officials that with God all things are possible, skeptics could be forgiven for remaining skeptical, especially as an expensive trip to the Philippines appears to be the only way at present of making believers out of doubting Thomases.

Donison however, says he has documentary evidence of patients being cured by the Filipino healers who perform hundreds of operations each day.

The cost of a trip to the Philippines isn't really expensive, he explains; "it all depends how sick you are and how much you like to suffer."

After a wood beam dropped on him while he was housebuilding in May, 1971, Donison said he suffered gangrene in his left leg and doctors here in Canada recommended amputation.

On the advice of a friend he visited the Filipino chapel and the gangrene was stopped and the "dead cells" were "cleansed."

Donison says he's also had "operations" for hemorrhages in his eyes and on his heart.

"This has done wonders for me," he says.

He would like to see conventionally qualified doctors go to the Philippines to see for themselves.

Visitors can apparently witness the operations and the incisions made without a knife and without the need for antispectic precautions.

"You can stick your finger right in between the parting (of the flesh) or put your nose there and smell the body odor," Donison said.

No charge is made for the operations but donations are accepted — whether in single figure dollars or thousands of them.

Donison himself says he can guarantee members of his parties "aren't going to be ripped off." One main purpose in founding the World Mission Society was to protect the public from imposters, he said.

The need to guard against the latter appears to be great — especially in the light of one independent investigation of a South Seas healer which showed that what was purported to be human blood was blood of an animal.

Ribbon-cutting ceremonies at concrete court at Bishop Cridge

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

Candy, nuts and fruit in generous proportions served once a year, and a new suitcase and clothes to "start life's venture" were the gifts William Nevin Williams intended to give Victoria's orphans through a trust fund set up in his will.

But with orphans in short supply the old B.C. Protestant Orphanage has become the Bishop Cridge Centre for the Family, and there are no orphans there to receive the gifts.

So on Thursday, the children who live there and attend programs received a modern version of the candy and nuts — a boxed-in, tennis-court-size concrete pad.

They will be able to use the $4,500 bequest for floor hockey, basketball, volleyball or any of the games they wish to play.

Little is known about Williams, except that he grew up in the Protestant Orphanage, and died in Seattle many years ago.

At his death, a $33,000 trust fund was established with the stipulation that it should be used, until the principal and interest were exhausted, to purchase "candy, nuts and fruit in generous proportions, each in a separate package to go with a present to all under its roof, including matron."

The largesse was to be distributed once a year, he directed.

And, added Williams? "I direct that each child upon leaving or being discharged from this home be furnished with a suitcase, suitable clothing or wearing apparel and a sum of money with which to start on life's venture."

But these directives, says Denison Stewart, acting director at the centre, are not too practical in an age without orphans living in an orphanage, and with the new direction being taken by society.

The stress today is upon providing housing for families in transition — for single parents with their own families — and upon programs for the children living in the house on the centre property.

About 10 years ago, a court order set aside the original terms of the will, stipulating instead that the money should be used for the benefit of children living on the property.

"The trustees were given wider discretion for the use of the fund," said Stewart.

This spring it was decided that the small concrete pad on the property should be enlarged, and the work was begun with the help of about two dozen volunteer workers — half of them youngsters from 10 to 16 who live at the centre.

Directors applied to the trustees for the money needed and about three weeks ago one of the trustees, J. C. Irvine of Seattle, a friend of Williams' inspected the pad.

"He approved the project, and the money should be here in a few weeks time," Stewart said.

Supermarket shutdown

'Disaster' looms for B.C. farmers

By JIM GIBSON
Colonist Reporter

A prolonged supermarket shutdown on the Lower Mainland and in Victoria would be disastrous for the province's vegetable producers, according to the Victoria manager of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

Dick Stocks said producers could hold off a couple of days but as the available storage filled up the alternative might be to plow crops under.

"It's coming at a bad time for vegetable growers," he said of the labor dispute between the 21-member B.C. Food Council and three unions that could shut down major supermarkets some time after Labor day.

Stocks estimated that losses to the provincial farming industry could reach $1 million a day with a shutdown.

He said this figure was based not only on lost produce but also on the laying off of farm workers. He said a prolonged shutdown would first affect vegetable and fruit producers but poultry and meat producers would eventually be hit.

He said cattlemen were already finding few buyers for finished animals as retail buyers were cutting back in the event of a shutdown. He said that buyers were scarce for 4-H calves at the Pacific National Exhibition.

Stocks said co-operatives across the province were looking for other outlets either on the Prairies or the numerous independent stores not involved in the dispute.

But he said the independent stores could only handle so much produce.

Doug Philp, manager of the Island Vegetable Co-operative, said his 75-member group was adopting a wait-and-see attitude toward the possible shutdown.

A similar attitude is held by local retail clerks union business agent John Nicol who said a Victoria shutdown depended on whether proposed Lower Mainland lockouts spread to this area.

Any lockouts by affected Victoria area supermarkets would come with the striking of Lower Mainland Super-Valu stores by Meatcutters or with pickets by bakery workers at the Fort and Foul Bay Safeway store.

Food Council member stores in the Victoria area include 10 Safeway stores, three Shop Easy markets and a single Maverick store.

John Pepper, manager of the Cadboro Bay Shop Easy which is not involved in the dispute, reported "quite a lot of people are buying."

"I've never had to worry about having too much business," he said.

But labor problems in eastern Canada have reached as far as his store. About one-third of his orders, he reported, cannot be met because of eastern Canada labor disputes.

Training aimed at foster parents

Prospective foster parents will get an idea of what is in store for them before they actually sign up to take foster children under a training scheme announced Thursday by the Capital Region branch of the Human Resources Department.

It is hoped that the end result will be a steadier supply of foster homes, with foster parents able to cope with the demands of the 40 to 50 children taken into care each month in the Victoria area.

All prospective foster parents will be required to take the four-part course before being accepted by the department to take in foster children.

The tougher regulations are apparently paradoxical at a time when placement officers are finding it more and more difficult to come up with suitable homes.

But, says Barbara Lee, Foster Parents Association president, it is expected that after taking the course foster parents will be less liable to give up under the pressure of dealing with difficult children.

New foster parents will meet social workers, experienced foster parents, as well as natural parents whose children have been placed in care.

"They will have an idea of what to expect, how to cope and perhaps most important they will know where to go for help when they run into problems."

The Foster Parents Association recommended in June 1971 that the department should be responsible for the continuing education and training of all foster parents," Ms. Lee said.

Shaw needs day for roller mark

By this morning Clint Shaw expected to have picked up another world's roller skating record but the Victoria man has at least another day of skating in a Reseda, Calif., arena if he wants the marathon record.

Last Saturday morning when Shaw laced on his skates, he was aiming at breaking a 30-year-old record of 147-hours. But this week he discovered the record was more like 200 hours and just five months old.

It seems a California disc jockey didn't think Shaw's banking of his five-minute-per-hour breaks into four-hour stretches was cricket. So the radio man phoned the Guinness Book of Records to protest.

Shaw's procedure was all right but his timing was off. He'll have to skate through until 6 p.m. Saturday to equal the March record set by an Alabama couple.

He plans to continue through until Sunday just to be safe.

In a telephone interview Thursday as he continued to skate, Shaw said the news about the March record was his big letdown of the week. But he was "healthy and in good morale."

Earlier in the week he suffered depression and hallucinations before he took his first four-hour break.

"I didn't know who I was or what I was doing in the United States," he said.

He reported plenty of callers on his cordless telephone. One caller Thursday was his Victoria employer, Clyde Emms of Trojan Steel.

Shaw said his marathon try is drawing crowds and publicity for the roller rink. But rink owners last week almost scotched Shaw's record-breaking attempt when they insisted he come up with $1,300 to cover costs of keeping the rink open 24 hours a day. Friends and seven Victoria businessmen found Shaw the money.

He claims he is receiving no payment for his feat but, if he succeeds he may do a linament commercial.

His other records include most miles skated in a day — 106 — as well as being the first to roller skate across Canada and the U.S.
